For the WATORNAM. IMPROVEMENTS FOR THE YOUNG BY BLACK HAWK

Last saturday eve, while the skye wos clear We thought we would surprise our friends put the horses right in geor,

And shined up try no tens, With horses fast, ne'er was pass'd, We were a gay and harpy ciew, Bound if we dident drive to fast. To reach the place we had in view.

But ere we reached the place we sought, Through many fields, we had to go; For in a snow-squall, we wer caught, And packed in drifting rnow. We arrived, and the horses were put in th stable,

While we were warmed, at a blusing fire, Then soon we arived at the table, Where was every thing good, that we could desire.

Then apples wer past, large ripe and red; And love in the dark, began -And some one, bit me over the head, Saying, "guere who it was if you can." But another thought came to my mind, How I was to drive through drifts of snow And I slightly lingered behind -----And would wrather I dident go. --

The horses were hitched to the sled, When the party was ready to-go, And back again ofer the fields are sped, Spoiling, the beaps, of drifted snow. But soon from the sky, the snow came down And the winds blew bud and free While wry faces, I made for a frown, At the snow, that pelted me.

The horses were wading in snow to the d while their tails drug along behind, And while I, was half trozen to death, A specimen; of "blind leading the blind, .Tis a had night for the rave" We beard cried out in every place, But "sich is life," with all its cares; When anow storins take us unawares,
