We have on hand and for sale the best assortment of Buggies, Buggy, and Spring Wagons we have ever had. We have Dexter, Brewster, Elliptic, and Thomas Coll Springs, with Pano and Whitechapel bodies, and can give you a choice of the different patterns of wheels. Our work is the best made in this section, made by good workmen and of good material. We claim to be the only party manufacturing in town who ever served an apprenticeship to the business. Along with that we have had forty years' experience in the business, which certainly should give us the advantage over inexperienced parties.

In price we defy competition, as we have no Pedlers, Clerks or Runts to pay. We pay cash for all our goods, thereby securing them at the lowest figures and discounts. We are determined not to be undersold, either in our own make or manufactured work from other places; so give us a call for Buggies, Phaetons, Buggies, Spring Wagons, Buckboards, or anything else in our line, and we will accommodate you.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

DEVERON, PA., Nov. 27, 1890.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:

Gentle—I would like to make known to those who are almost persuaded to use Kendall's Spavin Cure the fact that I think it is a most excellent Liniment. I have used it on a Blood Spavin. The horse went on three legs for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used ten bottles on the horse and he worked him for three years since and has not been lame.

Yours truly, WM. A. CURL.

GREENTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 2, 1889.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:

Enosburgh Falls, Vt. Gentle—In praise of Kendall's Spavin Cure I will say, that a year ago I had a valuable young horse become very lame, look enlarged and swollen. The horse was about here (we have no Veterinary Surgeon here) pronounced his lameness Blood Spavin or Thoroughpin, they told me there was no cure for it, he became almost useless, and I considered him almost worthless. A friend told me of the merits of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, so I bought a bottle, and I could see very plainly great improvements immediately from its use, and before the bottle was used up I was satisfied that it was doing him a great deal of good. I bought a second bottle and before it was used up my horse was cured and has been in the team doing heavy work all the season since last April showing no more signs of it. I consider your Kendall's Spavin Cure a valuable medicine, and it should be in every stable in the land. Respectfully yours, EUGENE DEWITT.

Prices $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors.

The Whole Court Wasn't Drunk.

In one of the municipal courts of Boston, a prisoner pleaded drunkenness in extenuation upon a charge of theft. The principal witness, a more than commonly stupid policeman, was asked by the magistrate: "What did the man say when you arrested him?"

Witness—"He said he was drunk."

Magistrate—"I want his precise words exactly as he uttered them. He did not use the pronoun 'he,' did he—didn't say 'he was drunk?'"

Witness—"Oh, yes, he did—he acknowledged the corn."

Magistrate (losing patience)—"You don't understand me at all; I want the words as he uttered them. Did he not say 'I am drunk?'"

Witness—(deprecatingly) "Oh, no, your Honor, he didn't say you were drunk. I would not allow a man to charge that against you in my presence."

Prosecutor—"Pshaw, you don't comprehend at all. His Honor means did not the prisoner say to you, 'I was drunk?'"

Witness—"Well, he might have said you were drunk but I did not hear him say it."

Counsel for Prisoner—"What the court desires is that you should state the prisoner's own words, preserving the precise form of pronoun that he employed. Was it the first person, I, the second person, you, or the third person, he, she, or it? Now then (with severity) upon your oath, did not my client say 'I was drunk?'"

Witness (getting mad)—"No; he did not say you were drunk, either; but if he had I reckon he would not have lied any. Do you suppose the fellow charged the whole court with being drunk?"

American Beef Abroad.

Two Views of Our Minister's Success in Getting It Into Germany.

Three hundred American oxen, we just learn, were quietly landed at Hamburg a few weeks ago, after Mr. Phelps, the American Minister, had succeeded in securing the permission of the Government to try the importation into Germany of American cattle. The business is said to have been conducted very quietly, and to have been known only by the Minister, the German customs and the Hamburg authorities. It looks as if the possibility of a miscarriage of the experiment had been feared and disinclination felt in some quarter to enlighten the public on the matter. Meantime, success as far as American beef is concerned, has dispelled all these apprehensions. In Berlin Mr. Phelps has at his table repeatedly afforded to a number of invited guests proof of the excellence of American beef; and in Hamburg costly arrangements have been made, after the model of the new Paris abattoirs, with the view of furnishing the beef, after careful examination of American cattle by veterinary surgeons, directly to the butchers for sale.

A Dog That Knew a Great Deal.

They were telling dog stories yesterday in the agricultural department, says the Atlanta Constitution, and, after Walter de Wolf had narrated some of the remarkable instances of his dog's wonderful intelligence, Will Henderson began talking.

"The father of De Wolf's dog," he said, "is nearly the most intelligent animal I ever saw. Why, he can almost talk. I used to give him a quarter every morning and he took it in his mouth way into town and would wait at the butcher's until they gave him his meat and fifteen cents change to bring back. One day the butcher thought he would play a joke and he gave the dog back 10 cents change instead of 15. Sadly the dog looked at the two nickels for a minute, then he went out. Five minutes later he returned leading a policeman by the end of his coat. Now that was a dog worth

Blaine Denounced at Home.

AUGUST, Me., April 19.—Ira G. Ross pastor of the Methodist Church here, and who has been very active in pushing the temperance war, has issued an address in which he severely criticises Mr. Blaine. He objects to Mr. Blaine sending out the army to the manufacture of beer, and says that Mr. Blaine is in league with the brewers. The attack has greatly offended Mr. Blaine's friends. The crusade against liquor continues. Mayor Chase and the Governor have signed a petition demanding the enforcement of the law, and the raiding of saloons and hotels is a frequent occurrence.

The brightness of the moon is not so very much greater than the brightness of the same area of sky. The total light of the full moon can be compared with the total light of the sun, though it is a very difficult problem, and the result will be that the sun is as bright as 680,000 full moons.

—The Buchanan, Ga., Messenger says: "Our foreman has quit the use of tobacco; that is, he totally abstained from the use of yesterday, and is tapering off to-day with a chew of gum and a package of cigarettes. With such a beginning, he will be tapering off tomorrow with a plug of tobacco."

—Rev. David C. Kelley, who was suspended from the Methodist ministry for six months for running as a candidate for Governor of Tennessee on the Prohibition ticket, has been restored to favor, but the Bishop is not yet able to say whether a fresh appointment will be given him immediately.

It Was Too Much.
"Do many people kick about a shortage of ice?" was asked an ice dealer the other day.

"Heaps of 'em," was the reply.

"And do they have a valid excuse?"

"Not one in twenty. They feel it obligatory to drop in and claim light weight, but not one in a hundred ever weighs a lump to be sure about it. And then nearly every lump is allowed to lay at the gate from 15 to 60 minutes, and the sun melts off five pounds in a very little time."

"I suppose you can tell a kicker as soon as he enters."

"I can. Hush! One has just struck the floor of the stairs. Wait and see the circus."

The steps came nearer and nearer, and presently a red faced man opened the door, glanced around, and asked:

"Is this the ice office?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I came to see about my ice."

"Yes," was the non-committal reply as the ice man winked at the reporter.

"The lumps look very small to me."

"Yes."

"I guessed their weight to be about 17 pounds."

"Yes."

"Where I ought to have 25."

"Exactly."

"And so I got a pair of scales and weighed them for a week."

"I see. How much was the shortage?"

"Shortage! Why, man, every lump weighed 27 pounds, and some of them thirty, and we come in to pay you for 19 extra pounds for last week. How much is it?"

The ice man turned red—then white—began to tremble, and finally pitched off his stool to the floor. When the reporter raised him up he was as dead as a mackerel. The sudden shock had killed him.

A Modest Looking Girl's Experiment.

She had one of those sweet angelic faces, with great, prayerful gray eyes, and no one would think that there was anything of the joker about her. She sat in a front pew in one of the fashionable up-town churches. Her pretty head was bowed over her prayer book. All was as quiet as a tomb in church, and the silence seemed to impress her. Suddenly she looked up, and her great gray eyes quickly surveyed the crowd of silent worshippers. Then just the faintest suggestion of a laugh crept into her gray eyes, and she coughed two or three little coughs.

Then the head went down over the prayer book again and the smile on her face broadened as her neighbor coughed, and her neighbor's neighbor coughed, and the cough was taken up here and there and everywhere until the once silent tabernacle had the sounds peculiar to the consumptive ward in a big hospital.

As the sweet young lady with the big eyes came out of church she was heard to say to her escort:

"Now, you see that coughing in church is largely a matter of habit. One person coughs and the rest of the congregation follow suit. I know it was very wicked of me, but when I looked up and noticed how silent everybody was, I had to try the experiment of seeing how many people would cough if I did. It was such fun."

A Trail of Blood.

A Bullet-Riddled Burglar Drags Himself to Cover.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., April 19.—The police are searching for a half dead burglar, who was shot Thursday night while endeavoring to raid the house of Jonathan Youcm, on the turnpike west of North Wales. The fellow was disturbed just as he had pried open a window and entered the house, by Elmer Youcm, a youth who fired two shots at him. The man threw himself out of the window and escaped, leaving a trail of blood.

At daylight the fellow's path could be followed for some distance, and the impression of his body was seen twice in the muddy road, where he had fallen in his extreme weakness. The burglar lost a dirk knife in his flight.

Six Postal Clerks Killed.

Frightful Collision of Trains on the Lake Shore Road.

CLEVELAND, April 19.—A wreck occurred on the Lake Shore railroad, at Kipton Station, about forty miles west of Cleveland, early last evening, in which six postal clerks and two engineers were killed.

The fast mail, No. 14, bound east, collided with No. 21, the Toledo express, just as the latter train was about to pull on the siding to let the fast mail pass. The fast mail was running at full speed, and the force of the collision was so great that both engines, three mail cars and one baggage car were completely wrecked.

Superficial Judgment of Men.

In our judgment of men we are to be aware of giving any great importance to occasional acts. By acts of occasional generosity, weak men endeavor to redeem themselves in their own estimation; vain men to exalt themselves in that of mankind. It may be observed that there are no men more worthless and selfish, in the general tenor of their lives, than some, who, from time to time, perform feats of generosity. Sentimental selfishness will commonly vary its indulgence in this way, and vainglorious selfishness will break out into acts of munificence. But self government and self denial are not to be relied upon for any real strength, except in so far as they are found to be exercised in detail.

"I observe the Twistem girls are very lofty in their manner—quite stuck up—since they have got into society," remarked the Judge.

"Well, that's all right and perfectly natural," replied the Major.

"How so?"

"A bold man made his fortune in the muelage business, you know."

ITCHING SCALY SCALP

WITH THREATENED LOSS OF LUXURANT HAIR, 50 INCHES LONG, CURED BY CUTICURA FOR $1.25.

Warm weather caused my head to perspire very much, causing an irritation developing into a scaly, itching scalp, which was further aggravated by itching fingers, causing a scale to cover the lower part of my head. My doctor recommended that I should cut my hair short in order to more easily apply treatment, as he felt assured it would otherwise spread all over my head and probably kill the roots. As I have a very abundant head of hair, fifty inches long, I demurred much. What was prescribed in the meantime gave no help. The itching sensation was so intense, it was simply impossible to keep my nails away. I washed it each day, with a soft sponge and Cuticure Soap. Then after drying well and rubbing briskly, I applied Cuticure Salve. I did not use a whole piece of soap and but one box and one half of the Cuticure Ointment. My scalp has been thoroughly healthy for one year, and I feel free to give you my warmest recommendation.
