

Kentucky's Bloody Factions.

Two Families Come Together in Bloody Collision.

News was received at Louisville last week of an engagement that had come off some days before between the Howard and Turner factions near Harlan Court House. James Dean, of Howard's party, was killed and five others wounded, among whom were Wilson Howard and one of his principals supporters named Jennings. It is said that Howard's injuries may prove fatal. Three of the Turner party were also wounded.

The Turners have been in possession of the town for more than a week. Their leader is John Turner, just 17 years of age. Howard's forces have been in camp one mile from town. There are about forty men in each crowd, all equipped with Winchester and revolvers. Turner led his followers in an attack on the Howard camp. The attacking party got in the first work, but were finally driven back to town.

A report reached Pineville at 11 o'clock this morning that the Howard forces in Harlan enraged by the battle of yesterday, and the probably fatal wounding of their leader, left camp last night and started for Harlan Court House, intending to kill everybody that belongs to the opposition and burn the town. G. C. Huff, Clerk of the Harlan County Court, at Pineville, is afraid to go home, though he has no connection whatever with the trouble.

The trouble began two months ago, when State troops were sent up to enforce order. Some time since they were withdrawn, since which the outlaws have thrown off all restraints and organized under the leadership of Wils Howard, and are encamped near the town. The Law and order forces which comprise the Turner crowd, under the leadership of County Judge Wilson Lewis, are entrenched in the Court House. On Saturday afternoon John Howard, aged 19 years, brother of Wils, visited the town where his father lives. Finley Smith, son of Wash Smith, one of the wealthiest men in Harlan county, was also in town. The Smiths were related by marriage to John Cawood, the wealthy farmer who, with his hired man, Ezekiah Hall, was killed on Friday, October 11, by Wils Howard's gang. A nephew of John Cawood, named Charles Cawood, married a daughter of Wash Smith and the sister of Finley Smith. They belong to the Law and Order party.

John Cawood was a brother-in-law of County Judge Lewis. Wils Howard wanted him out of the way, and he and Hall were killed.

The Law and Order party were greatly exercised over this, and were considering means by which Cawood and Hall's slayers could be brought to justice when the last fight occurred. Just how it was brought about no one seemed to know, and the point is disputed as to whether Finley Smith or John Howard fired first.

The shooting occurred about 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Howard communicated with his brother, who vowed vengeance, and on Sunday intelligence was received that word had been dispatched to all the outlaws to rendezvous within a short distance of the town. Thereupon Judge Lewis called the citizens of the village together, and after arming themselves they took up quarters in the Court House building. Harlan Court House is so situated that a war may be waged upon men in it with the attacking party well protected. The town has about 400 inhabitants.

Simultaneously with the above information came the intelligence that a man named Craig was killed last Sunday by ex-Deputy United States Marshal James Giles. The killing grew out of the murder of Bob Craig by Howard's party two months ago. Craig had been paying attention to Giles's wife during the Deputy's trip from home. Giles came here last week as a special bailiff to guard prisoners.

The Last of the Sea Serpent.

Captain William T. Smith, of the barque Nautilus, has written the following letter from off Valparaiso:—"The sea serpent is dead. On the night of the 15th of last month, off Cape Berkly, Galapagos Island, about nine a. m., his snake-ship was seen about thirty yards from the ship. The sea was smooth and very little wind, so we all had a good look at him. We estimated his length at about eighty feet, and he was about as large as a barrel in the thickest part. The head was shaped like a snake, only on the extreme end of the upper jaw there was a ridge or bunch. The head was about three feet in length, and about two feet back of the head was a mane of hair. No fins were seen. The tail was long and tapering, and shaped like that of an eel. We all had a good view of him while he was slowly coming toward the ship. The captain and mate loaded two bomb guns, banged away at him, and for about fifteen minutes there was quite a "circuit," lashing the water with his tail and running his head out four or five feet. At last he ran out his head, whizzed around and sank—dead. Both bombs hit him. When he went down he was not more than twenty feet from the ship, and so, of course, we had a good look at him. We spoke the barque Bertha, Capt. Jenkins, a few days after, and he told us that a large serpent was seen off Redondo Rock, by Captain Jones in the Camilla several years ago.

Please Tell.

If the Republican nominee will satisfactorily answer the several questions here propounded, he will greatly oblige, &c.

Please tell us, Mr. Boyer, why you opposed the ballot reform bill? Wasn't that a good measure and don't you want honest elections?

Also, Mr. Boyer, please inform the people why you opposed an investigation of the Sinking Fund. Isn't it right to have things straightened up and made plain to the understanding of the citizen voters of the Commonwealth? If the Sinking Fund transaction was a proper one, why were you ashamed to have it investigated?

Will you kindly explain, Mr. Boyer, before you ask the support of workingmen of the State, why the Republican Legislature killed the labor bills which the miners and laborers asked them to pass? The men who earn their bread in the sweat of their faces would like to know this.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Mrs. Harrison a Social Failure.

Mrs. Harrison bids fair to prove a social failure—not because she is not a good woman or is intentionally disagreeable. But it is a deplorable fact that both the president and his wife seem to lack that personal magnetism and tact that count for more in the White House than party fealty or puritanical principles.

Mrs. Harrison is colder even in a social way than her husband. If he is snow then she is ice, and the manner assumed during the Knights' reception at the White House, if it is to be considered a fair sample of her social code, cannot fail to make her intensely unpopular.

In striking contrast to the White House reception was that of Calumet Place, tendered by Mrs. John A. Logan. The presidential reception to the Knights was not decided until Monday morning, while some weeks ago Mrs. Logan expressed her intention to in some manner acknowledge their presence.

She proposed to bear all expenses herself. Washington commanderies gallantly refused to allow that, and, while her liberality was not taxed, courtesy and tact were laid under heavy strain. But she rose to the occasion, and during the long hours of reception stood up, not only allowing her hand to be shaken, but returning a cordial pressure, smiling into the faces of her guests and impartially dropping hasty little words of welcome or adieu.

MRS. LOGAN AND MRS. HARRISON AT ODDS

Between Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Logan the cabinet ladies this encampment has been the means of inaugurating what is probably an all winter war. The story goes that, anticipating the importance of her intended reception, Mrs. Logan, contrary to her habit since her widowhood, personally called on the ladies of the cabinet and invited them to receive with her. They all declined on one pretense or another, and to make it worse Mrs. Harrison did not invite Mrs. Logan to receive with her at the White House.

Considering the invitation extended to the cabinet ladies and that she was the only woman knighted in America, her husband's relation to the order, and her own importance on this occasion, Mrs. Logan, it is currently thought, had every reason to expect discrimination in her favor.

But it is hinted that Mrs. Harrison is too good a politician to foster an incipient presidential boom by pushing Mrs. Logan to the front. The hold upon the G. A. R., and the Masonic order which Mrs. Logan is evidently determined to maintain, can scarcely be explained on any other ground than her well-known interest in the future of General Alger, of Michigan. So, whatever slight the administration may put on Mrs. Logan, it could not be construed here on any other ground.

A Hard Fight Between Outlaws and a Sheriff's Posse.

Over One Hundred Shots Were Fired in the Battle and Some Deputies Killed and Six Others Were Wounded.

BIRMINGHAM, Oct. 26.—Rube Burrows, the noted Alabama train robber, murderer and outlaw, has again defeated a sheriff's posse and added two men to his long list of victims. Late yesterday afternoon, Burrows and one member of his gang, supposed to have been Ben Thornton, were surrounded near Brookville, Blount county, but the outlaws opened fire, and at the first volley Deputy Sheriff Henry Anderson and Penwood Ward fell dead, the former shot through the head and the latter through the breast.

The officers returned the fire, and over 100 shots were exchanged. The posse were armed only with shot guns and pistols, and as they were 200 yards from the outlaws they were at great disadvantage, as the latter were armed with repeating rifles of large caliber. James Herron, one of the posse, was dangerously wounded and five others whose names could not be learned received slight flesh wounds. The outlaws fired only at one point in the surrounding line and cutting a gap in it they made a rush for liberty and escaped, no pursuit being made by the posse, who remained to care for the dead and wounded.

Gathering up their killed and wounded the posse returned to Oneonta, the county seat, to await assistance and better arms. Sheriff Morris secured no help here and said he would make no further attempt to capture Burrows with the arms at his command.

They Owe It Nothing But a Drubbing.

Neither the Knights of Labor nor any other workmen in the State owe the Republican party anything. The Republican majority in the late Legislature clubbed the labor bills to death and Boyer, the now candidate of that party for State Treasurer, helped to do it. And yet he has the brass to stand up and ask the workmen to vote for him! Mr. Powderly and the K. of L. are in favor of the Australian system of voting, because it protects the employee in an honest exercise of the franchise, but Boyer is opposed to it, for the reason that he doesn't want the employee or the poor man to have a fair show at the polls. He considers them chattels, mere slaves, as it were, and thinks they should be controlled and made to vote just as their employers tell them. Workingmen, remember this on the 5th of November when you come to cast your votes.—L. C. Haven Democrat.

Rosecrans Stand For Lincoln.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Edmund Kirk, in a long communication to the Sun tells of how, in the spring of 1863, he was sent by Horace Greeley to ask General Rosecrans to take the Republican nomination for President against President Lincoln. Rosecrans was in the field, and replied: "No, my place is here. The country gave me my education, and so has a right to my military services, and it educated me for precisely this emergency. So this, and not the Presidency, is my post of duty, and I cannot, without violating my conscience, leave it. But let me tell you, and I wish you would tell your friends who are moving in this matter, that you are mistaken about Mr. Lincoln. He is in his right place. I am in a position to know, and if you live you will see that I am right about him."

ATTENTION, DEMOCRATS!

Even our enemies admit that we have an even chance to carry the State. Remember the day, November 5th.

Quay's Boodle in Virginia.

A correspondent of the New York Sun gives the following account of the part boodle is playing in the Mahone campaign in Virginia: The State is fairly alive with Quay boodle. In the county of Henrica alone $12,000 were placed on Saturday, and this is considered a minor feat in Richmond the common belief among the negroes is that each is to receive the sum of $2 the day he votes for Mahone. As yet this money is in the hands of his county managers, who are holding it for use in the last few days. There is no doubt that Mahone has more money at his disposal now than has ever before been used in a Virginia campaign. It is as plentiful as it was in the Dudley Indiana campaign. Evidently Quay and Mahone expect to make some big coup by its means, though just how is not apparent.

From inside sources it is learned that Mahone expects to more than make up in the southwest what he will lose in eastern Virginia. He has placed his boodle out there, and has his forest clans at work. He has estimated in his calculations that the whole southwest can be bought, and it is said that one-half of Quay's money has been put there. McKinney, the Democratic nominee, is out there now, somewhere in the mountain fastnesses. He is cut off from all communication with headquarters, and the last intelligence from him, just received, relates to his actions three days ago. He has been put out in the woods and told to hew his way among the mountaineers, and to expect to travel all day without seeing a soul, and to make his best speeches to groups of a half dozen.

"McKinney hasn't got no boodle," said a mountaineer, giving an account of his start on his wild campaign. "But he's got the most beautiful smile I ever see, and comin' from the high end of his six foot the feller's kin hear a voice jess as soft as a women's an' as clear as a stream a ripplin'."

Thus it is evident that the Democrats expect much from the charm of McKinney's personality. What that will result in only the day of election will show, as the field of his operations is too far off to hear definitely from it before ten days.
