Bellefonte, Pa., October 18, 1889.

To CORRESPONDENTS.—No communications published unless accompanied by the real name of the writer.

Mr. M. H. Geiss, of Penn Hall, is the duly authorized agent of the WATCHMAN for Gregg township.

THINGS ABOUT TOWN & COUNTY.

—Dr. R. G. Hayes will spend a portion of the winter in Philadelphia, having gone there last week.

—Constans Commandery of this place paraded 25 knights in the line of great parade at Washington last week.

—Rev. Charles T. Stock, formerly of this place, has been called to the Lutheran church at Shamokin and has accepted the call.

—We understand that Mr. George W. Rogers, of this place, is about going into the manufacture of the gauges for steam boilers which he has invented.

—Some days ago, W. H. Hartman, of Millheim, while assisting to load a horse-power machine, slipped, and fell, breaking two of his ribs near the spine.

—If you desire to be royally entertained for an hour, go and hear Rev. Cornelius' "Shots at Shams and Shoddy" in State College Chapel, this Friday evening.

—Governor Beaver's family have closed their summer sojourn at their home in this place, and resumed their residence in the Executive mansion at Harrisburg.

—Rev. Cornelius, of Philipsburg, delivers his lecture, "Shots at Shams and Shoddy" this, Friday evening, (Oct. 18th.) at State College. It will pay you to go and hear him.

—The wild turkey season commenced on the 15th inst., and will continue until the 1st of January, during which season that noble game can be shot according to law.

—Thomas, son of Mr. Thaddeus Hamilton, residing on the Kline farm near Bellefonte, broke one of his arms at the wrist and cut his head by falling from a walnut tree last Saturday morning.

—A young scoundrel, named Charles Knarr, of Flemington, last Friday evening attempted to commit an outrage on a twelve year old daughter of William Brewer. A warrant was issued for his arrest, but he fled from the neighborhood.

—There will be any amount of fun at the State College to-morrow, Saturday. At 10 a. m., the boys of Bucknell University will try to beat the State College team in a game of football, and it will be a real enjoyment to every one who attends to witness the effort.

—Judge Linn, of Williamsport, was reported at the beginning of the week to be lying in a very critical condition from the effects of diabetes. But we are glad to learn from the Williamsport papers that his condition is very much improved, with the likelihood of his recovery.

—Seven boys were arrested near Renovo on Friday afternoon last by Officer Kane for playing truant. Burgess Ferguson gave them a good lecture and some fatherly advice and then on their promise to play truant no more let them go. Are there not boys in Bellefonte who play truant and need a talking to?

—The WATCHMAN this week contains the card of Dr. Thos. VanTreis, who has located permanently in Bellefonte. Dr. VanTreis has for many years successfully practiced his profession at Pennsylvania Furnace, and is known as a larger portion of our readers as one of the best read and most skillful physicians in the county.

—Mr. Adolph Loeb, a well known merchant of this place, whose health for nearly two years was in such a precarious condition that it was thought he could not live, has greatly improved, yet he considers it prudent to withdraw from business, and announces that he is about to retire and place his business in the hands of his brother, Mr. Simon Loeb.

—The burning of the John A. Burrell sawmill, at the east end of Nittany Valley last week, involved a loss of some 200,000 feet of white pine sawed lumber, valued at about $4,000, and at which there was a small insurance, but there was none on the mill. The lumber was owned by J. B. Furst. It is thought that the fire was the work of an incendiary.

—The gymnasium connected with the Y. M. C. A. of this place, is beginning to assume the appearance of a settled fact. It will cost about $450, and at a recent meeting fifty young men agreed to become members at a fee of $3 a year. There is a prospect of increasing the membership to the full amount of the sum required, and there is already $175 on hand made by the lectures last winter. After the gymnasium is established ladies will be admitted to the benefit of the exercise, it being proposed to allow two afternoons in the week for their use.

DEDICATION OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH.—The dedication of the new Catholic church last Sunday was an event of great interest to a large portion of the citizens of this place and the surrounding country. For a town of its size Bellefonte contains an unusually large Catholic population, the church having been in vigorous existence here since early in the present century, and it may not be too much to say that numerically it is as strong as the strongest in our borough.

To this class of church people the approaching consecration of their new place of worship, constructed on so much grander scale than their old one which had served them so long, appeared as an event of great spiritual importance, and it was on account of such feeling that a large crowd began to assemble long before the time for the ceremonies to begin. There were many in the throng who were not Catholics attracted by curiosity and the interest they took in so important a matter as a church dedication, irrespective of denominational feeling.

At 10 o'clock a. m., the doors were opened and the expectant crowd quickly filed into the edifice. Tickets of admission had been sold at the price of $1, and from the size of the assemblage it was evident that more than a thousand had been sold. Only the middle rows of pews were at first occupied, the side pews remaining vacant for a reason that was apparent during the course of the ceremonies.

It was not long before the intonations of the priestly procession was heard at the entrance, and the wide doors being thrown open, with slow and stately tread they marched up the main aisle toward the altar. The part of the ritual suited to this stage of the services was in Latin and pronounced with that intoning sound peculiar to the Catholic service, which adds so much to its impressiveness. The procession consisted of Rev. W. J. Burke, of Bonneauville, Master of Ceremonies; Rev. J. J. Gormley, of Renovo, Subdeacon; Rev. J. Farren, of Tyrone, Celebrant; Rev. Nevin Fisher, of Philadelphia, who delivered the sermon; Rev. Father J. Cohl, of Snow Shoe; Very Rev. Joseph A. Boll, of Gettysburg, Deacon; Very Rev. E. Garvey, of Williamsport, and Very Rev. M. G. Powers, of Lock Haven, Deacons of Honor; Very Rev. Joseph Koch, of Shamokin, Vicar General, and Right Reverend Thomas McGovern, Bishop of the Diocese. Rev. Father McArdle, rector of the church, took no part in the ceremonies.

After this imposing array of ecclesiastics, clad in the habiliments of their priestly offices, reached the altar they knelt with their backs to the congregation and continued their intonations for some minutes. The usual ceremonies were gone through with in the most impressive manner. It is useless for one unacquainted with their order or meaning to attempt to describe them, but we have no doubt that they were replete with significance to the true Catholic. During the course of the services the venerable Bishop, attended by the procession of priest, and bearing the crozier as the symbol of his episcopal office, traversed the side aisles and consecrated the walls of the church by the application of holy water. After that was done the side rows of seats were quickly filled by those who had remained standing, making the large auditorium a mass of seated worshippers and spectators.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Nevin Fisher, Professor in Overbrook Seminary near Philadelphia. His discourse was in support of the claim of the Catholic church to pre-eminence among Christian churches, founded upon the power given to Peter who was the first Bishop of Rome. Father Fisher, who is yet a young man, is a native of Centre county, being a son of the late Rev. Mr. Fisher, of the Reformed church, and a brother of Dr. Fisher, of Zion, this county. He originally studied for the ministry of the church to which his father belonged. That he is a priest of decided ability was indicated by the character of his discourse.

The choir, which numbered some thirty or forty, performed an excellent part in the services. Some of the best singers of the town who took part were not members of the Catholic church, while that denomination contributed the best singers of their choir, Miss Alice Nolan being conspicuous in the solo parts. Mr. A. Lukenbach acted as director, and Miss Theresa Hibley, of Millsburg, was organist. The young men's orchestra performed important service in contributing the instrumental strains. The singers from a distance were Miss Schell and Mr. Young, of Tyrone, and Prof. Myers, of Ebensburg.

The first Catholic services in Bellefonte were conducted in 1824 by Father Hayden, who came here from Bedford to do mission work. Until a church was built they were held in a house on High street afterwards the residence of William Welsh. In 1828, under the pastorate of Rev. Father O'Reily, the church which has just been supplanted by the new one, was built, it being consecrated on Sunday, August 14, 1831. For some time after the Bellefonte parish was established it included Lock Haven, Jersey Shore, Howard, Hecla and Washington Furnace, Philipsburg and Snow Shoe. Up to 1868 it belonged to the Diocese of Philadelphia when it was included in the new Diocese of Harrisburg. The secular priests officiated until 1867, when the Benedictines were given control, which lasted until 1864, when the secular priests again took charge of it under the pastoral care of Rev. Thomas McGovern, who is now the Bishop of the Diocese. Since its establishment thirty-six priests have had charge of it, the present incumbent being Rev. Patrick McArdle, who commenced his pastorate in November 1880, and to whom is due the credit of being instrumental in the construction of the fine edifice dedicated on Sunday.

—Mr. Ira Moore, of Tyrone, spent Sunday with his Bellefonte friends, returning home on Monday.

—Hon. Leonard Rhone and wife leave next Thursday for an extended trip throughout the West and along the Pacific coast.

—Cards of invitation are out for the wedding of John G. Love, Esq., to Miss Nellie, daughter of ex-Sheriff D. Z. Kline, on Thursday, the 24th inst.

—A spark from a fire under an apple-butter kettle set fire to H. H. Weaver's house at Aaronsburg one day recently, but the result was not disastrous.

—Geo. O'Brien, Esq., formerly of this place, but for years a resident of Adrian, Mich., spent a portion of last week looking at the improvements about Bellefonte.

—J. A. Daly, esq., of this county, who is now in the government employ at Washington, occasionally sends us copies of Washington papers for which he has our thanks.

—The newly elected pastor of the Reformed church of this place, Rev. Miles O. Noll, will preach here on Sunday morning and evening and at Zion in the afternoon.

—George R. Patton, Esq., now one of the leading attorneys of Charlestown, W. Va., formerly of this place, has been spending a few days with friends hereabouts the past week.

—Cards are out for the marriage of Miss Emma G. Gray, daughter of Rev. G. T. Gray and Mr. Frank L. Arnold. The happy event will occur on the 30th inst. in the M. E. church at Curwensville.

—A union service will be conducted in the Methodist church Sabbath morning next. The fruits of the field will be used as an object lesson to inspire gratitude from the creature to the Creator. Services at 10:30 a. m., 7 p. m. Seats free—all welcome.

—A vote for FLEMING is a vote for a man nominated by a ring, who will be the tool of a ring if elected, and who has all his life had an idea that he was a little bit better than the man who worked for a living or whose clothes were soiled by labor.

—Mrs. R. C. Gilmore having returned from Philadelphia and New York with a large, complete and carefully selected stock of millinery goods of the latest styles, kindly invites the ladies of Bellefonte and vicinity to call and examine her goods. She has brought with her from Philadelphia a first-class milliner who will be at the service of her customers.

—The Messrs Remington Bros., of Pittsburg advertising agents, have established a branch office in the Tribune building, New York, and will hereafter give that same careful attention to Eastern business in their line that has characterized and built up their now prosperous agency in the smoky city. They are fair, honorable and prompt and we are glad to see this new evidence of their prosperity.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society met last Monday evening at the residence of Mr. Joel Johnson on East Bishop street and was in every respect a success. There were several recitations and a dialogue by some of the ladies, which were interesting and instructive, and a charade by the gentlemen. Music also enlivened the evening. The Society will meet next Monday evening a week at the home of Miss Mamie Gentzel.

—The following report about changing the location of the grangers' picnic heretofore held at William's Grove, may be interesting to our farmer readers, although it is denied in some quarters: It is said in the Lebanon Dispatch that Dr. T. A. Corryell, of Harrisburg, secretary of the granger association, in company with other representatives of the same association, visited Robert H. Coleman, September 25, and effected a twenty years' lease of grounds at Mount Getzeta. It is reported that the picnic of the association, which has heretofore been held at William's Grove, will hereafter be held at Mount Getzeta. A stock company will be formed with a liberal capital several buildings will be erected the largest of which will be 50 by 500 feet, and it has been decided to conduct the picnic on a much grander scale than ever before.

UNNECESSARY INQUESTS.—Whenever a person has been found dead, whether the circumstances were suspicious or otherwise, it has been the custom for the coroner, or more usually the nearest justice of the peace, to summon a jury with the greatest possible dispatch to "set on" the body and return a verdict. Of course, in most cases the objects to secure the fee which the law provides for inquests. Judge Furst gives it as his opinion that many of these inquests are unnecessary, they not being required by law. He instances nine recent cases of this kind in the county which were not called for by legal requirement, there being no reasonable cause for them, and he has directed that the costs incurred should not be paid. He says that where the cause of death is not doubtful and there is no reason for suspicion that implicates anyone, an inquest should not be held. The case of A. W. Ralston, who committed suicide in Philipsburg on the 28th of November, 1888, is numbered among the nine inquests mentioned above. He was a man afflicted with melancholy, was known to have made a prior attempt to take his own life, and the circumstances indicated that there was no legal reason for holding an inquest.

The other cases were the Pfoutz children who were in their father's house, a short distance east of Coburn, and on the night of the 1st of June last, during the flood, the house was swept away and they were drowned; Charles Cowper, who was bathing in Hays run on the 18th of August, 1889, about 10 o'clock, and was accidentally drowned; Patrick McGee, who came to his death from drunkenness by the excessive use of liquor and that no mark of violence could be found on his person; Frank Eckley, who came to his death by attempting to get upon a moving train of cars on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, near Millsburg, missing his hold, and the railroad employes not being in fault, but a case of gross negligence on his own part; L. E. Hoisler, who came to his death accidentally, while helping to load a boiler at the Bellefonte Boiler Works, the rope having slipped, and the deceased having been caught between the boiler and the skid.

It is evident that the intention of an inquest is to determine whether there has been any foul play in causing the death of a person, and as from the character of the deaths above mentioned there could be no ground for a suspicion of foul play, an inquiry was unnecessary and bills of costs in the cases were very properly rejected.

AS DELIGHTFUL AS IT WAS SUCCESSFUL.—The musical entertainment given in the Court House last Friday evening in the interest of the Presbyterian ladies, is said by all who attended it to have furnished an evening of rare enjoyment. It was favored with a crowded house which it so well deserved. The singers and performers consisted of Misses Speer, Aikens, Bayard, Hamilton and Mrs. Dr. Gearhart, of Tyrone, and Messrs. Keplinger, Voris, Weaver, Bassett, Bayard and Blanchard. The choruses were very lively and pleasing, and some magnificent solos and duets were rendered by Evan Blanchard, Esq., by Messrs. Keplinger and Voris, by Mrs. Dr. Gearhart, by Miss Aikens, and instrumental performance by Misses Hamilton and Aikens. Prof. Johnson C. Bane, the celebrated guitarist, gave several of his exquisite performances, in one instance accompanied on the piano by Miss Aikens. The recitations by Mr. Swoope were rendered in a masterly manner. The concert wound up with "Auld Lang Syne" sung by some of the old folks of the town, prominent among whom was the venerable Mrs. Armor in the 90 year of her age. The public and the ladies of the Presbyterian church are indebted to the good management of Mrs. Aikens and Mrs. J. C. Weaver for this really enjoyable entertainment. The proceeds were $108.

DEATH OF EX-SENATOR HALL.—The friends of Ex-Senator John G. Hall were painfully surprised last week to hear of his death which occurred in Liverpool, England, he having sailed for Europe some weeks ago. He was a prominent citizen of Elk county and had taken a leading part in the politics of that section on the Democratic side. He was born in Hubersburg, this county, in 1839, and received a portion of his education in Bellefonte. Going to Clearfield county he studied law with Hon. William A. Wallace, and moved to Ridgway, Elk county, in 1861, to practice his profession. In addition to his practice he became largely interested in the timber lands of that region. He served the counties of Clearfield, Elk and Forest in the house of representatives in 1870-1, was elected to the State Senate in 1878 and re-elected in 1882. He was useful both as a citizen and a member of the Democratic party. It is understood that he became ill on his passage out and died soon after landing at Liverpool, his disease being a form of heart affection. His wife, who was with him, will return with the remains.

TALES OF THE SEASON.—The snakes did extremely well this year. Considering the unfavorable character of the season they kept well to the front, claiming the attention of the newspapers and furnishing the snake editors with many interesting items. When the season opened it looked as if the reptiles were disposed to be shy and there was every appearance that it wasn't going to be much of a snake year. But when the truthful scribes who give attention to snake literature began to get in their work and the returns commenced to come in from the back districts the newspapers had more than their usual number of accounts of mammoth black snakes, vicious blowing vipers, rapid racers, venomous copperheads and sportive rattlers. It is doubtful whether any former year surpassed 1889 in the length, thickness, liveliness and activity of the serpents of different species which were brought to the attention of an appreciative public through the columns of the press.

If there is anything that in point of interest surpasses a good fish story it is a first-class snake story. But the season for such narratives has closed, as the reptiles have withdrawn from public life, and the gay and festive bear appears upon the scene to furnish items for enterprising journals. When the fall opens these interesting animals fill a journalistic vacancy occasioned by the disappearance of the snakes. This fall starts well with bear. There had been a little preliminary skirmishing with bear stories of minor interest already this season when the Lock Haven Democrat, which evidently has a bear editor, opened up last week in great shape with the following first-class bear narrative:

On Queen's Run mountain on Thursday night of this week three brothers, Jacob, Abraham and Dudley Wenker, had an adventure with a monster bear which they are not likely to forget, no matter if they live to be as old as Methuselah. It appears that the trio of brothers, accompanied by their dogs, were out on a hunt, when all at once the dogs gave notice by tremendous barking that they had run across larger game than coon. As fast as their legs could carry them the brothers hurried to the spot where the dogs were and to their surprise discovered a mammoth bear, an immense fellow, the sight of which in spite of their dogs and their guns, almost caused their hair to stand on end, "like quills upon the fretful porcupine."

That the bear was a rouser is proven by the fact that Jacob Wenker, who stands over six feet high in his stocking feet, said that it was taller than he was as it walked around on its hind feet, which it was doing when they first beheld it, in a ring about eighteen feet in diameter which the animal had made by breaking down all the brush inside of the circular space. In regular John L. Sullivan style the bear seemed to be daring either man or dog to walk into the ring and get knocked out, but the dogs were wise and kept their distance and as neither of the men cared about sparring for points with Mr. Bruin he was allowed to wear the belt, while Jacob bethought him of his Winchester rifle, which he coolly brought to his shoulder, sending a dose of cold lead into the body of the proud king of the forest. And now the excitement began, for the bear making several leaps cleared the ring and made directly for the man who had put the bullet into him. Just as the bear was about to strike Jacob on the breast, however, with his fore paws, crack went Abraham's rifle and with another bullet in the creature it fell all doubled up at Jacob's feet. This was the signal for the three dogs to pile upon their enemy and they made the attack in savage style, but the tusks was a tremendous one and the dogs found that they had more than met their match. The hunters found that they could not get another shot in, as the dogs and the bear were so mixed up that they could not tell which was which and were afraid to shoot for fear of killing one or more of the former. The fight between the dogs and bear lasted a long time, the bear all the time trying to get away, and when about a mile from the spot where it first began, the bear suddenly grabbed one of the dogs by the small of the back, shaking it like a terrier would a rat, inflicting injuries from which the poor dog died the next day. This seemed to take the snap out of the other two dogs, who were thoroughly exhausted by the long struggle and covered with blood from the bear's wounds, and their own, and being unable to any longer continue the battle, the monster suddenly made for the thicket and got away, leaving the hunters who had followed the fight in the lurch and greatly disappointed.

While the dogs and bear were having their first fight Jacob and Abraham missed their young brother Dudley, and as this was his first adventure with a bear he became somewhat alarmed. Looking around for him, however, they soon found him hanging to a sapling directly over the bear, with his legs drawn up so that the bear could not reach him. After coming down he said he was mightily afraid that the sapling would break and that he did not want to meet a bear again after night, for remember this adventure was at night during a moon hunt. Had it been in the daytime the bear most likely would have been captured.

Several parties say they have seen a bear in these mountains which was the largest they ever saw. Most likely it is the same one, which Mr. Wenker says would have dressed over 400 pounds.

—Applebutter, Jellies, Jams, Honey Pickles, Olives, Table Oil, and Ketchup at Sechler & Co's.

—Last Sunday Lucy, a two-year old child of Mr. John Corman, residing on Quaker Hill, this place, was choked to death by the kernel of a peanut that lodged in her windpipe. The physicians who were called to her assistance, Drs. Dorworth, VanTries and Seibert, were unable to dislodge the obstruction. An examination was made after the death of the child which showed that portions of the nut had lodged below the larynx.

—After an illness of about two weeks Homer Stover, son of John H. Stover, Esq., of Union township, died at the residence of his father on Monday night last. Mr. Stover, who had been in the employ of his Uncle, Wilbur Twitmore, of this place, for a couple of years, went to Johnstown shortly after the flood to follow his trade, that of tin-smithing. He returned home a few weeks ago, feeling unwell, and was shortly afterwards prostrated with typhoid fever. He was a young man of estimable character, esteemed by all who knew him, and whose early death will be sincerely mourned by a large circle of friends.
