Medical.

WEAK AND WEARY.

In early summer the warmer weather is especially weakening and enervating, and that tired feeling prevails everywhere. The great benefit which people at this season derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, and purifies the blood.

JUST THE MEDICINE.

"For nine years I was in a state of constant suffering, scarcely able at any time to walk about the house, and part of the time unable to be out of bed. The physicians said I had a fibroid tumor. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and its good effect was soon apparent. I began to improve in health, and continued taking the medicine till now I feel perfectly well and can walk six or seven miles a day without feeling tired. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine for women and anyone who has had blood." JENNIE E. SMITH, East Broad Top, Pennsylvania.

JUDGE NOT.

Judge not; the workings of the brain And of the heart thou canst not see; What looks to thy dim eyes a stain, In God's pure light may only be A scar, brought from some well won field, Where thou wouldst only faint and yield.

The look, the air, that frets thy sight They bespeak that below The soul has closed in deadly fight. With some infernal fiery foe, And take a firmer, surer stand; Or, trusting this to earthly things, May henceforth learn to use his wings.

The fall thou darest to despise, May be the angel's slackened hand Has suffered it, that he may rise And take a firmer, surer stand; Or, trusting this to earthly things, May henceforth learn to use his wings.

And judge none lost, but wait and see, With hopeful pity, not disdain; The depth of the abyss may be The measure of the height of pain And love and glory that may raise This soul to God in after days!

Lepers of Tracadie.

Harrowing Sights in the Lazaretto of New Brunswick.

One has not to go far from Molokai to witness the awful blight of the flesh, leprosy, writes a New York Herald correspondent from Tracadie, New Brunswick, on the shores of the great ocean. I saw sights that are calculated to make the soul sick indeed. Here are literally numbered a score or more of wretches touched with a foulness which for no fault of their own, excludes them forever from the world. It is true they are treated with more consideration than the lepers of Scriptural times who dwelt in the open sepulchres about Jerusalem, subsisting on the fragments that accidental charity dropped on the ground in the wilderness. Nor is heard from them that terrible cry as of a lost soul, "Unclean! Unclean!" No, the lot of these unfortunates is made as endurable as the ghastly maldy of which they are the victims will permit.

The Dominion government has erected a commodious hospital on the banks of the Tracadie River overlooking the Gulf into which the slender streamlet falls. It would be difficult to find anywhere a lovelier combination of "streamlet and hill" than this. Would that one could forget the hopeless fate of these fellows. But alas! they are "the world forgetting, by the world forgot." All that makes life worth enduring has been withdrawn from them.

Nevertheless, it is pleasant to know that their lot is more endurable than it was years ago. When the lazaretto was established about forty-five years ago, the poor creatures were lassoed like beasts, drawn by ropes and beaten with long poles to force them toward the lazaretto. No one would touch them. They were torn from their families, their families, although in many cases they were the sole support of their wife and children. The cottages which then constituted the hospital were filthy and uncared for. Males and females were cast together, and the contamination of immorality was added to the other horrors.

The food was laid down on the ground, to be eaten where they chose. To the people in the surrounding country the name "lazaretto" was clothed with all the horrors of Gehenna. Little wonder, then, that when a member of a family was attacked with the loathsome disease his relatives took every precaution to conceal his condition. It is well supposed that this secrecy tended to spread the disease.

The condition of the lazaretto at length became a public scandal; so much so that in 1868 it reached the ears of Sister St. John (Miss Vigier), of the Hotel Dieu, Montreal. She volunteered to go and care for these poor outcasts. Other volunteers were asked for and every Sister in the hospital tendered her services. Seven were chosen, carefully instructed in the treatment of leprosy, and then they started a mission compared with which the task of cleaning the Augean stables was a light one. But the Sisters cheerfully set to work, and in a few years every thing was transformed.

The provincial government of New Brunswick, glad to have the scandal removed, provided all necessary funds for meeting the expenses of the institution. From being a loathsome charnel house it was transformed into a home.

The inmates and the house itself are kept scrupulously clean. Hired attendants do all the manual work. The inmates have no tasks imposed on them. Their path to death is smoothed and relieved of cares. They have a small farm, with which they may do as they choose. They have boats in which they may fish and trawl or simply idle away the summer days.

This disease is called leprosy, although it is probable that it is in many respects different from the leprosy which afflicted the skin and rotted the bones of the Hebrews of old. But this is undoubtedly a malady of the same nature. It has been called by medical men Greek elephantiasis. A recent authority thus describes its symptoms:—"The first indication of the disease is the appearance of tiny tubercles on the skin, and especially on the face. These increase from the size of a pin head to that of a hazel nut. The nose and lips become thick and swollen, so that the mouth is distorted and the features unrecognizable. The eyes droop and eyelashes and eyebrows, and sometimes the hair, drop out. After a time the tubercles break, ulcerate and discharge, the disease even attacking the cartilage and bone, and piece by piece joints and flesh fall off until death gives the sufferer freedom from his terrible lot."

The average duration of the disease from the time the first symptoms are discovered until death ensues is about ten or twelve years. The lazaretto was taken charge of by the Dominion government in 1880, and Dr. Smith was placed in charge, who keeps a sharp lookout for infected persons.

In a conversation I had with the Doctor he said:—"I am not yet satisfied that the disease is incurable. I discharged one man from the hospital some years ago and he has had no return of the symp-

oms. Last year I discharged a girl who had been admitted to the lazaretto just as soon as the first symptoms of infection developed themselves. Still though these two are apparently free from the malady, I do not regard the cases as permanently cured, and I still hold them under close surveillance. Of late the disease has been dying out in Tracadie in its original seat; but out of the five new cases taken in last year one was from Cape Breton and four from parishes which adjoin Tracadie—namely, Shippen and Oraquet, and from this centre I have traced it to other settlements."

The fact which gives the doctor authority to segregate patients does not apply to the new hotbeds of the disease, but he feels that as soon as he possesses that power he will be able to stamp it out entirely.

Frog Farms.

Raising the Delicacy for Market Is Now a Thriving Industry.

"You will be surprised," said he, "to learn that a new industry is growing up in the North and which is entirely devoted to frog culture." "There are large farms at St. Joseph, Saugutuck, New Haven, Grand Haven and Battle Creek, where the frogs we sell are raised. On many farms in the Northwest there are marshy places that are utterly useless for agricultural purposes. Many of these spots are being reclaimed by their production of frogs. The animals require very little care and are very prolific. One man at St. Joseph has 200,000 polygows in his lake. They will soon be ready for the market, and at the price at which legs sell his profits will not be far from $5,000. It would take a big crop of grain and an enormous amount of work and worry into the bargain to yield that much. There are different breeds. The best and largest come from France. They are sent to this country by breeders over there who make a specialty of them. You may laugh when I tell you that it will not be long before frogs will have their place at country fairs and fast-food shows. Why, even now, peddlars are furnished importers, and there is a frog at St. Joseph named Sullivan. He is a big bull, and his voice is a caution. He was imported from France and cost $50. An ordinary pair of breeders can be bought for $5."

"Does it require much trouble to catch the hoppers?" "No; when they are large enough for the market they are surprised in the night time while sitting on the banks of the pond. Men with lanterns can readily pick them up, for the light dazzles them. After being captured they are killed, and the hinder parts are packed in ice for shipment here. Sometimes, late in the season, which extends from spring to winter, they are sent to us alive. We freeze them up, and in the spring they sell at a good price. The big ones are worth about $1.25 per doz. at this time. They need no care from us when brought here alive. A frog will live six months without food, but during the period of growth care is necessary that the water they live in be pure. They thrive best in running water where there is plenty of grass and reeds. Such a habitat is necessary for them to hide themselves in for protection. The farms are usually surrounded by fences, so that the frogs can not migrate, and so that intruders can not molest them."

"I think the time is come when frog culture will be a permanent industry. Farmers are becoming discouraged by the successive failures of crops in the last few years, and they must find something else to raise. I think this will be the result, that frog culture and other lines will increase, and the result will be a slight reaction on the staples, which are now at a low price. The raising of frogs is a pleasant occupation, and a paying one. Chicago will eat all that can be produced in the Northwest. We have no trouble in disposing of all that are sent us. Sometimes our house alone sells 100 dozens in a day, and there are many others who sell about the same amount. The summer resorts take large quantities from the wholesale trade."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

The Biggest Apple Tree.

Boston Journal. The largest apple tree in New England, and probably in the world, is in the northwestern part of Cheshire, Conn., standing in Mr. Delos Hotchkiss's dooryard. The tree can be traced by a family tradition to 140 years at least, and it may be twenty or twenty-five years older. It is at the present time of symmetrical shape; the trunk is nearly round, without a scar or blemish on it; there are eight large branches; five of them have been in the habit of bearing one year and the remaining three the next.

Mr. Hotchkiss has gathered in one year from the five branches $5 worth of fruit, and his predecessor had harvested a crop of 110 bushels from the same five branches. By careful measurement the circumference of the trunk 1 foot above the ground, above all enlargements of the roots, is 13 feet and 8 inches. The girth of the largest single limb is six feet 8 inches. The height of the tree has been carefully measured and found to be 60 feet, and the spread of the branches as the apples fall is 100 feet, or six rods. The fruit is rather small, sweet and of moderate excellence.

GLOVES WHILE YOU WAIT.—Julia, of London, will deliver a pair of kid gloves an hour and a quarter after they are ordered, provided he has a skin of correct shade in the house. The nearest approach to this is done here by a firm who make gloves to order, and will always give them in two days, unless they have to dye the skin to match some particular color. They can deliver a pair for the evening if ordered early in the morning, though they do not like such hurried orders. They charge fifty cents more for an ordered than a ready-made pair.

WIFE.—Now, this is a nice time for you to come home from the lodge! Here it is half-past two.

Husband.—What of it? If I hadn't gone to the lodge at all it would have been half-past two just the same, would it not?
