THE DEAD WIFE.

· BY S. O. APE.

Thead ! dead! my-love is dead? Her soul has flown away! And the form upon the bed Is but one of lifeless clay, Gold the lips-pais the face, Motionless the hand. That would above is now her place Amid's that holy happy band

That throngs about her Savior's throne, Even blessed is his love. Mever, there, can one be prone The sinful paths of life rove Never more with eye so brigh Hever more with heart so light.

Will she, the good, the beautiful, The lovely and the dutiful, Dwell here on earth with me. Dead! Dead! my love is dead? Her form is hid away

And I can but bow my head, And weep my cheerless life away Cheerless day-cheerless night Cheerless all the maile, -Since Death my brightest hope did blight,

And robbed me of my loved one's smile. Death! thou monster pale and cold, Why did not thy stern decree Fall 'pon him, whom Time has told Is waiting ev'ry hone for the Some time thy life will end-Some time thy form will band, And yield unto the cruel fate Thou hust bestowed in small & great As throught our midst thou'st roamed

Gone! Gone 1 my Love is gone! And I am weeping here; In this cold world I'm left alone To shed for her my erry dear? Sad stays-sad at morn, Sadder evry hour. Since I must wander here forlorn "Submitting to deproving power." I care for naught, I care for none, as through this world I'm driven ; But I will reach my final home, And be at rest with her in Heaven. There I will never mourn; There I will never be forlorn; But resting on my Savior's arms, I shall be free from all death's harm

Yours Respectfully,

PATE PLAY, BE. -The Republicans in the Legislature refused to condemn the insulting letter of Treasurer Kemble, to Mr. Belment, of New York, recently made pub-lic, in relation to the payment of our State bonds. It requires a tolerably hard check for Republicana, now to innard cages for Republicans, now to in-sist upon the payment of Government bonds in gold on one side, but to declare it ridioulous, on the other, to expect it for State securities. It does not demand the sagestiy of a Webster to recognise the inconsistency, and which some ill-natured people would call rescality of such transactions.

It is plain from whence repudiation will come, should it come at all. Ta-king as types of the Republican party.
