"An Editor in Heaven."

Such is the caption of an article which has been going the rounds of the papers for some time, and which appears to be something new "under gun. Just as if editors were not in the abit of going to Heaven. We'll venure to say that a greater proportion of them go to that home of those who have performed their mission of merearth, than any other profession calling that poor mortals fill.

"An editor in Heaven!" othing strange about that, at all. It's moral as well as professional mpossibility for them to go anywhere

One upon a time, after the demise of a member of the "corps editorial," he presented himself at the gate of the Holy City," and requested admission. door-keeper asked him what had been his occupation on Terra Firma? He replied that he "was an editor." Well," said the Watchman, have a crowd of your kind here now, nd they all came in as "dead heads." If you can pay your passage you can ome in, if not you must place yourself under the control of a personage you "ruled" tyrannically down below, (meaning the devil.) Not having the "wherewith" to go in, our brother of the "quill and acisaors" posted off and llootie's" dark domains. A very Faust," was the calm reply, raimen the "Gentleman in Black," broke down in the intensity of her emotion, considerable agitation, and ercely scowling on him. "Why of?" demanded the "typo." who has a sayed the ballad, and while the hold on, you can't be admitted," exclaimed the "Gentleman in Black," fiercely scowling on him. "Why not?" demanded the "typo," who began to get somewhat "huffish and lookd around for a "sheep's foot" with which to force an entrance.

"Well, sir," replied his sable Majesic, "we let one of your profession in here many years ago and he kept up a ontinual "row" with his former delinquent subscribers, and as we have more that class of persons here than any other, we have passed a law prohibit in their papers on earth, and even those we keep in a separate room by them-You have published many things that operated against us, and al wave blamed the "Devil" with every thing that went wrong, so you can't come in. We enforce this rule "without respect to persons,' for our own peace and salety. You can just trav. Disorder in a Pennsylvania Revival Meeting - A Parson Puts a Head on the Offenders in the Name of the

Not far from Lancaster is a little ed | task. thce called the Octararo Methodist Episcopal church, over whose congredread of man, be he ever so mighty. The Octararo church, generally known as the 'Gray Horse,' stands in a sort of desert, and lies one-half in Pennsylvania and one-half in Maryland; that is, the old Mason and Dixon's line cuts it in two, and leaves the sacred building equally divided between the two States. Whenever there is a revival the ungodly from the southern side come over and raises Cain among the faithful. They congregate about the door and issue cat-calls, and they swear and cut up generally like barbarians. When meeting is over they orde their attentions upon the young ladies of the church, and on meeting taking a drink.

Lately a party of men came over the line and disturbed the meeting. Parson Gregg paused a moment by his delivery of his sermon, and rolling up

'Young men! If there's another dis sorderly sound from among your diere-putable crowd I'll come down from this sacred deak, and in the name of the Lord put a head on every mother's son of you. Get down on you knees, you hounds, and pray for better manhere, or else, levant.

Saying which he proceeded with his sermon, a most edifying discourse.

In a moment the noise again began. An audible awear of the first magnie tade filled the room with its had odor, and caused the worshippers to shrink within themselves with horror.

Parson Gregg game down from the pulpit in a state of quiet rage. He took of his coat and hung it over the chancel rail, and then went for tho e wick ed vonce man are represented at their growth at six feet seven, as greater and then went for tho e wick ed vonce man are represented to their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at their growth at six feet seven, as greater at the coat and hung it over the chance at the coat and hung it over the chance at the coat and the six feet seven at the coat at the coat and the six feet seven at the coat at ed young men only one of whom he

Following close upon the trail of the others, he came up with the most outrageous beathen of one Jim Page Bedloe, whom he tackled without a word of grace. Parson Gregg gave Bedloe a most clerical and canonical walloping. When he had fluished pounding h m with his fists he resorted to his heels. Jim went home wiser and sorer than when he came-The parson turned to his pulpit pit and finished his sermon. He will never be troubled any more.

Affecting Death-Bed Scene.

On Monday last, as the venerable Chief Justice Robertson, stricken by the hand of death, lay almost insensible to the world which he seemed fast leaving forever, while the gigantic brain which, for so many years, had throbbed grandly to the inspirations of his genius, barely fluttered with the consciousness of life, he expressed a desire to hear Miss Cary sing the ballad of "Old Folks at Home," as if the strains of his favorite inclody would have power to call back his soul from the portals of the grave, which he was so fast nearing. The wish was at once so fast nearing. The wish was at once communicated to Miss Cary, who willingly consented to do anything in her power to rouse the chbing current of life in one who as a statesman or jurist, has known but few rivals during the course of a long and eventful life. On reaching the residence of Judge Robertson, Miss Cary was at once ushered into the chamber where so much presented himself at the entrance of of intellect and learning was fast flick ering out into the darkness of the undark complexioned gentleman stood sentry, and asked in gruff voice, "who comes?" "An humble disciple of Faust," was the calm reply, "Then "Way down upon the Swanee river," "Way down upon the Swanee river," but before she had sung three lines, her glorious melody poured out her whole soul in the simple utterance which gave so much pleasure to one whose giant intellect had, in days agone, fascinated the most talented of the land. When she had ceased, Judge Robertson could scarcely express his gratification by signs, yet signified a desire that Miss Cary should sing for him, "Home, Sweet Home" Twice ing the admission of any editors, only did the gilted artist attempt to com those who have advanced our interest ply with the request, but her emotion was too great, and choked with feeling, she was compelled to leave the room. The whole incident was one of the most touching and affecting episodes that ever marked the death bed of departing greatness. -- Lexington (Ky.) Press.

Tom Paine as a Writer.

Mr. Westcott, in his History of tarted off again, determined to get in Philadelphia, in his account of the newspapers and magazines of that city a century ago, says.
The Pennsylvania Magazine or

American Monthly Museum, was com-menced in January, 1775, by Robert Aitken. The celebrated Thomas Paine was one of the principal writers for this work, and had agreed to fur nich monthly a certain quantity of original matter for tits pages, with which condition it was often very diffi cult to persuade him to comply ken relates that on one of these occasions, when Paine had neglected to furnish his quota of material for the magazine until near the day of publication he went to him and complained of the neglect. Paine heard him patiently, and coolly answered. "You shall have them in time." Aitken, however, was not thus to be put off, and he innisted that Paine should accompany hun home, and there write the articles, as the workman were waiting for the copy. Paine accordingly went with him, and being seated at the table with writing materials—which in his case always included a glass and a decanter of brandy-he proceeded to his "The first glass," save Aitken, "put him in a train of thinking, the second I feared would disqualify or gation Parson Gregg cometimes presides. Parson Gregg is a man who lears the Lord, but never stands in dread of more than the control of the stands of the control of the co when he had swallowed the third glass, he wrote with great rapidity, intelli-gence and precision, and his ideas appeared to flow faster than he could commit them to paper. What he penned from the inspiration of the brandy was perfectly fit for the press, without any alteration or correction.'

Rules of Conduct for Hens and Roosters.

The editor of the Glena Falls Repub lican has been elected Vice President of the Northern New York Poultry Association. In his enthusiastic in-augural he lays down the following regulations for the poultry yard. He Fully realizing the responsibilities of our new position, we have prescribed the following rules and regulations, which must be strictly observed: No rooster will be allowed over seven wives at one time.

Ambitious pullets are prohibited from attempting to cover and hatch over one peck of eggs at a time.

Every rooster's family a all stay in their own barnyards, except on hola

No gossiping allowed among the ducks and geese, as that privilege is especially reserved for bipeds.

Rading, betting on election, running for office, or attending sewing societies, are consulered objectionable, as tending to confusion in the hennery.

The aversion of geese to teather beds is commended as entirely natural.

Roosters, as heads of families, are expected to comport themselves with dignity, and to be in highlis before Mrs. Buldy has taken her second hap.

Shanghais are requested to retain Gobbler and goose music is to be cherished at all times, but a due to gard for weak nerves will prescribe a limit to even these dulcet notes.

Four o'clock in morning is the earl iest hour at which roosters will be at lowed to commence their matutinal serenades.

Iron bolts, rocks, buts of crockery, old rubber shoes, hand saws, tin-pans, and unils are considered essential to hen digestion, but they should not be taken in unreasonable quantities.

One egg is considered a fair day's work for a hen, and the association will frown on any extra exertion in that direction as deleterious to the conatitution.

A Wonderful Freak of Nature.

THE TWO HEADED GIRL.

At the Assembly Buildings, Tenth and Chestnut streets, there is on exhibition a wonderful celebrity styled the Two Headed Gisl. This female duality is eighteen years of age, was born in North Carolina, and is known 3 Christiana and Millie.

Recently this wonder was submitted to a scientific anatomical examination at the Jefferson Medical College be fore a special clinic, consisting of sev eral of the first Surgeons and Medical

Dr. Pancoast stated that the body had been placed under his professional care, and owing to the important ques tions involved, a private examination had been made by Professors Pancoast and Gross, and Drs Sev e and Andrews, which had verified all the opinions expressed as to her perfect duality.

It was then stated that this remark able freak of nature was united at the laterial posterior portion of the pelvis, while above that point they were separated -- had separate chests, two pairs of fully developed arms, but only one

With the double head, they possessd separate intellectual faculties as en tirely distinct as was the brain power of two different individuals, while their faces indicated to a remarkable degree, intelligence of a high order and amia

The lower portions of the body in clined outwards from each side, and the lower limbs were inferior, and not so fully developed as the arms.

A series of experiments were then made under the direction of Professor Pancoast, and Drs Atlee, Maury and others, calculated to demonstrate the construction of the nervous system, and which showed that while above the junction, the sense of feeling was separate and distinct in each, below the union it was in common. A touch upon the foot of one would be instantly detected by the other, while a hand placed upon either shoulder was only ioticed by the one touched.

The pulse of Millie, the feebler of the two, was found to be about four beats slower than that of Chrissy, while the beat of the two hearts was nearly the same.

The universal opinion expressed by the faculty was that the case was a rare one, and its equal might never again be seen in the history of the
