Plain Talk to Farmers.

Secretary Colman Illustrates the Working of the Tariff Laws.

Ex-Secretary Colman, in his recent speech before the Wheat Growers' Convention, at St. Louis, speaking of the effect upon the farmers of our tariff laws...

I believe in a tariff to raise customs duties, in sufficient amount with the sum raised by the internal revenue system to defray the necessary expenses of the Government economically and honestly administered.

The Constitution in so many words says there is no class in the Constitution in this country, and yet Congress proceeds to make a class privileged to tax the consumers of all of their products, keeping all competition away from them, and enabling them to derive large profits on their goods, and thus to lay up princely fortunes secured from the people who have earned the money they obtained by the sweat of their brow.

Let us suppose, however, that instead of buying his goods in England he waits until he gets to New York and buys them. The American manufacturers are protected by the same average duty, and freight, besides, so he pays the $470, not into Uncle Sam's pocket at all, but into the pockets of the American manufacturers, who, by law, being protected from foreign competition, can charge this extra price, and put it into their own pockets, and the Government gets not one cent of it.

Electricity Again Does its Deadly Work. A Horse Roasted to Death a Drifter Thrown and a Police Sergeant Knocked Senseless in the Street.

New York, Nov. 4.—An electric light current this morning roasted a horse to death, threw the driver to the street, and knocked a police sergeant senseless. As in the Peck case, the deadly current was carried to its victims through a telephone wire.

Into Butler Bates' house at Webster, Mass., a partridge flew, a day or two ago, and nimble George Tracy caught it as it crept about the room.

William Boston and William McCree, neighbors residing near Homerville, Chester county, had an altercation on Wednesday night, during which McCree was stabbed in several places and may die.

It is said that the persons who murdered an unknown tramp near Beaver Falls about two months ago have been arrested. An incident in the crime was the heading of the victim after burial to prevent identification.

which compelled him to release his hold. A second effort was more successful, and soon after being carried to the sidewalk the sergeant slowly recovered his senses.

Christopher Columbus. What he Did 397 Years Ago for Us Americans.

Just three hundred and ninety-seven years ago yesterday Christopher Columbus, bearing the royal banner of Spain in his hand, landed at San Salvador.

This event which the people of America are preparing to commemorate worthily in 1892, was the result of a faith so strong and an energy so restless that it is difficult to adequately portray the personality which embodied them.

Columbus was not a mere visionary who made a lucky hit. No doubt the stories of medieval sailors about the mysterious land beyond the western seas fired his imagination.

While on his way out of Spain the courier of Isabella overtook the weary traveler at the Bridge of Pines, almost in sight of Grenada.

There ought to be some special feature in the exposition of 1892 that will typify this great spirit of adventurous confidence in God.

John Rogers, the veteran coon hunter of Moodus, bagged the three biggest coons the other morning that probably ever were taken at one time in the history of the sport in Connecticut.

William Boston and William McCree, neighbors residing near Homerville, Chester county, had an altercation on Wednesday night, during which McCree was stabbed in several places and may die.

It is said that the persons who murdered an unknown tramp near Beaver Falls about two months ago have been arrested.
