Hotels.

TO THE PUBLIC. In consequence of the similarity of the names of the Parker and Potter Hotels, the proprietor of the Parker House has changed the name of his hotel to COAL EXCHANGE HOTEL. He has also repaired, repainted and otherwise improved it, and has fitted up a large and comfortable parlor and reception room on the first floor. WM. PARKER, 33 17 Philipsburg, Pa.

CENTRAL HOTEL, MILESBERG, PA.

A. A. KOEHLER, Proprietor. This new and commodious hotel, located opposite the depot, Milesburg, Centre county, has been entirely refitted, furnished and replenished throughout, and is now second to none in the county in the character of accommodations offered the public. Its table is supplied with the best of the market, affords the purest and choicest liquors, its stable has attentive hostlers, and every convenience and comfort is extended to its guests. Through travelers on the railroad will find this an excellent place to lunch or procure a meal, as all trains stop there about 25 minutes. 23 24

THE CUMMINGS HOUSE

BELLEFONTE, PA. Having assumed the proprietorship of this fine located and well known hotel, I desire to inform the public that while it will have no bar, and be run strictly as a temperance hotel, it will furnish to its patrons all the comforts, conveniences and hospitalities offered by others. Its table will not be surpassed by any. Its rooms are large and comfortable. Its stabling is the best in town, and the prices to transient guests and regular boarders will be very reasonable. The citizens of the town will find in the basement of my hotel a FIRST-CLASS MEAT MARKET at which all kinds of Meats can be purchased at the very lowest rates. I earnestly solicit a share of the public patronage. 33 13 GOTLEIB HAAG.

Medical.

MARCH ——— APRIL ——— MAY ———

Are the best months in which to purify your blood. During the long, cold winter, the blood becomes thin and impure, the body becomes weak and tired, the appetite may be lost, and just now the system craves the aid of a reliable medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiarly adapted to purify and enrich the blood, to create a good appetite and to overcome that tired feeling. It increases in popularity every year for it is the ideal spring medicine.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

"Every spring for years I have made it a practice to take from three to five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, because I know it purifies the blood and thoroughly cleanses the system of all impurities. That languid feeling, sometimes called 'spring fever' will never visit the system that has been properly cared for by this never-failing remedy." W. H. LAWRENCE, Ed. of Agricultural Epitomist, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE BEST SPRING MEDICINE

"I have taken three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and consider it the best blood medicine I have ever taken. It builds me up, makes me sleep better, gives me a good appetite and improves my health generally." Mrs. A. P. LARSON, Portland, Me.

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

A Powder Manufactory.

The Works Where Millions of Pounds Are Made.

The manufacture of powder in this country is almost controlled by the Duponts, who are credited with owning twenty-seven of the thirty-three plants in the United States. Their works at Wilmington, Del., however, are the largest they own, and it is there that the greater part of the gunpowder used in this country by sportsmen or for blasting is manufactured.

These mills are on the Dupont estate, comprising about 3000 acres of valuable land, just outside of the city of Wilmington. Here on this domain they have established what may be termed a small principality. The old manor house on the banks of the Brandywine is still the Dupont homestead, but there are also a number of other magnificent homes on either side occupied by the various branches of the family. They live there among themselves.

While there are public roads running through the Dupont estate, from which a view of the magnificent dwellings can be had, it is utterly impossible to get within the powder works without the permission of some one in authority. This precaution is taken owing to the dangerous nature of the contents. So careful are the members of the firm that they will not carry or allow any person to carry a match anywhere within the enclosure of the mills. It is even said that no Dupont was ever seen with a match box in his possession.

A propos it is related that a short time ago a number of matches were discovered in one of the mills. No one knew how they got there, and it was thought at the time that some person had maliciously placed them in the mill. The matter was reported to the office, and one of the Duponts went to the mill and assisted in picking up the matches.

This will never ask a workman to do anything that will not do themselves. Frequently the Duponts have exposed themselves in places that were considered dangerous in order to reassure the workmen. Two members of the family have lost their lives by taking these risks. They were Alexis Dupont, who was killed in a big explosion in 1857 at the Wilmington works, and Lamont Dupont, who was killed by the explosion of nitroglycerine at the Repanno Works in 1884. But these fatalities have never deterred the other members of the family from placing their lives in jeopardy.

There are thirty-one separate buildings in the Wilmington works, and a pleasing feature about them is that they are grouped in one spot, but are distributed over an extended stretch of country. The grinding mills are located along the various water courses, while the magazines are to be found all hidden away in the woods. These mills make gunpowder for the whole world. They have been severely taxed during times of war, but have always managed to turn out enough powder to keep the armies supplied.

In making blasting powder all kinds of wood are used. Willow is considered the best, poplar comes next, and then oak and chestnut. The average man who goes off for a gunning trip has a very poor conception of the manner in which the powder in his flask was made. That the most expensive of the various kinds of powder manufactured, and only willow stems that would grow through a finger ring are used for this purpose. In preparing it the branches are trimmed of the bark and of all knots. They are then placed in the air-tight resort with a heavy rubber sole to prevent any charcoal from the process of transformation into charcoal. Then it goes through the various mills, grinding, composition, rolling, pressing and glazing, until it reaches the drying room and then the can, when it is ready for the sportsman to kill his game.

The mills are located along the banks of the Brandywine, about several hundred feet from one another. They are run by water power. The grinding mills are of two stories high, and the walls are of the stoutest masonry. The roofs are of iron, and so placed that when an explosion occurs they fly off, and the force of the explosion is spent before it can do much damage to the side walls. It is then only necessary to pick up the roofs and put them on the buildings again.

Many of the mills along the river work almost automatically and there is never any one in a rolling mill when it is in operation. All the workmen wear shoes with heavy rubber soles to prevent any possibility of an explosion. When a rolling mill is in operation he is off at a safe distance, as there is always danger of the powder becoming dry under the revolving wheel and exploding.

In what are known as the composition mills the sulphur, saltpetre and charcoal are mixed. In the press mills the composition is pressed into cakes four inches square and a half inch deep. This is done by water pressure. It is in these press rooms where the most sudden and terrific explosions take place. They are more fatal to human life on account of the necessity of a more regular attendance of the workmen. In the grinding mills the powder is ground and separated by sieves into the various grades. It then goes through the dust mill, where it is freed from particles of foreign matter. Then it is ready for the glazing mill, where that shining appearance is imparted to it by running it through revolving barrels filled with metal bullets. After this it is taken to the dry house.

Throughout all the various processes the powder is kept in a dampened condition. In the glazing mill a workman is always in attendance with a watering-pot and sprinkling the powder. In the drying room the powder is spread upon large frames covered with canvases and the room is heated by fire. This is the final process, and from the dry-house the powder goes to the packing department and from there it is sent out for use.—Philadelphia Press.

"Standing with reluctant feet Where the brook and river meet," is a period of "maidenhood" which is perilous in the extreme to a vigorous, healthy womanhood. Reckless exposure, at certain times, which induces irregularities, has wrecked many a fair young life. To a girl afflicted with derangements of a uterine nature Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is of inestimable value. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrappers, and faithfully carried out for many years.

STEAMED PUFF-PUDDING.—Butter coffee-cups and place them in your steamer; drop first a spoonful of water, the berries, steamed apples, or any fruit or sauce you happen to have; then put in batter to fill the cup and steam twenty-five minutes. To make the batter, stir in one pint of flour, two spoonfuls of baking-powder and a little salt, then add milk enough to make it quite soft. Serve the pudding with a sauce made of two eggs, one-half cup of butter, and an egg of sugar, beaten well with a cup of boiling milk and one of the fruits used for the pudding.

WE CAUTION ALL AGAINST THEM.

The unprecedented success and merit of Ely's Cream Balm—a real cure for catarrh, hay fever and cold in the head—has induced many adventurers to place catarrh medicines bearing some resemblance in appearance, style or name upon the reputation of Ely's Cream Balm. Don't be deceived. Buy only Ely's Cream Balm. Many in your immediate locality will testify in highest commendation of it. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price 50 cents.

—Henry Stratford, of Kingston, Ontario, has received a letter from England which went into the sea when the steamship Oregon was wrecked and sunk in 1886. The letter in question was found buried in the sands of the beach near Cape Hatteras, N. C. The mail bag containing the missive drifted 400 miles from the scene of the wreck.

"Every Spring," says one of the best housewives in New England, "We feel the necessity of taking a good medicine to purify the blood, and we all take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the children free from humors, my husband says it gives him a good appetite, and for myself I am sure I could never do all my work if it was not for this splendid medicine. It makes me feel strong and cheerful, and I am never troubled with headache or that tired feeling, as I used to be."

ORANGE PIE.—We make an orange pie that is delicious. Mix a tablespoonful of cornstarch with a little cold water and put it into a cup of boiling water till it thickens. When cool add the juice of one sour orange, a little of the grated peel of a sweet one and the yolks of two eggs. Bake with one crust in a slow oven. When done beat the whites of the eggs with a spoonful of sugar to a stiff froth, spread it on the pie and brown slightly in the oven.

Mellin's Food not only contains in itself all the elements of nutrition, but presents them in such form that the infant can digest and assimilate them with perfect ease. "I have had more and better success with Mellin's Food than with any and all others I have tried," says a physician.

FAT FOR FRYING.—Beef fat is much cheaper than lard for frying, and if nicely prepared the flavor is not objectionable. Cut the fresh suet in pieces and cover with cold water; let it stand a day, changing the water once in that time. This takes out the peculiar tallow taste. Now put it in an iron kettle, with a half teacup of milk to each pound of suet, and let it cook very slowly till the fat is clear and light brown in color, and till the sound of the cooking has ceased. The pieces may be loosened from the bottom with a spoon, but it is not to be stirred. If it burns the taste is ruined. Now let it stand and partly cool, then pour off into cups to become cold. The fat left still in the pieces may be pressed out for less particular uses.

Let Him Speak Out.

Lock Haven Democrat. If William A. Wallace wants the Democratic nomination for governor why don't he come out openly and become a candidate? We do not see the need of so much mystery, so much secrecy, so much slip and go easy trotting about from one city to another. All recognize Mr. Wallace's ability, his organizing qualities, his aptitude for work and the fact that he is a national man. These are all in his favor, but he must not expect that he can achieve the nomination without anybody knowing it, for that can't be done. Let him come out openly, boldly, and stand his chances. Mr. Randall is said to be for Mr. Wallace, but Mr. Randall is sick and cannot take as active a part as he otherwise might. Mr. Scott is afraid that the nomination of Mr. Wallace would be a setback at ex-President Cleveland, as the Clearfield Senator is said to be for Governor Hill as the Democratic nominee in 1892. Therefore Mr. Scott is not for Mr. Wallace. But mysterious considerations are not what the Democracy of Pennsylvania are particularly anxious about just now. They want a candidate for Governor and they want him free from all other than gubernatorial considerations. The presidency will take care of itself afterwards. It is hardly a question to be settled by the Pennsylvania gubernatorial election.

—Mistress (kindly)—"Jane, I hear you have been seen in the park with my husband." —Jane (defiantly)—"Yes, ma'am, I have. Mistress still more kindly—"Well, Jane, you are a good girl, and I dislike to lose you, but I cannot have any one in the house who keeps bad company."—New Haven Nutmeg.
