

Hungry Elephants.
How They Gratify a Taste for Dainties.

One favorite food of the African elephant is the tender, juicy roots of the mimosa-tree, which grows in scattered groups through most of the meadows and lowlands of central Africa.

When an elephant finds a young tree of this sort, it is not difficult, as a rule, for him to get at the roots, especially if the surrounding soil is moist, and loose, as is often the case after it has been soaked by the heavy rainfalls of the tropics.

If the tree is loose, the elephant, knowing his strength, winds his trunk firmly round the tree, and plucks it from the earth, a feat which is no harder for him than the pulling up of a flower is for a child.

But the elephant does not stop here; experience has taught him the most comfortable way of enjoying his prize, so without relaxing his hold, he turns the tree completely over, and stands it with its upper branches thrust down into the place where the roots were. Then the earthy roots, now replacing the branches remain within easy reach of the strong and deft trunk.

African travelers tell us of great tracts of country almost covered with these trees. Seeing the dry trees turned upside down one would be inclined to think a wood had been reversed by mischievous fairies, than to suppose hungry elephants had been feeding there.

Sometimes an elephant will find a tree which defies his greatest efforts, and absolutely refuses to be uprooted. But the elephant does not give up. Not at all. He either brings another elephant to help him—a thing they often do when the work is too much for one—or, if he cannot find a friend, he sets his own wits to work. He makes use of his tusks as levers, thrusting them, as if they were crowbars, deep under the roots, and pries away slowly and steadily until the tree is loosened; and then with a great wrench he completely uproots it and it goes toppling over, leaving the clever elephant victorious.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen!
$10 Reward!

As you all, no doubt, know they call me "Boodle Jim," and now since the organ that gave me that touching nom de plume is to become defunct, I think it proper to relieve myself of some of my surplus "boodle," and therefore offer the above reward for the apprehension of the "chesh-e-or-it" in College township that professes to be the friend of such a specimen as Jimmy Fiedler. It is worth the above amount to anyone to know who the villain is, and I shall feel that I have not lived in vain if I am able to disclose to humanity one who descends so low as to associate himself with such a man.

The Murderer of Eight Men Killed by an Enemy.

ELKHORN, W. Va., Nov. 2.—Bud McCoy, the leader of the notorious McCoy Hatfield gang, was killed near Tennis camp in Logan county, Va., on the Ohio extension of the Norfolk and Western railroad, on Friday evening, by a man named Dempsey. Eighteen bullets were found in his body and other parties are supposed to have assisted in the killing. McCoy collected considerable money from Contractor Tennis and was returning to his home on Peter creek, Ky., when the murder occurred. Although an old grudge rather than plunder prompted the killing, the country is wild with excitement and it is believed that Dempsey and his associates will be found and the death of McCoy avenged. McCoy has been known to have killed eight men, but always escaped punishment.

Great Closing Out Sale.

Owing to a change of firm, and as we are going into the manufacturing and wholesaling business, we have decided to sacrifice our entire stock, consisting of Men's, Youths', Boys' and Children's Clothing, Hats, and Furnishing Goods, at and below cost.

Remember this is a bona fide sale and not an advertising scheme. We prefer selling the goods here, giving the people of this vicinity the benefit rather than paying freight for removing the same. It will greatly benefit you to come and examine our goods and prices. If you appreciate bargains you will surely find them with us. Our stock is entirely new. No auction trash or shop-worn goods. Again we call the attention of the people and invite all to come and convince themselves that it is as we say. Here is a chance for you which happens only once in a life time. Our loss is your gain. Secure your bargains early, as the chance will not last long.
