CENTRAL HOTEL, PHILADELPHIA, PA. A. A. KORTBROCK, Proprietor. This new and commodious Hotel, located opposite the depot, Millsburg, Centre county, has been entirely refitted, refurnished and replenished throughout, and is now second to none in the county in the character of accommodations offered the public. Its table is supplied with the best of market affordances, its bar contains the purest and choicest liquors, its stable has attentive hostlers, and every convenience and comfort is extended its guests. Through travelers on the railroad will find this an excellent place to lunch or procure a meal, as all trains stop there about 25 minutes, 24 24

THE CUMMINGS HOUSE, BELLEFONTE, PA. Having assumed the proprietorship of this finely located and well known hotel, I desire to inform the public that while it will have no bar, and be run strictly as a temperance hotel, it will furnish to its patrons all the comforts, conveniences and hospitalities offered by others. Its rooms are large and comfortable. Its standing is the best in town, and its prices to transient guests and regular boarders will be very reasonable. The citizens of the town will find in the basement of my hotel FIRST-CLASS MEAT MARKET at which all kinds of Meat can be purchased at the very lowest rates. I earnestly solicit a share of the public patronage, 83 13 GOTTLIEB HAAG.

Medical.

THAT TIRED FEELING is experienced by almost every one at this season, and many people resort to Hood's Sarsaparilla to drive away the languor and exhaustion. The blood, laden with impurities, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It purifies, vitalizes, and enlivens the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, braces the nervous system, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA "My appetite was poor, I could not sleep, had headache and a great deal of pain in my back, my bowels did not move regularly. Hood's sarsaparilla in a short time did me so much good that I feel like a new man. My pains and aches are removed, my appetite improved. I say to others, who need a good medicine, try Hood's Sarsaparilla and see."—George F. Jackson, Roxbury Station, Conn.

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG. "For years I was sick every spring, but last year took Hood's Sarsaparilla and have not seen a sick day since."—G. W. Stone, Milton, Mass.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA is a spring tonic, and a recommendation of Hood's Sarsaparilla is a recommendation of Hood's Sarsaparilla for rheumatism and dyspepsia, with which I was troubled very much. After taking this medicine I am feeling as well as ever in my life."—G. W. Stone, Pottsville, Pa.

Order and Ornament of the Table. That the appearance of the table affects our enjoyment of the food, no one will deny. Were this not the case, a tablecloth might be dispensed with, and it would be a matter of indifference whether our plates were of tin or china. How far we should regard the appearance of the table will depend in part upon one's tastes, and in part upon one's means. Ornamentation to a certain extent is also pleasing, but this generally takes time—just the thing which housekeepers in general can least afford. Such things except in the most simple form, are better left for the wealthy, who can pay for the necessary service. Still there are many things pertaining to neatness that take scarcely any time in their execution, and which even the housekeeper who is her own cook and waiter, can observe, if her attention is called to them. At present we only refer to "dishing up."

So simple an article as mashed potatoes is capable of looking its best. A shapeless, pudding mass, such as is often dumped into a dish, is hardly attractive. Give it a knife to a neatly rounded surface, and the whole look of the dish is changed. Set the dish in a quick oven, to brown the surface, and you have a work of art. Nothing is more distressing than to see a roasted fowl come to the table "lying" with outspread wings, and legs looking as if the bird had kicked before the fire. A turning of the wings and a bit of string around the legs would have converted the ridiculous looking object into a respectably dressed fowl. Even so simple a thing as mutton chops may be neatly served or otherwise. Let one compare a dish of chops thrown into the plate "higgledy-piggledy," with one in which the small ends are all laid one way, with the broad portions slightly overlapping and the difference will be manifest at once.

Other illustrations might be given, but these will indicate what we mean by neatness in dishing up. Such matters may seem trivial to some, but much of our comfort is due to the observance of trifles.—American Agriculturist.

WHAT ARE THE THOUGHTS OF THE DYING?—In the Societe de Biologie, Paris, a report was made that a dying person in his last moments thinks of the chief events of his life. Persons resuscitated from drowning, epileptics with grave attacks, persons dying and already unconscious, but momentarily brought back to consciousness by ether injections to utter their last thoughts, all acknowledge that their last thoughts revert to momentous events of their life. Such an ether injection revives once more the normal disposition of cerebral activity, already nearly extinguished, and it might be possible at this moment to learn of certain important events of the past life. Brown-Sequard mentions the remarkable fact that persons who, in consequence of grave cerebral affections, have been paralyzed for years, get back once when dying their sensibility, mobility, and intelligence. All such facts clearly show that at the moment of dissolution important changes take place, reacting upon the composition of the blood and the functions of the organs. —Wien. Med. Zeitung.

FLOODS OF THE PAST.—There have been more disastrous floods than that at Johnston, but none in modern times arising from the same cause that can be compared with it. A hundred thousand lives were lost, and the sea broke through the Holland dikes at Dart in 1446 and swept away seventy-two villages. In 1784 a flood came down from the mountainous region in Spain and over 2,000 persons lost their lives. In 1813 a sudden rise in the Danube drowned 2,000 Turkish soldiers. The Vistula broke its dikes in 1829 and drowned over 1,000. France had memorable floods in 1840 and 1846, but loss of lives on neither occasion reached 1,000. China always has been a great sufferer by floods. In 1885 she lost 10,000, in 1887 11,000, and in 1888, 18,850; but these losses were spread over the period of the entire summer in each case, and undoubtedly in the total number are included many who perished subsequently from famine, owing to the destruction of the crops. Burma also had a destructive flood two years ago in which 1,000 lives were lost.

APPLE PUDDING.—Peel and slice thick six or eight good sized sour apples, put them in an earthen pudding dish that will hold two quarts, cover the dish, and put it on top of the stove, where the apples will cook slowly, then mix two spoonfuls of baking powder over 1,000. Sprinkle with one-half teaspoonful of salt, one cup of sweet milk, and two well beaten eggs; mix all well together, and pour the mixture over the apples, which should have been cooking about one-half hour, cover the dish closely and leave it on top of the stove; it will take about one hour to cook after the batter is added. If the apples are dry put two or three tablespoonfuls of water in a dish before the batter is put in. Sauce for Pudding: Take one cup of very light brown or white sugar, and one-half cup of butter, beat light creamy, then add the white of one egg beaten to a froth (this can be served from the pudding), beat again thoroughly, and put in a pretty fancy dish and garnish with meg over the top; in serving place a large spoonful on each piece of pudding.

SWEET PEAS.—The main point in the culture of sweet peas is to cut the flowers every day. If one bloom is permitted to mature and form seed the vitality of the plant is exhausted and the blooming is at an end. This beautiful variety has been much improved of late, and a number of very beautiful kinds have been produced by crossing. The best effect is gained by planting several varieties, a few of each together in rings, and training them on strings fastened from pegs in the ground to a central stake, or the mixed seeds may be planted. The seeds should be planted at once, and by continuous cutting the bloom will last all through the season.

Calling with Johnnie.

Mrs. Cherry—Ah, Mrs. Cherry, I'm delighted to see you! And you've brought your little Johnnie to see me? How do you do, sir? I'm glad to see you, my little man!

Mrs. Cherry—Shake hands with the lady, Johnnie. (Johnnie won't and doesn't.) He begged so to go out with me this afternoon and I said he might if he'd be a very, good little boy—Johnnie, let that vase alone—and he said he would, so I—Johnnie, don't take that book off the table. I think it a good plan to take children out once—Johnnie, stop turning the leaves of that book so fast. Lovely day, isn't it? I'm so glad that—Johnnie, stop pulling the fringe off that chair—I'm so glad winter is over for I'm so tired of—Johnnie, will you let that piano alone? If you're not a good boy mamma will—as I was saying, it's so delightful to have a few sunny days after—Johnnie, let that album alone.

Mamma don't want to speak to you every minute. After all the winter has seemed every day—Come here, Johnnie. Did you see Rosina Vokes? We went and I—Johnnie, if mamma has to speak to you again about banging away on the piano she'll take you right home! Yes, I thought Rosina lovely in the dance, and as a—Johnnie, you'll break that cup and saucer if you're not careful. What a beautiful cup it is, Mrs. Bright. What a Dresden, isn't it? I'm so fond of—there, Johnnie, I told you you'd upset that table if you weren't careful. I'm so sorry, Mrs. Bright, and the cup is broken! Dear, dear! Johnnie, you come right home with me, and you shall never, never, never go out with me again. (But he does the next day.)—Quincy Whip.

Joseph Oscar Johnson, of Macon, Ga., is quietly affected, and is condemned to laugh all his life. He is a paralytic, and one side is entirely useless. The stroke came on him some two months ago. He is a locomotive engineer. It was in the town of Clinton, S. C., that the stroke came on him. He was one day doing some work on his engine and talking to some one standing near. At the moment he received the blow he was in the act of laughing, and strange to say, the muscles and nerves of the face that are brought most into play in the act of laughing, are the ones that are most affected, and over these he has no control whatever. He cannot tell of his troubles and fears that torment him without laughing. He has a wife and five children, and when his affliction came upon him he went to his father-in-law, who lives in Wilmington, N. C., and told him of his condition and of his inability to care further for his family. The recital of his parting with his wife was most pathetic and heartrending, yet with tears in his eyes and a heart full of agony he was forced to laugh as though he had been telling the most ludicrous incident. He dares not go to church lest he be accused of making sport of the services and be requested to leave the church. And as for a funeral it would be out of the question for him to attend one. His case is a most pitiable one and is the more so because he is only awaiting the relief possible for him, and one that he would hail with pleasure and almost prays for.

Flood News in Germany. Sun and Banner. Ford Weddings, the insurance man, recently received a letter from his son, William L. Weddings, who is attending an engineering school at Bielefeld, Prussia. The young man states that he read the first news of the Pennsylvania floods in the German newspapers on June 2nd, and that they then stated that 200 people were lost at Johnston. Then the number kept increasing from day to day until they had the loss of life up to 55,000. On June 5th he read in a paper that Williamsport was under thirty-six feet of water, but he didn't know it was his home until he saw before that all communication was cut off from Lock Haven. Then the young man knew what Williamsport it was and getting excited, dropped his work and prepared to start for home, never realizing in his haste that he was 3,000 miles away. Ten minutes later he got a telegram from his father stating that the family were all right and he says he never felt happier in his life.

LET.—The ardent lover had just asked her to be his bride, for she had given him a cue to hope, and he answered simply: "Yes, George, if you can get papa's consent." "I will," he answered passionately. "Where is he? He shall give his consent. I would seek the utmost heights of heaven or the darkest depths of hades to find him." "I guess you'll have to, George," she answered quietly; "papa's dead." And with an awful realization that all was over, George went home, and, putting on his little brother's copped-top boots, kicked himself.

Samuel Reid, of Bridgeport, Conn., is the owner of a very intelligent Irish setter, and he never tires of telling of the pet. The other night Mr. Reid told his wife, in the presence of the dog, to rouse him at 6 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Reid failed to awake at the hour named, and Mr. Reid was aroused by hearing his knowing dog scratching at his bedroom door. He arose, and upon looking at the clock discovered that it was 6:03 o'clock. Mr. Reid said it would take considerable money to tempt him to dispose of the dog that, seemingly, so well understands the English language, and is so faithful.

Little Nan, of four summers, considering it her duty to entertain a lady who is waiting for mamma, enters into conversation. Nan—"Have you got any little girls?" The Caller—"Yes, I have two." Nan—"Do you ever have to whip 'em?" The Caller—"I'm afraid I have to, sometimes." Nan—"What do you whip 'em with?" The Caller (amused)—"Oh, when they've been naughty I take 'em slippers." Nan (most feelingly, as mamma enters)—"Y-y-you ought to use a hairbrush; my mamma does, and it hurts awfully."—Life.

BRINGING HIM TO THE SCRATCH.

She (laughing)—What do you think papa says, James? He (interestedly)—Well I don't know.

She (laughing contagiously)—Well, well, I never! He—What does he say? She—Oh, you know he is so full of fun, and— He—Yes? She—He says you're afraid to propose to me; that you darent ask me to be your wife. He—he! He—He said that? She—Yes, and I said to him, "You just wait, I'll tell James what you said, and I'll see whether he's afraid to propose to me or not." He—Oh! You did? She (giggling)—Yes. He—Then, I suppose, I've got to propose.

She—Why certainly, unless you want me to be contradicted by papa. He—Never, my love. Be mine! She—I am yours.—Boston Courier.

"There's several things I object to doing," said the lady who had applied for a situation for general housework in the home of Mrs. B. "And what are those things?" asked Mrs. B. in the profoundly respectful tone that it is always safest to adopt when talking to ladies of this class. "Well, I wouldn't be willing to do any of the sweeping or dusting or bed making or dish washing or cooking. Of course, you wouldn't expect me to wash or iron or bake or clean windows or scour the silver or wait on the table or attend to the children or anything of that kind."

"N-o-o-o," said Mrs. B. timidly, "I don't know that I could expect so much of you. I might do those things myself. But would you be willing to let me go out, say twice each week, while you—?" "Oh, I see," exclaimed the offended general housework lady, rising to go; "you want a slave, that's what you want; and I don't choose to be one. Good day, madam!"

A SENATOR AT A BALL GAME.—We weren't there, but we never had reason to doubt the veracity of the gentleman who informs us that Senator Sawyer, the other day witnessed for the first time in his life a game of baseball as played by professionals. At one point in the game the man at the bat knocked the ball away over the heads of the outfielders, and the crowd cheered until Senator Sawyer felt the warmth of enthusiasm rising in his own bosom. "That's too bad," he finally said to the gentleman beside him. "What's too bad?" "Why, it's too bad they didn't have a man there to catch that ball. By George," said the Senator warmly, "if I were manager of that club I'd put three more men out there in the field if it cost $2,500 a year."—Washington Post.

The following is a very curious puzzle. Open a book at random and select a word within the first ten lines, and within the tenth word from the end of the lines. Mark the word. Now double the number of the page and multiply the sum by five. Then add twenty. Then add the number of the line you have selected. Then add five. Multiply the sum by ten. Add the number of the word in the line. From this sum subtract 250, and the remainder will indicate in the unit column the number of the line, in the ten column the number of the line, and the remaining figures the number of the page.—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

SO SADLY MISSED.—Mabelle—Papa, dear, do you think the home nest would be very lonely and desolate if your little birdie girl went away from it? Papa—Say, Mab, has young Spriggins proposed at last? "Yes, papa." "Good. He's got a cool fifty thousand in his own name and old Spriggins will give him as much more when you're married. You're in luck. Yes, my child, we shall miss our little girl sadly when she goes from us, but I would not be so selfish as to keep her with me always. Go, my darling; go and be happy with the man you love.—Life.

FISHING IN PEACE.—Quite an idea upon the plan and purpose of fishing came to light at Vienna, when a fellow went a fishing down on Gum creek. After selecting a nice, shady place and a comfortable seat he threw his hook into the stream and drew from his pocket a newspaper and was soon lost on its columns. Directly his cork began to bob, he then a strong pull from the water. Deliberately laying his paper aside, he picked up his pole, and, as he began to wind up the line remarked that a man couldn't fish in peace there, and he was going home.
