

Faculty reception, which was held in the armory, had to be limited to half an hour instead of two, as was at first intended.

Commencement day came like all of the preceding ones, clear and bright. A veritable June morning, indeed. By 9:30 the chapel was packed with a sweltering mass of humanity, relations and friends of the graduates, who came, many from great distances, to see their loved ones perform the last duties of school days, and be with them upon their entry into the world as men and women, and no more to be students.

The renowned Stopper and Fiske orchestra, of Williamsport, furnished the music for this occasion and a rare treat the visitors were afforded. The class orators, Howard Walton Mitchell, of Pittsburg, subject "The Formative Days of the Union," William B. Jackson, State College, "Our Natural Tendency in Business and Politics," Harry Russell Leyden, Beech Creek, Bismarck's Policy," Gilbert Adams Beaver, Bellefonte, "College Influence on Political and Social Problems," and George Stephen Demming, Harrisburg, with the valedictory, all did extremely well. Their performances were followed by the commencement address delivered by the Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, whose speech was enjoyed by all. Degrees and prizes were then conferred as follows:

DEGREES AND CERTIFICATES.

B. S., In the General Science Course:—Miss Ball, Messrs. J. B. Walker and J. M. Walker.

B. S., In the Latin Scientific Course:—Miss Jones, Messrs. Beaver, Ellenberger, Meek and Mitchell.

B. S., In the Advanced Course in Chemistry:—W. H. Walker.

B. S., In the Course in Civil Engineering:—Messrs. Bryan and Demming.

B. S., In the Course in Mechanical Engineering:—Messrs. Brennenman, Brew, Gossler, Hunter, Jackson, Leyden, McLean and Meek.

R. Ag., In the General Course in Agriculture:—Messrs. Brown and Watts.

Special Certificate in Civil Engineering:—W. E. Moore.

First Honors—Harry Russell Leyden, Gilbert Adams Beaver, Fred Azdell Bryan.

Second Honors—Antoinette D. Ball, William Benjamin Jackson, George Stephen Demming.

PRIZES.

English prize for best work in A Preparatory class, to Roger Bowman Philadelphia.

McAllister prize, for best work in Preparatory department, to J. M. Small, Harrisburg.

Orvis Prize, for progress in Mathematics, to Willie McKee, State College, C. H. Hile, Bellefonte, Ray Kessler Brandt and Donald Sommerville Winburne.

Junior Oratorical prize, to Alvin Gilkey, Neshaanock.

Agricultural prize, to Ralph Watt of Clearfield.

Diplomas and certificates were presented, and every one said good-bye to the College, year of '90.

The farewell reception given by the senior class in the armory last night was simply a repetition of the grand assembly given in May. One can scarcely conceive of the elegance of these receptions unless he has attended one. They are the social events of the student's life at the College, and are looked forward to with liveliest anticipations. The dance hall was resplendent in pretty girls and tropical plants, and the delightful strains of the orchestra floated into every corner of this vast room. Many of the costumes worn were both elegant and rich, and we have never seen such a crowd of pretty girls and enthusiastic boys together before. Dancing was continued until 12:30, at which time all retired to dream of one of the pleasantest weeks they had ever spent, and wish for a return of these gayeties in '91.

Too Much for Them.

Philadelphia Times.

The prospects of successful legislation at this session of Congress do not improve.

The tariff bill was in bad enough shape before Blaine took a shot at it. As his declaration has only encouraged the objectors, the whole subject is more complicated than before.

Nobody knows just what is to be done with the coinage bill, so it is acceptable to the silver men without displeasing everybody else. It is conceded that any measure that can become a law must be very different from what has been proposed either by the House or by the Senate.

The river and harbor bill presents the latest tangle, and notice is plainly served that it must be greatly modified if it is to have the President's approval.

As to the Federal election act, that has so many obstacles of its own to encounter that in the general confusion its chances are poor.

Altogether the group of able statesmen who started out so bravely to run the party and the business of the session find the undertaking bigger than they thought. Instead of carrying things through with a high hand there is a very good chance of their carrying nothing at all.

This need cause the disappointed citizen no grief.

Reckless Waste of Public Money.

The general recklessness of Congress in disposing of the public money is well illustrated in the action of the Senate in multiplying unnecessary employees and increasing salaries that are already out of all proportion to the service rendered to the public. In fact, a goodly sum seems to be squandered upon service personal to the Senators and upon persons whose service to them has no tangible relation to the business of the public.

If a surplus is easier to deal with than a deficit, Congress is likely to encounter the more difficult task after the appropriations of the present session have been fully made up.—New York Times.

Presidential Speculations.

Harpers' Weekly, a journal that is independent in politics, and aims to secure a pure and able administration of public affairs, says: "Speculating on the chances of the Presidential nomination in 1892, a Western journal thinks that the Democratic division in New York will probably lead to the nomination of a candidate from some other State than New York, and mentions Mr. Gray, of Indiana. It would not be difficult to mention in every State some person whose nomination would be agreeable to his friends, and it is often true of the Presidential nomination that the unforeseen happens. But it is by no means a rule. The renomination of Mr. Lincoln in 1864 and that of General Grant in 1872 were foregone conclusions; this was true in great part of the nomination of Mr. Blaine in 1884. There are two reasons why the nomination of Mr. Cleveland by the Democrats in 1892 is equally probable. The campaign of 1888 and the course of Congress at the present session have identified the Republican party with the policy of high, and in some cases prohibitive, protection. Whether the McKinley tariff be approved by the Senate and President or not, and whether any Congressional action upon the subject be taken or not, the chief question of the next election will be apparently that of the last. By universal consent, the special representative of the Democratic position upon the subject is Mr. Cleveland.

Not only by his course in making the tariff the party issue of the campaign did he identify himself with a national policy, and prevented the election of '88 from turning on the mere personal question of approval of his administration, but he did very much more than any Democrat in the country had been able to do in dispelling the profound distrust with which his party was regarded. He was in honest sympathy with honest politics. His interest in political progress and in wise reform was evident; and though his official course was often inconsistent with principles which he was believed to approve, it seems to be undeniable that his hold upon public confidence and upon the respect of his political opponents was much stronger at the end than at the beginning of his administration. This feeling has certainly not changed since he left the Presidency. He is probably more popular to-day than he has ever been.

A Shocking Execution.

A Man and Wife Hang—The Woman Almost Beheaded.

Elko, Nev., June 20.—One of the most terrible scenes in the history of death by the noose was witnessed in the Elko jail yards this morning, when Josiah and Elizabeth Potts were hanged for the murder of Miles Faucett. Hardened men shuddered and turned pale as they saw the woman's head drop from her neck, while beside her swung in fearful contortions the body of her husband.

The Potts have been in jail over a year for a particularly atrocious murder on New Year's day, 1888. Faucett was a well-to-do bachelor, 70 years old, and born, like the Potts, in Manchester, Eng. They were friends, but Faucett disappeared, and about a year afterward the Potts were arrested. At their trial evidence which was clearly circumstantial showed that for the sake of obtaining ready money the woman had struck her victim on the head with an ax, then crushing his skull to prevent identification. Not satisfied with this, she cut up the body, and the woman tried to boil it down, but could not on account of the stench. She tried to feed it to animals, and ended it by burying the body under the house.

The man was a spiritless being, but his wife had all the spirit, venom and bitterness of a hardened woman, so that an awful scene was expected to precede the execution. During the time she was in the jail Elizabeth gave ample proof of her fearful temper and terrible tongue. Last night she had her last tantrum. She upbraided her husband called him a coward and sneak, and when the officers attempted to reply, turned on them and berated them fiercely.

Then she went to bed, but not without hurling a curse at her husband. She closed her eyes and seemed to sleep, just as she had done on Wednesday when she sought suicide, when suddenly one of the watchers heard her gasp, and when he asked her what was the matter, she feebly asked for water. The guards then discovered upon investigation that she had severed an artery right before their eyes. A physician fixed up the wound, after which she was never alone for a moment up to the moment of her death in the most shocking manner to-day.

Personally Conducted Tours to Niagara Falls via Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The summer tourist at this season of the year looks for the announcement of the personally-conducted tours of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, which have ever since their inauguration met with universal appreciation and praise. A series of these tours to Niagara Falls will be run July 17th and 18th, and August 21st, 1890. A Tourist Agent and Chaplain will accompany the party, looking after the pleasure and comfort of all.

The round-trip tickets, valid for ten days, including date of excursion, will embody the privilege of stop-off at Watkins Glen, in both directions. Return coupons will be accepted on any regular train within the limit, except limited express trains. These tours embody the select character of a private party, and offer the opportunity of summer outing, instruction and recreation.

Pension money has run out, but though the deficiency bill should fail to get through in a few days, millions more will be available on the first of next year. The hitch will come after a while, when the surplus has all been eaten up and there is nothing to draw upon.

Has Not Withdrawn.

PORT MATILDA, Pa., June 24th, 1890.

Dear Sir: Please say to your readers that the rumor which was afloat in Bellefonte last week that I had withdrawn from the contest for Recorder, is entirely without foundation. Providence willing, I fully intend remaining in the field during the entire canvass, and I hope the friends whose kind assurances I have will not slacken their efforts in my behalf on account of the circulation of this report.

Yours very truly,

W. GALER MORRISON.

A Letter.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., June 23, 1890.

To My Democratic Friends of Centre County.

Owing to a want of time, as well as means, to again prosecute my campaign for the nomination for Sheriff, I have concluded to withdraw from the contest for that office.

I will cheerfully support any good candidate nominated by the party.

I was born and reared a Democrat, and when the Democracy presents its ticket this fall, I will be found in the line of duty, doing my humble part for the success of the party which may defeat me after the nomination, but cannot deny me the distinction of battling for its triumph in the ranks.

Yours very truly,

JOHN NOLL.

Mr. Condo Withdraws.

SPRING MILLS, June 23, 1890.

To the Democratic Voters of Centre County.

Believing that the harmony of the party would be promoted by my withdrawal, I have concluded to decline to be a candidate for Sheriff at this time. The nomination for that office, in my opinion, does not belong to this side of the county; and the party ought to present its most available and strongest candidate, without a contest, in order to secure a handsome majority this fall.

I hope many friends in Pennsylvania, will look at this matter in the same way I do, and be convinced that my declination is in the nature of a sacrifice for the welfare of the party.

To those friends who gave me their support I return my sincere thanks and trust I shall be able, at some future time, to show my appreciation.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN P. CONDO.
