SIMON LOEB,

THINGS ABOUT TOWN & COUNTY.

The Warrior's mark post office has been made a money order office.

The star course of entertainments of the W. C. T. U., of this place, has been completed for this season.

They are catching suckers numerously in the Juniata. One fisherman at Tyrone the other day caught twelve dozen.

Seventy-eight conversions were the result of recent revival meetings held by Rev. C. P. Sarvis at the Centre Iron Works, near Bellefonte.

A brakeman named Shank, living at Snow Shoe, had his arm mashed Friday morning by getting it between the bumpers while shifting cars.

What has become of the "That" column in the Daily Gazette? It was usually replete with a spiciness that was relished by local readers, and its absence is missed.

On Friday last a tramp named Casey, from Massachusetts, in attempting to jump off an east bound freight train, at Bennington, near Altoona, was thrown under the train and killed.

Hon. A. V. Larimer, of Sioux City, Iowa, who recently spent about a week in Bellefonte, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Speer, on High street, set sail for Europe last week.

A car load of fine looking draught horses excited attention on our streets on Tuesday morning. They were the property of the Messrs Gentzel, of near Zion, and will soon be placed on sale.

Lock Haven, Clinton, county, Pa., U. S. A., a city of about 7,000 inhabitants, has no brass band. We wonder if they will be able to recognize Gabriel's trumpet when he begins his final blast.

Since the scaffolding has been removed from the new residence of Mr. Frank Montgomery it is pronounced to be one of the handsomest and most distinguished looking structures on Linn street.

Thomas Wesco, of Morrisdale Mines, who had his collar bone broken in Houtzdale in January last by some boys with their sleds while coasting, is about to bring an action against their parents to recover damages.

Sheriff Stineham, of Ebensburg, on Wednesday, received the rope with which Harry Mash will be hanged on February 25. It is twenty-five feet long, a half inch thick, cost $52, and was made by Mr. Jacob Bopp, of Wood's Run, Allegheny.

One more feather has recently been stuck in a Bellefonter's cap. It is the one worn by Robt Cole, our architect, over the acceptance of his plans for a beautiful bank building that is to be erected on the corner of Main and Juniata streets, in Tyrone, by the Blair county Banking Co.

The Literary and Debating Society of Unionville has been having a very successful run this winter, its place of meeting in the basement of the Presbyterian church being crowded every Friday night by interested spectators. One of its shining lights is O. W. Spotts, the Bush Hollow orator.

The entertainment which was advertised for the Y. W. C. T. U., of this place, in our last week's issue, has gone "up the blasted spout." All the would-be stars are dependent over the disappearance of the heavy villain, thus leaving them without an opportunity to display their talent.

As the time for granting liquor licenses in this county is drawing near, and the new temperance organization in this place has held a meeting in which licenses were the principal topic of adverse discussion, it looks as if a fight will be made against the applicants who will ask for the right to sell liquor.

Mr. Abraham Baum, the liveryman, has been very unfortunate in losing valuable horses. On Monday night one of the best ones he had in his stable died of colic, thus making two horses lost in a little over a week. The other one that died was an exceedingly fine animal and was valued at something over $300.

A board of trade was organized in Tyrone on Friday evening last. Over two hundred members were enrolled as soon as the organization was effected and Tyrone is going to boom her manufacturing interests as much as possible. The board of trade way of booming has not proved much a success with us, but we wish our sister town more success with it.

DAISY AND BEAVER.—One of the most peculiar cases of animal attachment we have ever seen is displayed regularly, morning and evening, on the streets of Bellefonte, when the cow, owned by Col. D. K. Tate, goes to and from her pasture.

Daisy is an ordinary looking red cow and would not excite the slightest attention were she by herself, but running about her, frisking and barking, can be seen a very little black dog, which the colonel's family calls Beaver. No matter where the cow is seen, or what the condition of the weather, Beaver is the companion of her travels. From the time she leaves the stable in the morning until her return at night he is playing about her. If other cows come about while she is grazing he quickly clears the field, and Daisy has no fear from the stones of the small boy for they all respect the rights which her little protector, Beaver, demands for her. When she becomes drowsy Beaver lies down beside her and there he stays until she is ready to get. Should she decide to stay away from home all night no better guard could she have than the little black canine. In the stable, if it is cold, he sleeps huddled up between her fore legs, and when the weather is warm he makes his bed in some part of the stall with her. So strong is the attachment between these two creatures that if Beaver is accidentally locked out of the stable, at night, he makes night so hideous with his mournful howls that some one is only too glad to get up and let him in.

The only reason which the Colonel assigns for this strange affection is the fact that when Beaver was first the veriest bit of a pup he was kept in the stable, and, unfortunately in being born in the winter, he found a warm nest near the cow. We suppose his gratitude to Daisy for the warmth with which she provided him has prompted the devotion which he now daily exhibits. It is a novel sight indeed to see the cow and her faithful little attendant pass.

ANOTHER WILL-O'-THE-WISP.—During the early part of last week Col. Wm. Shortlidge, manager of McCalmont & Co's interests here, was out in Ohio on business. While casually glancing over one of the daily papers he chanced to buy he noticed the arrest of a Frank Wilson, at Chillicothe, and thinking that it might possibly be our escaped murderer he telegraphed the authorities at Chillicothe to hold the man until he should see him. The next morning found the Colonel well on his way to Wilson and when he saw him he got specimens of his hand writing, noticed points by which he might be identified, and got the promise of a picture. From the description he sent to the authorities here it was once decided that Mr. Shortlidge had, by a mere accident, found the escaped murderer of Waterhouse. His description tallied to the minutest detail with that of the Wilson we want, every statement only clinching the harder the impression that the right man was found. This was all the more convincing since it was known that Colonel Shortlidge had never seen Wilson while he was in jail here, or read his description after the escape.

District Attorney Meyer had about completed arrangements for sending for the man, but when his picture arrived it was found to bear very slight resemblance to the real Wilson. The peculiar markings, such as missing teeth, tattooed arms, depression on one side of the nose, and large hands were all there, but the Chillicothe man was not our man. Col. Shortlidge deserves credit for the interest he took in the case, and should the man he found have been the one wanted, our county would have owed him for the partial removal of a blot which will ever be a disgrace to old Centres history.

DEATH OF AN OLD CLERGYMAN.—Rev. John H. Boggs died in Boone, Iowa, in the 29th ult., in his 87th year. He was a son of Judge Robert Boggs, one of the first Associate Judges in Centre county in 1800, and a grandson of Andrew Boggs, the first white settler at Bald Eagle's nest (Milesburg) where Rev. J. H. Boggs was born June 22, 1804. He was educated at the Bellefonte Academy and was married June 14, 1826, to Catherine Hoover.

HAPPILY WEDDED.—Mr. Ephraim C. Dietz, of Howard, and Miss Linnie E. Hookman, of Habelsburg, were married in the Shiloh Reformed church of Danville, on Wednesday, Feb. 4th, the Rev. J. A. Peters, D. D., officiating. After the ceremony a reception and supper was given at the residence of the groom's brother, Mr. Cyrus Dietz, and a number of Danville friends were present to congratulate the newly wedded couple.

THE CLEARY MURDER TRIAL.—The second trial of Charles Cleary, for the murder of Policeman Paul, at Renovo, will not come up at the coming February term of court, but a special court will be held for that purpose in April. District Attorney Brungard stated that he could not say whether there would be counsel engaged by the commissioners to assist him in conducting the prosecution or not. Messrs. Kress and McCormick will be the attorneys for Cleary.—Lock Haven Express.

The Lewisburg nail works have been levied upon by the Sheriff to satisfy a claim of $35,000.

The musical convention of the Reformed and Evangelical churches at Coburn cleared about $100.

Next week we will have some important and correct information to give on the Railroad question; also on the condition of our Furnaces.

On Monday morning the rule whereby no boys under 18 years of age are to be employed at the nail works in this place, went into effect.

One night recently Mr. Joshua Potter put a cow in his sheep stable and the next morning he found that she had killed three of his best sheep.

The miners' hospital at Phillipsburg was opened for patients Thursday of last week. It is intended for the relief of miners of the 8th mining district.

H. H. Weaver, of Aaronsburg, has learned that the large bay stallion, Charley, which he disposed of last November and was sent to Michigan, was sold there for $1000.

Rev. J. A. Woodcock and family will soon remove to Bellefonte, from Williamsport, and take up their residence at Miss Magill's private boarding house on Allegheny street.

Mifflinburg has organized a musical association, composed entirely of home talent, with the object of awakening a deeper interest in music and bringing the town up to a high standard in that art.

James H. Rankin, Esq., of this place, has been appointed special agent to collect statistics of the manufactures of Bellefonte for the census bureau, and started in the performance of his duty on Wednesday.

The people of Phillipsburg were highly delighted with the production of the "Broom Maker of Carlsbad," by James Reilly and company on Monday night. In the Opera House to-night, Friday.

Governor Beaver and family will sojourn in Philadelphia for a month or six weeks until about the first of April, by which time their residence here will be repaired and ready for their permanent occupancy.

The Hope Fire Company, of Phillipsburg, having found the boiler of their old engine defective, have shipped it back to the manufacturers and will get in its place a new one much superior in every respect.

The remains of Dr. Frank Dale, of Philadelphia, originally of this county, who died last December, which were placed in a vault in that city, were taken to New York some weeks ago for permanent interment, his wife being from that city.

Rev. T. B. Cross, the Baptist minister at Milesburg, has been presented with a handsome gold badge by the I. U. A. M. and I. O. O. F. lodges of that place, on one side of which is the symbol of Odd Fellowship and, on the other that of the American Mechanics.

Mr. Mitchell Cunningham will soon open a cigar and tobacco store in the room formerly occupied by P. F. Ketchline, next door to the Brokerhoff House. Mitch is an industrious young gentleman and will make a success of his venture.

The case of William Todhunter, of Houtzdale, charged with the murder of Enos Bacon, tried in the Clearfield county court last week, resulted in his acquittal. About a hundred witnesses were examined and the evidence was very contradictory. The trial cost the county about $2000.

Gen. George H. Sheridan, the gifted orator and lecturer, will deliver his great lecture entitled the "Modern Pagan," in Bellefonte, on Saturday evening, March 7th. This triumph of Gen. Sheridan's genius has been delivered in every state in the Union, and is the most effective reply ever made to Colonel Ingenuoli's attack on the Christian Religion. It will be delivered under the auspices and for the benefit of the Bellefonte M. E. church.

Mrs. Curtin S. Bear, of Pittsburg, who is visiting her mother at Huntingdon, miraculously escaped death, on Wednesday, by a stray bullet which entered the window where she was sitting. Startled by the crash of glass, Mrs. Bear felt a terrible pull at the back of her head, and on examination found the ball lodged in a heavy knot of hair. Several strands of Mrs. Bear's hair were cut off, but she experienced no other injury.

The residents of Johnsonburg, Elk county, are very much exercised over the prevalence of small pox in that place. At present there are six cases of varioloid and two of small pox, all of which, however, are under the strictest quarantine. Over two thousand people have been vaccinated in the last few days. Everything is being done to prevent the spreading of the dread disease. Two deaths have occurred thus far.

College Freshmen Banquet!

But not until they had Pulled Through one of the Toughest Class Scrimmages that the Penna. State College Has ever Seen.

It is a well established precedent in College customs that prompts the annual class banquets, and especially are they looked forward to with pleasure in institutions in which the large number of students, in the different classes, makes it impossible for classmen to meet in real college fellowship more than once a year. There is probably no event in all the gay college life to which a graduate looks back with happier recollections than that of the first banquet at his alma mater, and how proud he was when called upon to respond to one of the various toasts that were proposed. With the embryonic bud of ambition already unfolding in his strong young breast and his brain fairly reeling with the thoughts of distinctive individuality, he arises to make the initiatory of what might make him, some day, prominent as an orator.

On parallel with the Freshmen's joyful anticipations of their "feast" runs the calm determination of the Sophomores to blast the sweet hopes of the unsophisticated. So, as is the custom, everything is carried on with the greatest secrecy. Arrangements, to the minutest detail, are made long beforehand, so that nothing remains to be done on the eventful night but slip out and leave the outwitted Sophs to the chagrin of their own deception. No exception to the rule was the management of the banquet given by the Freshmen of the Pennsylvania State College at Achenbach's, in this place, on Friday night last. Though they were not quite as successful in keeping their movements entirely concealed as might have been expected, for just as they were ready to leave the College grounds the Sophomores, who were at "Practicum" in the chemical laboratories, were informed of their preparations for leaving in a body, and a grand rush was made to stop them. The Freshmen were beginning to congratulate themselves on the ease with which they were getting off, and had about reached the iron gate on the main avenue, when down over the campus, howling and mad, ran their opponents. To cut the harness and stop the hacks was but the work of a moment, and then white vested Freshmen and determined Sophomores were seen, rolling pell mell in the mud or coolly standing up punching each other according to the most approved London Prize Ring rules. Mournful looking eyes—that is, draped with black—disfigured "Physiogs," and torn clothing were seen jumbled together in a struggling mass of humanity. Three of the hacks were unmanned, but while attention was centered on the last one the other two slipped off. A rush was then made for the stage, into which some Freshmen had climbed, but Sir Samuel Grieb promptly appeared with the escutcheon of Uncle Sam's Mail and it was allowed to go unremoved. All the while the fight was centering on the last hack, which was so badly disabled, having a broken tongue and cut harness, that escape was impossible, and about it could be seen Sophs and Freshmen laid out on the snow, while away down below one poor '94 man was helplessly hanging over a picket fence receiving the chastisement of five big '93s, and a fellow named Williamson was complacently making the puddling places softer by frequent applications of mud. The boys who were in the last wagon, seeing its condition and resolving that "desecration is the better part of valor" withdrew from the fight and went by twos to the Buffalo Run R. R. and Lemont stations respectively. About six o'clock the last party of them arrived over the Buffalo Run road and from that time our streets were alive with happy, though sadly demoralized college boys, for truly would they have been an honor to the institution when she sported the name "Farmer's High School." Mud from head to foot, battered faces, and collar necks too plain to say that they had been through, but then they got here, and what a sense of satisfaction their discomfit was to them anyhow.

The Bush House, the rendezvous of the Collegians, was soon filled and there they got ready for the banquet. At about half past nine the thirty-seven Freshmen, the class numbers forty-two, were seated in Achenbach's ice cream parlor, and after a peremptory glance at the pretty souvenir gotten up by Dreka, of Philadelphia, on which was the '94 engraving and motto Palma non sine pulvere, the covers were raised for the elegant "feast."

The last course having been served, and while the blue rings of cigar and cigarette smoke went curling from lips that were yet "smacking" over the delicious punches, the toast master, Mr. Brown, of Philadelphia, acting in the absence of Mr. E. G. Edwards, called upon B. A. Musser, to respond to "Our College." A neat address was the result. "Our Class" was responded to by Mr. A. G. Guyer, the class President, in a way that inspired '94 with great love for her success. Mr. A. D. Bolt then toasted "The Ladies" in a breezy little speech and he was followed by Mr. P. P. Sturdevant on "Our Professors." Mr. S. is a sincere, plain talker and said some things which contained much more salt than was credited. "Our Past" was the toast answered by Mr. A. D. Knittle, who gave quite a nice little response. The toast of the evening, however, "Our Future," was proposed by Mr. E. A. Pyne, of Boston, Mass., whose rapid, easy manner and soft language was highly entertaining, indeed, and the boys were completely caught by his a-la-Bellany style.

- Menu: Blue Points on Half Shell, White Reising, Consomme a la Royal, Roast Turkey, Stuffed Cranberries, Veal Chops a la Mayonnaise, Scalloped Oysters, Chicken Salad, French Peas a la Cream Cabbage, Roman Punch, Ice Cream Croquettes, Charlotte Russe, Angle Food, Lady Fingers, Macarons, Kisses, Wafers, Oranges, Bananas, Grapes, Salted Almonds, Cheese, Black Coffee, Cigars and Cigarettes. The banquet over, The toasts at an end, The Collegians went home, Their fortunes to mend, And dream of the Sophomores, Whose pugnaeous "mill" Had but heightened the flavor of Achenbach's "bill."

Altogether it was a grand success and the class of '94 can look back to a banquet which was elaborate and served in as fine a style as could be desired. Mr. Achenbach the caterer, deserves the congratulations of the class for the elegance with which everything was done, and the committee, Messrs Roger Bowman, Phila. T. Holmes Walker, Pittsburg, and Ralph H. Martin, New York, come in for the highest praise for their successful management of the first annual banquet of the class of '94. As the class of '93 had signed the "iron clad" last fall it was thought that it would be suspended en masse for participating in the fight, but as there was no college property destroyed, the good looks of the students not coming in under the head—nothing was done by the faculty.

WEDDING BELLS AT BEECH CREEK.—On Wednesday evening, February 18th inst., Miss Anna M. Leyden, of Beech Creek, was married in the Presbyterian church of that place, to Mr. W. S. Elliott, of Wellsville, Ohio, Rev. S. M. Pomeroy, of Mill Hall, officiating. The bridesmaids were Misses Elsie Gibbony, of Lewistown, and Edith Fearon, of Beech Creek. Ushers, Messrs, Edward Leyden, Harry Fearon, Henry Quigley, J. W. Alexander, Frank Gibbony and Harry Leyden. The bride wore white laces and embroidered crepe; Miss Gibbony, white surah; Miss Fearon, corn-colored laces. The reception at the bride's home after the ceremony, was attended by a hundred guests. The bride and groom drove to Lock Haven and took the midnight train for a tour east, after which they will make their home in Chicago where Mr. Elliott is an electrical surgeon connected with the Edison Company in that city.

DROWNED IN HER CELLAR.—On Saturday Phillipsburg was the scene of another drowning accident: Mrs. Alfred Wallace, a resident of that place, was found, about noon, lying face downward in about two feet of water which lay in the cellar of her home on Second street. One of her sons, having come home for dinner and seeing the door into the pantry, which also opened on the cellar stairs—open, went to look for his mother, when upon looking down the stairs he beheld her lying in the water. Quickly arousing his brother who was sleeping at the time, they carried her up and ran for a physician, but he pronounced life entirely extinct. Mrs. Wallace was subject to aberration of the mind and it is supposed that on going to the pantry, to prepare for dinner, she was stricken with paralysis and fell down the stairs. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in the bereavement which so sadly came upon them.

ANOTHER BRAKEMAN KILLED.—At 5:30 on Saturday morning the first section of train No. 8, consisting of 200 cars drawn by five engines, left Tyrone for Osceola. Nathan Woomer was a brakeman on the train and when Osceola was reached he was missed. A telegram to Tyrone started an engine in search of the poor fellow and it had not gone far when a portion of the unfortunate man's body was found. Parts of it were scattered along the track for half a mile. The cause is unknown, but as the train broke soon after leaving Tyrone it is supposed that he fell off. A wife and four young children are left without a father and any support.

THE COUNCIL MEETING.—On Monday evening the old Town Council assembled for the last time but one. Pres. Gault was in the chair and Messrs Howley, Bauer, Gross, Longacre, Hill, bish and Potter were the members present. Little business of importance was done. The Street, Water, Fire, Police and Nuisance committees having been called upon for reports, which were not made, a small transaction of the Finance Committee was approved. Several complaints were heard and referred to the proper committees, after which the session was adjourned to meet, for the last time, on Monday morning next, at 9 o'clock a. m. The newly elected members will take their seats at 10 o'clock.

Miss M. y. Reed, daughter of Dr. T. B. Reed, of Osceola Mills, eloped with Samuel Hamilton, of that place, on Saturday last. The young people left for Philadelphia, but when they got off the Reading train at 9th and Green streets an officer kindly informed them that he wanted to take them home to their mans.
