

The Old Pathfinder Made Happy. A Balance in His Favor Instead of a Shortage Against Him.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—A most curious incident illustrative of delay in correcting official mistakes in the departments at Washington has just come to light as a sequence of the passage of the bill placing John O. Fremont upon the retired list of the army with the rank of Major General.

The first Republican candidate for the Presidency is a most picturesque patriarch, seventy-one years old, and has been for years in circumstances, if not of actual poverty, at least straightened.

In 1845, when a Lieutenant in the army he seized and held with an iron grip, the region which is now the State of California, and no one denies that the nation is indebted to him for that gilded member of the sisterhood.

While engaged in this service, Lieutenant Fremont's accounts with the Government were left in such a state that he has a ways been regarded as an official debtor to the Government to the amount of $19,000; and he has been one of the chief sorrows of General Fremont's later years that he was unable to square this balance against him, a record of which was in the office of the Third Auditor of the Treasury.

The other day General Fremont called at the office of Second Comptroller Gilkerson, of the Treasury, whose business it would be to pass upon the balance against him, the old man in trembling tones stating to Colonel Gilkerson that his financial circumstances are such that if his salary as a retired Major General were retained, to meet this alleged shortage, he would be for some time actual want.

At this request the Second Comptroller investigated the accounts and greatly to his surprise discovered that instead of General Fremont being a debtor to the United States, the Government had actually owed him for over forty years $21,000. The records were perfectly clear and it was proved beyond dispute that through a mistake in book-keeping, Lieutenant Fremont had been charged with $19,000 for which a voucher was on file, and that by another clerical error he had not been credited with a voucher for $21,000, which he had expended under the direction of the War Department.

When General Fremont called again to ask Colonel Gilkerson whether some arrangement might be made to pay his supposed indebtedness by installments, he was so unprepared for the glad news awaiting him that he fainted. Thursday a warrant for the amount due him was made out, duly approved and signed.

Put a strange Spell on Him.

Under Altrahypnotic Influence Henry Latchav Pines and Wanders.

SHAMOKIN, May 13.—Henry Latchav, a miner, aged forty, lives at Fidler Green near this place, with two older brothers and two sisters, all, like himself, unmarried.

He ate his supper and started out for a short walk. While out a peculiar spell settled upon him and he was unable to return home. All night long he journeyed through the mountains, arriving at Catawissa in the morning.

Still the unseen influence held him and he went over into Lazenby county through the mining region. Thence he journeyed on foot to Williamsport, and although he had money in his pockets, the same strange influence would not permit him to use it to supply his craving appetite. He slept in the open air and fasted for eight days, having in the meantime aimlessly wandered through Watsontown, Milton, Northumberland to Sunbury, where the spell being broken, he purchased a railroad ticket and returned home.

His brothers in the meantime became thoroughly alarmed by his absence. Aided by neighbors they searched the mountains for miles around, supposing he had been taken sick and was unable to return home. His elder brother tells the following story:

"We are Protestants and believe in our bible and our religion. Some time ago there lived in this neighborhood a young woman whose delight was to argue on the subject of religion. She would come to our house and start a dispute and try in every way to convince us she was right and we were wrong, with a view, no doubt, to get us to join her church. One evening she came in, bringing her Bible with her, and began her argument. The girls were indignant and said she had no right to bring her Bible in our house.

When she went over to the other who was sitting in one corner of the room, made a few passes about his head, tapped him on the shoulder, when he nearly jumped to his feet, and although he has no learning, began to quote Scripture and defend the religion of the woman.

"After he had finished his defense of her belief she read a few passages from St. John and departed. Up to that time Henry had been a strong, robust man, but immediately his health began to fail. He acted strangely at times, claiming he was compelled to act under irresistible power. The woman moved away from the neighborhood and he, I believe, a resident of Shamokin; but the influence put upon him at the time seems to return at intervals. I don't know whether there is anything in mesmerism or not, or whether it is the devil, or what it is, but I do know that my brother has never been himself since.

Fine Grove Mentions.

And now it is Doctor Krebs who has located at Millroy, Milton county, where he has swung his dental shingle to the breeze.

On the 29th inst., Mr. Ed. Riley and one of our fairest ladies, Miss Emma Beck, will launch their boat on the sometimes holier-than-usual of matrimony; however, we wish it may be calm.

The usual programme for memorial day is being arranged. Prominent speakers have been invited and have accepted. Vocal and instrumental music will be furnished. Services at the Gatesburg cemetery at 10 o'clock, a. m.; Pine Grove cemetery at 1 o'clock, p. m. Fairbrook cemetery at 3:30, p. m.

strong mind he would do honor to his constituents in the Commissioners' office again. Taxpayers, look well to your interests.

Prof. Samuel Gilliland Rudy, son of Henry Rudy, who was recently elected Superintendent of Huntingdon County's public schools, laid the foundation for his education in the old stone school house, where he used to stomp his toes and make ugly faces over difficult problems.

R. H. Baal, Esq., whom we formerly mentioned as being engaged in locating an R. R. across Tussey Mountains, reports favorable progress, with a grade of two and three-tenths feet. Considering the accuracy of his work, besides an additional force, we are constrained to believe that the road will be constructed on the route heretofore mentioned.

The town is all in a buzz. Carpenters' saw and hatchet are heard in all directions. Saml. Martz, one of the victims of the late fire, is now located in the old Post Office building, as a first class boot and shoe maker.

Books, Magazines, &c. The New England Magazine for May opens with an article on Mr. Howells, by Hamlin Garland. The remarkable change in spirit and purpose which marks Mr. Howells' later novels, especially A Hazard of New Fortunes is what is chiefly dwelt upon. The article is accompanied by a new portrait of Mr. Howells. A new portrait of George Kenna faces a stirring poem entitled "Kara," by Mr. Allen Eastman Cross. Mr. William M. Salter, in a brief article on Ethics in Politics, urges the divorce of national affairs from party considerations. The principal illustrated article in this number is a bright account, by Miss Elizabeth Walling, of a journey in a runaway stage through Massachusetts. The paper abounds with interesting bits of antiquity and gossip. A beautifully illustrated article on "Some Old-Borougher Fossils," by Mrs. Marion A. McBride, is also full of pleasant antiquity, and shows how faithfully some of our fathers' household gods are being preserved. Mrs. Moore Tiffany contributes another of her stories of the Fugitive Slaves, there are other articles touching points of New England history—the one on the Mashpee Indians; another on "How Rhode Island received the Constitution." There is an article on the Cotton- gin, with portrait of Whitney and other illustrations; a curious article on Dreams, by Horatio King; some unusually good love stories and some poetry worth reading—which is saying not a little, as the magazine goes nowadays.

PIANOS AND ORGANS. The improved method of fastening strings of Pianos, invented by us, is one of the most important improvements ever made, making the instrument more richly mellow in tone, more durable, and less liable to get out of tune. Both the Mason & Hamlin Organs and Pianos excel chiefly in that which is the chief excellence in any musical instrument, quality of tone. Other things, though important, are much less so than this. An instrument with unmusical tones cannot be good. Illustrated catalogues of new styles, introduced this season, sent free.
