

A Death Kiss

A young gentleman named Geo. White, a very respectable, industrious, quiet, good looking fellow, of about eighteen years of age, and a resident of Hartstown, went to South Nashville Saturday night to visit his lady love, a Miss Barnes. He had been frequently to visit her before at various times. They were engaged to be married. He found her in the parlor, sewing as was proper for a young girl should be. She was anxious to finish the article, and therefore concluded not to throw it aside when he entered, particularly as he complimented her on her pretty appearance, with her beautiful face, bending over her slender fingers as she plied the needles with as much grace and rapidity as other girls display when skinning over the keys of a waltz piano.

He took his seat beside her. They chatted very gayly. After waiting a few minutes, which to him seemed hours, he became impatient, and longed to imprint a chaste kiss upon her ripe and rosy lips. With the view of carrying out his design, he let his arm circle her waist lightly, and as he was drawing her close to himself, she objected to being disturbed until her little work was finished, but he insisted. She made a motion to shove him off, as girls are said to do generally. This motion proved fatal to her happiness and to his life. He became impetuous, and drawing her to him with such violence, the needle which caught in her tulle got between them, the point toward his heart.

It entered, as he was about to imprint a kiss of love upon her lips, his own became ashy pale, his vigorous grasp relaxed, and then the fire of love died out, as if by a celestial puff, at the moment of contact. He sickened, fell back upon the sofa, quite helpless. The young lady was much alarmed, and ran for assistance. The family all ran into the room, and proceeded to open his shirt collar, thinking he was in a fainting fit, and that the usual restoratives would suffice. In undoing his vest, it was found that the needle had penetrated his side very deeply, a circumstance which the young lady never noticed in her fright. The doctor was sent for. He administered what remedies he could. Partial consciousness was restored, and the young fellow enabled to talk. The scene between him and his first, last love, was extremely affecting.

She wept like one that feels that all happiness on earth is lost, and he seemed to regret her loss and not his own condition. He consoled her by saying that she would soon get another lover, to fill his place, who would be more worthy of her than he could hope to be, and who would make her happy. This but increased her sorrow. She sank down upon the floor beside him and died. When he was becoming worse, the doctor gave the emphatic opinion that he could not live. He started suddenly to his feet, and running into another room, swallowed a heavy dose of laudanum, which was kept there for the use of a young member of the family that was sick. It was some time before she was discovered, and it was with the utmost difficulty he was brought back to consciousness. The first words she uttered were, "O, where is he? let me go to him, I will be with him." At the same instant, the young gentleman was resigning his part into the hands of his Maker in the adjoining room. He died about 10 o'clock. She is still in a precarious condition, and evidences symptoms of insanity.

The Boston Times, a spicy, little news daily, thus hits off the New York press. Many New Yorkers are of the opinion that the "Moon" will soon eclipse the "Sun," and take the shine out of their "Star." We think it depends altogether upon what kind of "telegrams" it publishes for its "Daily News." The "World" is plenty large enough for another paper if it will only keep up with the "Times," and see that its "Ledger" compares favorably with the "Day Book." Every good "Citizen" knows that by subscribing he will add to the wealth of the "Nation," and keep up with the "Spirit of the Times," which paper, by the by, is a regular "Chapin," and even though it is a "Weekly," it is always issued with great "Dispatch," and its "Readers" are written in a spirit of moderation, although it once was held for an explanation of "Harper's Magazine," which might have damaged its "Bazaar," by giving some "New York Democrat" an opportunity of publishing a first-class picture in "Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper," whose "Galaxy" of battle scenes in the days of our "Revolution," would have inspired the "Round Table," to rally to the support of any "Irish American" who would prove himself worthy of the "Irish People," and "Independent" enough to denounce the British government "Office Monthly" through the "Mail" which goes by the "Evening Post" and thus enables the "Pheonological Journal" to keep a faithful "Transcript" of the "Day's Doings," which would prove the "Last Sensation" for the "Police Gazette."

A Dutchman married a second wife in about a week after the death of the first one. The Sunday following the bride asked her lord to take her riding, and was duly "sent up" with the following reply: "You think I ride out with my woman so soon after the death of mine first?"

The proposed shortening of the distance between New York and Liverpool between six and seven days, by connecting St. John, Newfoundland, with the New England railroads, has given a new impetus to the annexation movement in Nova Scotia. The rail-road project is pronounced entirely practicable.

The man who was filled with emotion hasn't room for a dinner.

As their sole Agent for this place. They have taken care to give all needed instructions and have endeavored to be able to attend to the requirements of all customers. An opportunity will be thus afforded to procure all the latest styles of Spectacles, and for their strength, and Preserving Quinins. Too much cannot be said as to their superiority over the ordinary glasses worn. There is no眩暈, watering of the Sight, Dizziness, or other unpleasant sensation, but on the contrary, from the peculiar construction of the Lenses, they are SOOTHING and PLEASANT, causing a feeling of relief to the wearers, and producing a clear and distinct vision, as in the natural healthy sight. They are the only Spectacles that Preserve the Sight, assist the Sight, and are the Cause, because the Lens always last long in use without change being necessary.
CAUTION—Mr. George W. Patton, only in Watches, Clocks, Jewelry, &c. is their ONLY Agent appointed in this place.
We employ no Peddlers.
