Care of Cut Flowers.

How to Keep Them Fresh a Long While—Timely Hints.

The care of cut flowers is something few women seem to understand. Hundreds of dollars are spent in the purchasing of lovely flowers that are allowed to perish all too soon, just for the want of a little attention. The delight of having one's room brightened by fresh flowers is so great that it is not surprising that the perishable beauties if those who cared for them knew the great difference it would make whether they were merely put in water or whether they were "nursed" and "petted" a little.

Roses should always have the end of the stem clipped off with a pair of sharp scissors and some of the pretty green leaves taken off. Do not crowd your vases. Give the flowers plenty of water and change the water daily. At night put all the stems neatly together and roll a newspaper about the upper part of the bunch, leaving no space for the air to get in. Then plunge the flowers into a deep pitcher or jar full of water nearly up to their heads and put them in a cool place, if you have one, or in any cool place where the will rest all night.

Very drooping roses will thus come out fresh and stiff-stemmed in the morning. Some varieties of roses will keep a week if put to bed this way each night. Another good way is to shut them up in a high galvanized tin can, or in a tin box, if you have one, or in any cool place where the will rest all night.

Very drooping roses will thus come out fresh and stiff-stemmed in the morning. Some varieties of roses will keep a week if put to bed this way each night. Another good way is to shut them up in a high galvanized tin can, or in a tin box, if you have one, or in any cool place where the will rest all night.

Lilies are more easily kept. They only need plenty of fresh water, a good light and to have the ends of the stalks clipped lightly from day to day. The writer has never failed to make a lily-plant small it may have been, and has several times had a bud open after three weeks of waiting.

Poppies are a joy if you can buy the buds, they open so perfectly in water, with the same rich colors and dainty texture of petals.

Forget-me-nots will last from two to four weeks if once well started, but the pretty leaves must be cut off and the stems put deep in the water; then the stalks will grow and every tiny bud blossom beautifully. A clear glass is the best to put them in.

A bunch of "Wandering Jew" cut in late October is a joy and comfort through all the long, dreary winter if put in a pretty glass and kept on a sunny window-sill. Just keep the glass filled with water and occasionally refresh the vines; they will grow fast.

You may have to cut them off from time to time, or you can train them to twine around cords, etc., but you have a cheerful bit of green with so little of expense or trouble.

Pansies, marguerites and violets all freshen up wonderfully, even after they have been worn or carried until but a little withered heap, if they receive the proper attention. And it is the same old story of loosening the cluster, clipping off the little stems and putting them up to the dainty little heads in a fresh, cool water. Almost invariably after a bath and rest they are as fresh as tired human flowers after the same treatment.

In our small city houses growing plants take too much room. Cut flowers are easily obtained, but very expensive, therefore it pays to take good care of them and learn how to keep them fresh and sweet. Most flowers keep better with very little foliage. You must use separate stems for the green effects. Some rose leaves can usually be kept if care is taken to cut off some part and watch the first day or so that the flower does not droop.

Home Life Among Royalty.

Life at Sandringham is very simple, says Lady Elizabeth Hilary in the London Journal. The Prince of Wales breakfasts with his sons and any male members of the royal family who may be there; the Princess breakfasts in her private apartment, while in the old-fashioned room still known as the school room. When this meal is over they come down to say good morning to their father, and are usually accompanied by a group of pet dogs. The gentlemen go out shooting or riding, while the ladies in the house amuse themselves with books and papers and later in the day, are joined by the Princess. Luncheon brings all together, and this informal meal is when the season will permit, served in a tent, put up in the woods near where the mighty hunters are. The Princess leads the procession going to this in a smart yellow cart drawn by the plumpest of ponies, driving herself and one of her lady guests. She is, by-the-by, an extremely good whip.

Luncheon over, the ladies return to Sandringham House, every body meeting again at five o'clock tea, and dinner being served in the dining-room at about half-past eight o'clock. The Prince and Princess dine with their guests, the Princess sitting in the center of one-side of the table, while the prince is exactly opposite. When desert is served a piper plays the bagpipes in the corridor outside, in a variety of Highland style, that is, pacing backwards and forwards.

—There are men in California who have not been to their eastern homes since they left them as boys to seek their fortunes in the unknown West. They have grown so accustomed to one line of life that it seems like breaking up house-keeping to start out on a visit to the scene of their childhood. The road by which they came, weeks, and with some months long, appals them, and the idea of crossing the dread plains of 49 in four days, as it is done now, never becomes a part of their belief. Yet it is the ambition and intention of each and every one of them to see the old home again before they die, and make one last survey of the old haunts, now but fading memories. If all these good intentions are realized and hopes are not dashed to pieces, at least half of California will be scattered over the Union during the progress of the World's Fair.

Nickel Savings Banks.

Begun purely as a philanthropic movement, without the expectation of profit to their managers, savings banks have grown to prominence in financial systems. The first of these institutions of which there is an account was established by Mrs. Priscilla Wakefield, in England, in 1811, under the title "Friendly Society for the Benefit of Women and Children," and was intended to encourage thrift among the wage earners. Sixteen years later, under government control, there were twenty-eight of these societies to take charge of the savings of the poor. Afterwards "Banks for the poor" were organized on business principles under regular banking rules until, as shown by the statistics of 1889, there were 1,600,000 depositors whose savings amounted to $14,000,000.

In 1816, at Boston, the first savings bank was started in this country, and was known as the "Provident Savings Institution." In 1817, it had deposits amounting to $8,818,836. The scheme of savings banks has been very popular in this country, and the number of these institutions is almost co-extensive with the number of towns and cities. The United States has greatly surpassed the old world in this particular, and the superior condition of the working classes attests the practical good results of them. In New England alone 594 savings banks in 1880 had $824,515,162 in deposits. It is observed, however, that the poorer classes do not much avail themselves of the advantages of these institutions, the depositors being in the great majority the middle or comfortable classes. In Europe, on the contrary, savings banks appeal chiefly to the humblest wage earner. The practice of thrift and economy where they are most desired is correspondingly greater in Europe than with us. There penny savings banks are numerous; here the nickel savings bank is the minimum.

But these banks are increasing, and though but recently introduced, it is believed they will prove of very great service in bringing into line the classes that have hitherto ignored savings banks altogether. The first nickel savings stamp system was started in Detroit two years ago, following the plan inaugurated in Frankfurt, Germany, in 1852. It is now in a flourishing condition, and about 70 per cent of the purchasers of stamps are children under 15 years. This begins in the right place with the lessons in economy and saving. The plan is simply to buy the stamps issued by the bank and paste them on a special page of a prepared book. When a page is filled with stamps it represents $1, and the page is then mailed to the bank, and the sender is accredited with the $1, which straightway begins drawing interest at a rate of 4 per cent. The plan is simple and recommends itself in time to be a feature of every city in the Union, since it is a good financial scheme and appeals to the poorest wage-earner as a convenient medium for saving.

A Four Corned Fight.

An actor told a story the other evening about a fencing master in London who had two sons. Both of them like their father, were physical giants. Who was the strongest and best fighter was a disputed question until a burglar got into the house one night. One of the sons opening the front door with a latch key late at night, found a robber in the hall. They immediately clinched. The other brother, hearing the noise, rushed down stairs, and not being able in the dark to distinguish a burglar from a worthy and honest citizen of London, proceeded to pound both men whom he ran against. Meanwhile brother No. 1, thinking there were two burglars in the house, turned half of his attention to the enemy and the fight became desperate. The father, awoken by the uproar, rushed downstairs with a heavy walking stick. Then the fight was something to admire, but to avoid. When it was all over and the gas was lighted by the aged fencing master, it was discovered that he had whipped not only the burglar but his two sons. When this story was told an Englishman was one of the party. "Well," he said, "I never heard of a burglar so reckless as to enter the house of an English fencing master. Served him right."

He Knew the Soil.

Gen. Sherman unlike the majority of great soldiers who are celebrated for planning great campaigns, possessed ready wit and glibness and his match at repartee. A good story is told of a reply he made to a southern journalist during his visit to Atlanta in recent years. The journalist asked the general and began exploiting the quality of Georgian soil.

"There is scarcely a fruit or vegetable," said he, "that cannot be successfully grown in the State. One can raise almost anything on such soil as this."

"I believe you," replied Sherman, "with a smile. It is only a few years since I raised h on it myself."

—An officer of the Second Connecticut regiment, in a letter to his family, says: "The best thing I ever heard of happened at the battle of Fair Oaks. Right in the hottest of the battle two of the Second's boys got at loggerheads with each other, threw down their muskets and fell to it at fist-cuffs, had it out, picked up their arms and pitched into the row again. I have heard of a wheel within a wheel, but a battle within a battle is certainly something new."

—I have been a great sufferer from dry catarrh for many years, and I tried many remedies, but none did me so much benefit as Ely's Cream Balm. It completely cured me. M. J. Lally, 39 Woodward Ave., Boston Highlands, Mass.

A Boomerang.—If you insist on breaking our engagement, Miss Fickle, I shall make your letters public."

"You are welcome to do so, Mr. Scamper; there is nothing in them that I am ashamed of except the address."

Catarrh originates in gonorrhoeal taint. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, and thus permanently cures catarrh.

A Reminiscence of Delamater.

Uniontown genius.

We see that George Wallace Delamater was in Harrisburg this week, and called on Governor Patison and had a pleasant time. We are glad of it. Poor Delamater! The last time we saw him he was cavorting about the opera house stage saying something about "When I am governor," and strange as it may seem, there were a few people in the audience who thought he was "in it," and that he would be governor. What queer people some of the voters are in this country!

SCHOFIELD'S NEW HARNES HOUSE.

We extend a most cordial invitation to our patrons and the public, in general, to witness one of the ever put on the Bellefonte market, which will be made in the large room, formerly occupied by Harper Bros., on Spring street. It has been added to my factory and will be used exclusively for the sale of harness, being the first exclusive sales-room erected in this town, as heretofore the custom has been to sell goods in the room in which they were made. This elegant room has been fitted and furnished with glass cases in which the harness can be nicely displayed and still kept away from heat and dust, which enemies of long wear in leather. Our factory now occupies a room 10x74 feet and the store 20x20 added makes it the largest establishment of its kind outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburg.
GRANDEST DISPLAYS OF

We are prepared to offer better bargains in the future than we have done in the past, and we want everyone to see our goods and get prices for when you do this, out of self defense you will say "Our profits are not large, but by selling lots of goods we can afford to live in Bellefonte. We are not indulging in idle philanthropy. It is purely business. We are not making much, but trade is growing and that is what we are interested in now. Profits will take care of themselves."

When other houses discharged their workmen during the winter they were all put to work in my factory, nevertheless the big houses of this city and county would smile if we compared ourselves to them, but we do not care to be so odious, except to venture the assertion that none of them can say, as we can say "NO ONE OWES US A CENT THAT WE CAN'T GET." This is the whole story.

The following are kept constantly on hand.
$150 worth of whips
$800 to $1500 and upwards, LARGE STOCK OF HEAVY HARNESS, per set $20 and up to $400 HORSE COLLARS from $1.50 to $5.00 each, over $1000 worth of HARNESS OILS and AXLE GREASE,
$400 worth of Fly Nets sold cheap from $1.00 to $3.00 each, for sale. Harness leather as low as 25c per pound. We keep everything to be found in a FIRST CLASS HARNESS STORE—no thing over 20 years in the same room. No two shops in the same town to catch trade—NO SELLING OUT for the want of trade or prices. Four harness-makers at steady work this winter. This is our idea of protection to labor, when other houses discharged their hands, they soon found work with us.
