Medical.

TOTALLY HELPLESS

FROM SCIATIC RHEUMATISM—WHOLLY CURED BY HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. The fact that rheumatism is caused by accumulation of acid in the blood, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has wonderful power in purifying the blood, explain the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in curing this disease. "In May, 1885, I was taken with sciatic rheumatism in my legs and arms. It entirely prevented me from working, and I was confined to my bed entirely helpless. I had medical attendance and in August I was just able to move around. I was reduced to A MEKKE SKELETON and my appetite was gone. It was thought by all my friends that I could not possibly live. I took almost everything I could hear of but with no good results, during the winter. One day, reading about taking Hood's Sarsaparilla in MARCH, APRIL AND MAY, I concluded to try it. One bottle gave me so much relief that I took four bottles, and since then I have not been troubled with rheumatism, and my general health has never been better. My appetite is increasing and I am gaining in flesh. I attribute my whole improvement to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I earnestly recommend it to all who are troubled with like disease. I consider it the GRANDEST MEDICINE ever put up." Wm. F. TAYLOR, Emporium, Cameron Co., Penn. "I hereby certify the foregoing facts as stated." IMPORTANT—If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening, at a distance of ten inches, your eyesight is failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible. If they assist the vision, use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the print is not magnified; it should look natural size, but plain and distinct. The Wife's Allowance.

The question is often asked: Is a man's wife to be regarded, on the business side, as a partner with individual rights as well as joint liabilities, as a salaried official, acting under orders, and with little or no responsibility, or as a mendicant? In one or the other of these positions a wife must necessarily stand, and it is just as well that it should be clearly understood from the outset which of them she is to fill. As a partner in the domestic firm she must have an equal right to draw her share of the profits, even though the other partner keep the books and has the money passing through his hands. The treasurer and cashier does not claim any superiority over his fellows who actively superintend the manufacture from which the cash results. He does not, merely because the money passes through his hands, talk of giving his partner what he pays him; he knows that the money belongs to his partner as much as to him. This is surely the way in which the marriage partnership ought to be viewed, on the business side. In the great majority of the wife works as hard as the husband, though in a different way. Her management of the household and of the children, if properly done, is usually to be set against his work at his place of business—it is equally essential to the marriage partnership; and though there are exceptions, the normal state of things is for the wife to be as hard worked at home as her husband is abroad, and therefore be entitled to equality in the profits of the partnership. Supposing, however, that the husband is not to be considered of the strict justice of this theory, the wife has a strong plea in reserve. "If I am not a partner," she may fairly say, "I have a just right to be regarded as an employee. If I am not a partner, I at least render certain services to the household, and I can claim compensation, not by giving—whatever compensation you may pay to any third person for the same services—Put it as a matter of equal partnership or of employment, which ever you please, only do not evade the obligations of both."

This, at least, is reasonable: if the wife is simply an official, let her be paid as such, and let her know what she receives her own. Whether as house-keeper, governess or cook, a wife saves her husband, but the savings belong to her, not to him.

"When my wife asks me for money, I give it to her," says one husband. "We don't question his perfect willingness to do so for one moment, but why should the wife have to ask for what is already her due? A man who earns his living likes to feel that at a certain fixed time his wages will be absolutely his; he will not have to ask, and his employer can entertain no feeling of 'giving.'"

Only a long and patient observation can enable a man to determine the continual and unjust humiliation undergone by multitudes of admirable women—the pinching and sniveling and patient enduring they will undergo first because of this perpetual ordeal of "asking" their husbands for money.

The husband may be the best natured man living; the wife may know what she is asking him to receive; but that which annoys her is the asking itself. In many cases the money is paid without it, I know, as an "allowance;" but in that case the word is still one which implies a favor given and received; it is not an "allowance," properly speaking, but is simply her share of the income, if you regard her as a partner; or her salary, if you view her as an employe.

A woman needs the sense of independence. At present there exists an amount of soreness and chafing and secret unhappiness in the hearts of apparently happy wives which could be instantly removed by the certainty of even a very small income which they could call their own. In no case should a wife be made a mendicant. A wife and mother, highly honored by all who know her, was heard to declare that she would never consent to the marriage of her daughters without a definite understanding that whatever money they were to have from their husbands should be paid them regularly at stated times. And she added: "No man can possibly understand how a sensitive woman shrinks from asking for money; if I can help it, my daughters shall never have to ask for it."

To Prevent Wrinkles. To keep the skin from wrinkles when powder is daily used, wash the powder carefully off at night, then apply the whitest vasoline, any good cold cream, or pure sweet cream, letting it lie on the face and neck a few minutes and washing with a soft cloth. Next morning wash the face with very hot water, which contracted the pores and drives off the wrinkles. To soften the complexion and prevent sunburn, use glycerine diluted in this way: Pour four spoonfuls of glycerine in a bottle, cut with one-fourth as much best cologne, and fill with soft water. Rub a spoonful of this over the face before going out. A cosmetic, excellent in effect but far from pleasant, is butter-milk and oatmeal flakes. Put a handful of the flakes, which are steam cooked and swell rapidly, into a quart jar filled with acid buttermilk, stir well. In ten minutes the mixture will be a soft paste, which is spread on the face and hands and let dry, when it is washed off with hot water. The virtues of this paste in whitening the skin, removing tan and freckles, are highly praised by ladies who have tried it. The sourer the buttermilk the better, as it is the acid which acts as a detergent on the skin.

CHICKEN FRITTERS.—Chop cold chicken, but not too fine, season with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice, mix all together well and let it stand about an hour, make a batter of two eggs, one pint of milk, a little salt and flour enough to make a good batter, stir the chicken into this and drop it by spoonfuls into boiling fat; fry brown, drain well and serve hot; cold veal can be utilized in this way, and will be found nearly as nice as the chicken.

Bad Money in Circulation.

A party of friends was sitting around a table in the Duquesne barroom the other day enjoying a friendly glass when one produced a $2 bill that he was suspicious of and wanted the others to give their opinion as to its genuineness. It was an old bill, but as his friends eyed it intently they all thought it had a familiar look and they declared it good. "How do you know?" inquired the owner, but none of them could tell why. "By the way," said a financial man among them, "how much counterfeit money is in circulation in the country?" This question staggered the crowd, and all sorts of guesses were made. "Just $14,000,000," was the reply. "It may not be actual counterfeit money now," he continued, "but it has passed the scrutiny of bank cashiers and Treasury agents, and the government has replaced the bills when worn out. Counterfeiters seldom go higher than $20. A bill larger than this sum is carefully examined and is more liable to slip up on than the smaller denominations. To tell the truth, while $14,000,000 is no small figure, when you consider the amount of business done in America, and the desperate straits into which men are driven, the wonder to me is that the sum is not larger. It only proves that the great majority of the people are honest."

Alaska is a Booming Land.

Alaska just now is in a boomerous condition. It is said that they have richer gold mines there than in California, and the number of opportunities of getting a fortune there without an effort is unlimited. The latest story, according to a group of western business men who have been associated with several big movements—which is another name for booms—is that a patch of Forty Mile Creek is filled with splendid deposits of precious metal. Gold is found there in bars. It is washed down with the landslides who went prospecting in the creek two years ago, cut out large sections of the ice and exposed to view a lot of gold frozen solid in the bottom of the stream. Neither pick nor axe could make any impression. They had to build a fire of logs, and kept it burning for days until they had thawed the ground and got some of the quartz. But the cold was so intense and the obstructions so great that they finally gave up their search and came home. If the climate of Alaska could be changed, the work of the boomers would be considerably simplified.

A Pretty Story of Lincoln.

Gen. O. O. Howard communicates a new anecdote of Abraham Lincoln. When the Marriam retired from the contest with Lieut. Worden's homely little craft in Hampton Roads, the last shell fired by the confederate vessel exploded exactly in the eye-hole of the pilot-house where Lieut. Worden was at the moment looking. His eyes were severely injured, his face was filled with powder and there was also a slight concussion of the brain. The moment this brave officer recovered consciousness his first question was: "Have we saved the Minnesota?" When told she was safe he answered: "I am satisfied. He was taken at once to Washington and an incision connected with him there illustrates the character of Abraham Lincoln. A Cabinet meeting was in progress when it was told the President that the wounded commander of the Monitor was in the city. He instantly arose and took his hat saying: "Excuse me, gentlemen, I must see this fellow." He went immediately to his room. Worden was on the sofa, his eyes bandaged, his face swollen and bloody. The President was announced and took his hand in silence.

"Mr. President said the wounded man, 'you do me great honor by this visit.'"

"Sir," replied Mr. Lincoln, while the tears ran down his cheeks, "I am the one who is honored in this interview."

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company's Tours to the Sunny South.

There was a time, not many years ago, when the first cold snap drove the seeker after more genial climate to Florida, and this meant several days of tedious journeying; but to-day nothing is thought of it whatever, for, through the medium of the series of winter tours, under the personally-conducted system of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Jacksonville and points of even more southern are reached in comparatively few hours, while en route the traveler is enjoying the comforts and delights of a home. Already one of the tours has gone, and four remain to be run from New York to Jacksonville, as follows: February 2d and 17th, and March 3d and 17th. Tourists will travel in Pullman Palace cars in charge of a Tourist Agent and Chaperon. A limit, as in the first tour, must necessarily be made in order to allow each passenger a double berth, and this limit has been made one hundred and fifty.

The round trip rate, including Pullman accommodations and meals en route in dining car attached to the train, is $50.00 from New York, $45.00 from Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. Ticket will be sold from all principal stations on the Pennsylvania Railroad special at proportionately low rates. For detailed information and descriptive itineraries application should be made to ticket offices.

Lowell's Great Lawyer.

Gen. Butler's voice is not so powerful as it used to be. In fact, it is difficult to hear him a dozen feet away, though he occasionally fires up and some of his old time force presents itself. He still relies considerably on the sympathy of the jury, especially when he is defending a comely woman. His method of arguing his case is the same in substance as it always has been. Plenty of wit and humor run through his speech, and these, with a little pathos his case will permit, combine to make his always eloquent pleas more effective. His favorite attitude while addressing the jury is to brace his broad shoulders against the clerk's desk. His hands are deeply thrust into his pockets; he seldom gesticulates.

Yours respectfully, WILCOFF WITTER. COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4, '90. Dr. B. J. KENDALL CO. Dear Sirs:—I have been selling more of Kendall's Spavin Cure and Flint's Condition Powder than ever before. One man said to me, it was the best Powder I ever kept and the best he ever used.
