Care of House Plants.

Whenever an herbaceous plant begins to drop its leaves it is certain that its health is impaired in some way. This may be due to several causes, such as being pot-bound, over-watered, over-heated, exposure to cold or the application of powerful stimulants, as guano, strong liquid manure, alkalies, etc., or to some other cause, which has destroyed the feeding roots of the plant, thus inducing disease and speedy death in all cases where remedial measures are not speedily restorted to. The steps taken in these cases by the amateur are generally the most disastrous course that could be taken toward the plant short of it with water and applying strong stim-

I cannot conceive why people water plants so much, nor why they should think water a specific remedy for all the ills to which plants are heir. The following is a case in point. Artificial Teeth.

The finest artificial teeth are made of the best ivory, but the great majority of false masticators now in use are simply pieces of specially prepared hard porcelain. The following is one of the processes adopted for their manufacture: Fine calcined or roasted quartz powder, well ground fluorspar, china clay, and a very little oxide of tin are very intimately mixed and ground together, and afterwards made into a soft paste with water. This paste is poured into molds of various kinds and sizes of teeth, and allowed to set. The plastic grinders are then transferred to a furnace, where they are "cured"-that is, half baked or hardened. When this has been done they are covered with an enamel made of paste of spar and quartz, and finally subjected to an intense heat, until they are sufficiently baked, when they are ready for the dentist .-- Surgical Report-

A remarkable funeral procession paraded the streets of Peking a few weeks ago. It was the formal public celebration of the burial of Tsching Tschu, a Grand Chamberlain and brother-in-law of Prince Kung. The bier was carried by 80 men, preceded by 48 flag bearers, 8 camels and 24 white horses. One hundred and sixty men followed, bearing 16 red planks, on which were painted in many colored letters the name and titles of the dead nobleman. The whole procession was a mile and a half long.
