Criticism Criticised.

In these sad days of repudiation bankruploy and general ruin, when land-leds aegroes and old nullifiers dressed up in the starspangle businer have con-trol of life and grouperly in our oppressed section, we are trying to preserve our integrity not withstanding these un-toward of dumit and se, and we do honestly endeavor to pay our debts to the best of our shifity. Some those we are alitthe slow, but in all such cases, are will-ing to pay interest as well as principal. We frankly adknowledge remissions in settling up an old score with the Turf tel Farm, of Nate York. .. But het-

We were flierefore surprised courtely. wing solibe init of our Novem ber anmber? Special exception is taken to an incident fornished by Col. Os-borne, of the late 4th N. O. regiment, of the capture, by some ladies near Shapherditows, Va., of a detapheren of Federal soldiers. The incident was strictly true and can be easily authon thated, and that too wishout reflecting upon the courage of the captured party. Licent critic is not as ignorant of war as a Southern war historian, he would have known that defeated and demoralized men can he chased and taken by dwe-tenth their numbers. We have seen with our own eyes a squad of half a dozen ragged fellows bring in half a regiment of prisoners And, doubtless, the same thing was often witnessed by the other side We saw with our own eyes two men of the Rifle Regiment (there was but one in those days) pursuing several thousand Mexicans from Chapultepec to the Garita de Belen.—They were fully a mile in advance of the American army, and might readily have been killed or cut off. But the panic-struck Mexicans were intent only upon flight. If our critic had had any experience in war, or any knowledge in human nature, he would have known that such an inci dent as that related by Col. O. was by no means unusual. It is not the power-of the capters which is feared, but the of the capters which is feared, but the power of which they constitute a part. Thus, to use a loath-some illustration, is there not many a County in the South at the nob and bock of some little foice of the Freedmen's Bureau' Does the whole county fear the contentional duties at the nob and bock of some little foice of the Freedmen's Bureau' Does the whole county fear the contention of the people of the sound by his oath of office to protect and defend the Bureau and defend the Chamber, the sum of $2.010.75.

In like manner, the party yielding to their lady captors at Shepherdstown did not fear them of course, but they feared the countrymen of those ladies, who had just defeated them. All this is clearly set forth, in the anecdote, and we hardly know whether to ascribe disingenuousness or stupidily to the critic of the Turf. Field and

Their career last seven years justifies this conviction, and nothing but evil results will continue to follow their bad and wioked rule. They rode into power m the first place on the wave of sectional hatred and animosity. By the same evil means they have continued and seek to continue in power. They also endeavor to make their doubtful grasp secure by means most wicked and about inable. In fact, we need only refer to their infamous schemes changed almost daily to suit the ever varying circum stances constantly arising in the ten States of the South. The object is to secure the political power in those States on the tyrant's principle that might makes right. Having political power and determined to hold on, all political obstacles must be removed.
