Medicinal.

VERY IMPORTANT.

The importance of taking a good Spring Medicine cannot be overestimated. The changing weather affects the human system in such a way that it is now in great need of and especially susceptible to the benefit to be derived from a reliable preparation like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

SPRING MEDICINE.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla is invaluable as a spring medicine; it invigorates the whole system and tones up the stomach, and since I became acquainted with Hood's Sarsaparilla I always take several bottles in the spring, and as occasion requires, the rest of the year." L. U. GILMAN, Annetta, Iowa.

GOOD HEALTH AND ENERGY.

"We have been using Hood's Sarsaparilla in the family for several years. I do wish that every family had it in the house, as it would make times better, i. e., every one would have more confidence and energy after taking a few bottles. Good health and energy improve business, poor health the reverse; if all took Hood's Sarsaparilla there would be no dull times. I will always use it and advise others to."

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL REMEDY

ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

BERKELSON, Pa., Nov. 27, 1890.

Dr. B. J. KENDALL Co.: Gents—I would like to make known to those who are almost persuaded to use Kendall's Spavin Cure the fact that I think it is a most excellent Linctum. I have used it on a Blood Spavin. The horse went on three legs for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used ten bottles on the horse and have worked him for three years since and has not been lame.

Yours truly, WM. A. CURL.

GERMANTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 2, 1889.

Dr. B. J. KENDALL Co.: Enosburgh Falls, N. Y.

Gents—In praise of Kendall's Spavin Cure I will say, that a year ago had a valuable young horse become very lame, hock enlarged and swollen. The horseman about here (we have no Veterinary Surgeon here) pronounced his lameness Blood Spavin or Thoroughpin. They all told me there was no cure for it, he became worthless. A friend told me of the merits of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, so I bought a bottle, and I could see very plainly great improvement immediately from its use, and before the bottle was used up I was satisfied that it was doing him a great deal of good. I bought a second bottle and before it was used up my horse was cured and has been in the team doing heavy work all the season since last April showing no more signs of it. I consider your Kendall's Spavin Cure a valuable medicine, and it should be in every stable in the land. Respectfully yours, EUGENE DEWITT.

Prices $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

Ants in Africa.

Silently, deadly and irresistibly move these battalions; out of the forest, down into, across and up the ditch, through the boma, (wood stockade) across the square and in into every nook and cranny conceivable they swarmed.

The first notice (they generally came at night) would be a loud yell from some of the men. "Look out! Sifa!!" There would be no more sleep that night. After experience gained, we found it the best plan to clear out of our houses, rush into the square and build rings of fire around our persons. To put on one's clothes was to get bitten by dozens all over one's body, unless they had been first thoroughly smoked over a fire. Every now and then yells and curses told how a lazy one got caught in his bunk. The sides of the huts, the roofs and floors, were simply one seething mass of struggling ants. They were after the cockroaches, mice and insects that had taken up their abode in the roofs. Now and then squeaks of young mice told their story. As fast as the ants found their load (generally a cockroach) they would make off down hill in long lines. Luckily they never touched our granaries; they seemed to prefer animal food. Toward morning there would only be a few thousand lost ones, aimlessly tearing about, apparently looking for the main body which had just decamped.

Usually these raids on us were made after a rain storm; many of them came into the fort already staggering under loads; those appeared to wander about until the rest were ready. Next day not a roach could be found in the place, so that the ants did us a service in ridding us of these pests. The rats would decamp also, and did not return for some days.

We have seen outside the fort armies of red ants two and a half days long, i. e. they would take two and a half days in passing a given spot. During the day the march would be incessant, every one marching at his very best; toward night they would huddle up in a seething mass, and if disturbed scatter in all directions.

The width of the stream of ants would be about two inches generally. On the flanks of these were the soldiers, fully twice the length of the workers. On our approach these big chaps would run out and up our legs like lightning. No birds, but of one sort, seemed to trouble them; these were little fellows about as big as sparrows and of a dull gray color.

Harrison Begins His Tour.

A "Swing Around the Circle" That Is Full of Business.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 13.—The President, having no fear of Italy before his eyes, left at midnight on the second great "swing around the circle" in the history of American politics, somewhat depressed, his friends say, by the disastrous precedent in 1893. His friends make no secret of the fact that, while other members of the party this may prove a pleasure trip, for the President it is as full of business as the regular run of a commercial traveler.

Leaving Blaine and Rusk here, Sherman and McKinley in Ohio, and Alger in Michigan, the President has set forth to get delegates for the Convention of 1892, and to get votes for Benjamin Harrison for the election of 1892.

He has a trunkful of impromptu speeches and his best smiles with him, and proposes to capture the country. Especial attention is to be paid to the dissatisfied farmers and the disgruntled negroes. All Federal officers, but especially postmasters, are to be braced up. The Postmaster General's presence was deemed indispensable by the President. Meanwhile Secretary Foster will run the Harrison machine here.

"Delaware farmers and fruit growers," says the Philadelphia Record, "who have been in the city within the last few days say that there are prospects for 7,000,000 baskets of peaches this year. The orchards and trees are loaded with buds, in a good healthy condition, and not too far advanced to be injured by an ordinary frost. The buds cling closely to the branches, and it takes considerable energy to knock them off. Old peach-growers, like ex-Governor Biggs, the Commons, John P. K. Parks and Colonel Wilbur H. Rurnite, look for the largest crop. The present appearance, that there has been on the peninsula for years."

POOR MAN'S RICE PUDDING (a la Creole).—Two quarts rich fresh milk, one stick of cinnamon, one cupful of loaf sugar rasped on lemon peel, half a cupful of rice. Take out one pint of the milk. Put all the other ingredients together in a wide, shallow, earthenware dish, and set on the top of the stove for one hour and a half, then set it in a slow oven. When it begins to bake put in half the reserved milk, fifteen minute later the rest of the milk. The pudding should bake an hour in all; eat cold.

To clean mirrors take a piece of clean sponge squeezed dry, dip it into some spirits of wine, rub it over the glass, and this again immediately after with some powdered glue or whiting and then finally polish with an old silk handkerchief. Do not go over more than a small space at a time, so that the spirits of wine may be wiped off before it has dried, which it does quickly. The whole secret of the process consists in its rapidity.

Mrs. Greathead—"What kept you so late at that meeting?" Mr. Greathead—"I had to draw up a long set of resolutions for publication, complimenting Mr. Bullhead's great efficiency as a member of the board and expressing our heartfelt regret at losing his invaluable aid and counsel." "Of all things! Why, you and the rest have been fighting for three months to get him out of the board." "Yes; but to-night he resigned voluntarily."

The Weight of Eggs.

The specific gravity of a new-laid egg varies from 1.080 to 1.090, an egg therefore, is heavier than seawater, the specific gravity of which is 1.030. When kept, eggs rapidly lose weight and become specifically lighter than water—this is owing to the diminution in bulk of the contents of the egg, the consequence of which is that a portion of the inside of the egg comes to be filled with air.

Prout kept an egg two years and found that it lost weight daily at an average rate of 0.744 grains. The original weight was 907.5 grains, and after two years' exposure to the atmosphere it weighed only 853.2 grains. The total loss amounted to 54.3 grains, or considerable more than half the original weight. The loss in summer was somewhat greater than in winter, owing no doubt, to the difference of temperature. When an egg is therefore employed as a test of strength of brine, the newer it is the stronger the brine that floats it.

When an egg is boiled in water it loses weight, particularly if it be removed from the water when boiling and be permitted to cool in the open air. The water will be found to contain a portion of the saline constituents of the egg. The loss of weight from boiling is not constant, varying from twenty to thirty grains, supposing the original weight to have been 1,000 grains.

Alone in the World.

The man who has no family ties, no sympathizing companions, no genial relations with his fellow men is very properly said to be "alone in the world." But such utter isolation can only be the result of volition. Even the unfortunate who has outlived all who were nearest and dearest to him, and can say with "the lone Indian" Logan, "Not a drop of my blood runs in the veins of any living creature," may find friends who will, in part, at least, supply the places of the dead.

We hear sometimes of people, who have been sored by misfortune or injustice, retiring from the world. The more fools they. The world can do without them, but they cannot so well do without the world. The more they mope in solitude the more unhappy they must necessarily become, for man is constitutionally gregarious and social, and cannot live a hermit life without violating the conditions upon which his mental health depends. The most terrible punishment which the law can inflict upon a criminal is the living death of perpetual solitary confinement. What downright idocy, then, it must be to seek in loneliness a balm for sorrow.—New York Ledger.

Perfume and Cleanliness.

How many ladies know that the sweetest odors with which they love to surround themselves are really stimulating and refreshing—lavender and lemon that our grandmothers folded away in chests of linen, roses and violets that breathe in gentle fragrance from every fold and frill of sweet woman's habiliments to-day, even the most homely scents of sage and benzine. There is an occasional grumbler who, for want of something else to criticize, professes an aversion to this perfume habit among women, and descants learnedly on the superattraction of well bathed nature's own fragrance emanating from a cleanly person clothed in fresh linen.

But the grumbler doesn't understand that the faint, delicate fragrance of perfume is the sign manual of perfect cleanliness. Sweet odors, like fresh flowers, fade swiftly when brought in proximity with a person which, from disease or carelessness, emits any poisonous vapors. So the next time you meet a lady with that faint, intoxicating fragrance lingering in her garments you may know for a certainty that the cleanliness that is next to godliness is the basis and beginning of the fragrance that delights you.

HADN'T THE DESIRED EFFECT.—"Your pride in these beautiful and well kept grounds, ma'am," said the seedy tramp blandly, as he leaned against the fence and addressed the lady on the inside, "is entirely pardonable. Might I venture to ask if you have any cold?" "Pardonable!" exclaimed the lady sharply. "Who's asking anybody's pardon for being proud of them? You move on!"

And he moved on. He had selected the wrong adjective.

Linoleum, oil and other floor cloths last double the time and look much better if waxed and polished after the fashion of stained floors, but with a thinner preparation. Some people, however, calling for the more familiar process, in which case it should be done with great care. Use a softer brush than for boards, with soft soap. It is a great improvement to polish occasionally, after drying, with a soft flannel sprinkled with sweet oil. If the floor cloth is stained use hot soda-water with a little turpentine and carbolic soap.

Old lady (in drug store to small boy)—"What am I to take this medicine in, sonny?" "Sonny take it in your mouth, mum; 'taint to be rubbed in."

Husband—Six hundred dollars for that sack? Dealer—But, sir, it's a perfect skin. Husband—A perfect skin! Yes, I know it is. Come on Clara!

"Do you suppose I shall ever know as much as you do, papa?" "I hope not, my boy. But, after all, you'll have to take your chances."

Ethel—Does this picture do me justice? Maud—It does something nobler, dear. It shows you mercy.

AWFUL ITCHING SKIN.

SUFFERING TERRIBLE COULD NOT SCRATCH ENOUGH. TRIED EVERY MEDICINE AND MANY DOCTORS.

NOTHING HELPED HER. GAVE UP HOPE. HEARS OF CUTICURA USES THEM AND SPEEDILY CURED.

For years I have suffered with a terrible itching, especially on my feet, that I thought I would scratch the very flesh from them. I used everything there was in patent medicines and what my physicians gave me; in fact, I had a physician from New York, but nothing helped me. Later I began to have a fearful hand covered with something that resembled fish scales, not alone it, but intense pain. I was utterly disgusted, believed in no medicines, and gave it up as being incurable, when a friend of mine told me of the Cuticura Remedies, which I said I would try for the last thing. I wrote for one of your pamphlets, received it, and bought a box of Cuticura, a cake of Cuticura Soap, and a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent; and I gave these three my most heartfelt thanks, for I am now a lady of fifty-years, and am as healthy and have as beautiful a skin as a young girl of twenty-two. I would not be able to tell you how long it took to cure me, but I have told all my friends, and all of them have proved to be remedied, and they always have proved to be faithful in curing. MRS. C.
