

THE JUDGMENT.

Thou hast done evil
And given place to the devil;
Yet so cunningly thou concealest
The thing which thou feelest,
That no eye espieth it,
Satan himself cannot see it.
Go where it chooseth thee,
There is none that accuseth thee,
Neither foe nor lover,
Will the wrong uncover:
The world's breath raiseth thee,
And thy own past praisheth thee.

He Was a Strategist.

He came into the office of a merchant on Jefferson avenue, and with a cheery "good morning" as a familiar friend, pulled a chair up near the desk and sat down. The merchant eyed him for a moment and quietly remarked: "Well?"

"Yes, thank you," he replied with a smile. "I hope you are well also." "It almost jarred the merchant out of his chair." "I didn't ask you if you were well or not," he said, getting hot, "and it is not of your business how I am. What do you want?"

"I want a million dollars and a palace, and a yacht, and a four-in-hand," he rattled away. "Confound you," angrily exclaimed the merchant, "what do I care what you want?" "I don't really know," he answered in the best humor imaginable, "but I presume you did care or you wouldn't have asked me."

"Come, come," stammered the angry merchant, "this is past endurance. You are a perfect stranger to me, and you come in here and take up my time and talk like an idiot. What did you come here for?" "For a few minutes only," said the visitor, serenely, and with the same placid demeanor.

"Oh, did you?" and the merchant jumped out of his chair and started for him. "Well, if you don't get out in two minutes I'll break your head for you." "Now—now—you are talking business," calmly responded the visitor. "Go right on and break my head, and my arm, and leg. That will lay me up for at least two weeks, and I'll get $50 a week from the first accident insurance company in all this beautiful world of ours, sir, the very finest and surest, and most reliable and richest. I represent that company sir. Don't you want a policy with us? Dead sure snap on $50 a week if you are injured by any accident and $10,000 spot cash and no commissions if you get killed. I carry two policies myself and when I hear a man talk about using me as you threaten to do I fairly beam with joy, and break out on me in great blotches. I have been—"

"For heaven's sake," interrupted the victim, "shut up! How much is a policy for a year? Give me one quick and get out before I commit suicide and stick your company for the full value." Ten minutes later the victim was in the net, and the captor had departed with his gall for the next one.

An Amateur Bank Runner.

A party of men were exchanging reminiscences of early oldsm Saturday afternoon, and the conversation turned on the differences between the banking facilities now and then. Stories were told of carrying money from Titusville to Pleasantville and to Tidouet after night, when they expected to be way-laid every minute. One man who had been sitting quiet for some time; said: "I had an experience once that makes me bless the existence of April fool's day. I was going to Titusville one morning on the train. 'By' Taylor was conductor and Ed Sackett, froman. Just before the train started Captain J. J. Vandergrift came up with a package and asked me to give it to John Satterfield when I saw him. I told him yes, and he carefully pinned it in my inside pocket, and told me that it contained $5,000. After getting to Titusville, I walked a square up the street and saw Satterfield coming down driving his little don mare. I reached in my pocket, but the package was gone. I tore back to the depot just in time to see Sackett kick the package off the platform with some sarcastic remark about people trying to April fool him. I picked it up with both hands, and never let go my grip until I saw it safe in Satterfield's hands. When I examined my pocket I found that the Captain had slipped the package between the vest and shirt, and had carefully pinned the top of the pocket together. I never acted as bank runner for anyone else—one experience was enough."

Our Prize Fighting Brutes.

John L. Sullivan, pugilist, politician, actor, has sailed for Australia, and for at least a fortnight or more the sporting editors will be without a tid-bit for their readers. In all seriousness, however, I am dismayed at the growth of this most inhuman and brutal excuse for amusement. There are clubs on the Pacific slope, in New Orleans and the East, where a purse of from fifteen to twenty-five thousand dollars would be readily procured for a six-round meeting between Sullivan and Slavin. Who are these men and what would they do? Sullivan is a bully and a drunkard who has never hesitated at anything, from beating a woman to participating in a bar-room fight, and Slavin is an Australian of the same type. Yet these two men can command a compensation for twenty minutes' work which would build a church, or at six percent interest, would provide an income sufficient to support one man comfortably. The laws can be made strong enough to prevent these brutal exhibitions and they should be enacted and put in force.

The Ingenuity of Rogues.

A New Wrinkle in Shoplifting Told by an Old Detective.

New York Tribune.
"The ingenuity expended by criminals in their efforts to get other people's property, and also to regain their liberty when they are captured, is a constant source of interest to me," said an old detective the other day. "The escape of Shanahan, the thief who was going up to Sing Sing, is an appropriate example of this. He unlocked the handcuff that bound him and bolted off to a cab that was in waiting for him. Now, where did he get the key to unlock the bracelet? He was thoroughly searched before he was led out of the city prison, and the theory is that a relative who kissed him goodby as he was about to step into the prison van slipped the key from her mouth into his as his lips met. A pretty trick, wasn't it?"

"Here is another one that came under my observation the other day. A woman went into a jewelry store and sat down on a stool before the counter to look at some diamonds. She was eating an apple at the time. Presently the clerk missed a fine stone from the trayful she was examining, and as he was accustomed to the ways of shop-lifters, he accused her of the theft.

"She protested vehemently at this insult, but a policeman was called in and she was searched. The stone was not found and then the woman began to threaten a suit for damages. In order to avoid an unpleasant scandal, the proprietor was about to offer her fifty dollars, when the police officer prevented him. "He had been questioning the clerk about the woman's action in the shop and had learned that she had been eating an apple when she entered. That aroused his suspicions. Where was that apple? The woman had made a face over it and had thrown it out on the sidewalk. Then the clerk remembered. "Let her go," said the policeman, "she will not bring any suit." So the woman went away vowing vengeance. The policeman sent the clerk to follow her. She was soon joined by another woman, and before long they got into a quiet corner and the second woman produced the half-eaten apple from her pocket and gave it to its original owner. The clerk continued to follow them, and he told the first policeman he met what he had seen. This officer arrested the woman and the apple was taken from her. Pressed far into it was found the diamond that had been missed from the tray."

Nobody Was Ever Lost.

Where now the new road crosses Crooked river, Connecticut, there was a fordway, and just above the spot—not more than 20 yards—is the junction of Crab Valley brook with the river, says a writer in the Boston Globe. This brook takes its rise only a few miles away, amid a wild of forest and crag, and in cases of sudden and severe storm it becomes swollen and turbulent long before the river has perceptibly risen. One day a gentleman had occasion to ford the stream toward nightfall, when there had been one of those sudden squalls in the adjacent mountains. He managed to get across safely, though there were moments when his horse was forced to stop and brace himself and gather strength.

Having reached the opposite bank he found one of Uncle Tim Shute's boys at hand, engaged in fishing—a big tooth-headed, carrot-faced hero of 10 to 12 years of age, clad in the remnants of a suit of homespun that must once have belonged to his daddy. "Hallo, boy!" the traveler hailed as he reined in his panting steed, "is this the shallowest place of your river?" "Is it—a—the what, sir?" "The shallowness." "What's that?" "Why—the shallowest—the place where there's the least water." "Oh—ah—yas—I reckon 'tis." "Well I should call it a dangerous place. Are not people lost here sometimes?" "No, sir."

"What—never? How long have you lived here?" "I's allers lived here." "And you never knew anybody to be lost in fording this river?" "No, sir." "Well—that is strange—I declare—I came very near being swept away two or three times." "Yass, I don't wonder. I've know'd lots of 'em to be swept off a drowned!" "What! Did you not tell me just now that you had never known a case of that kind?" "No; I didn't tell yer nothin' of the kind. I said their 'wernt nobody ever lost; 'cause, d'ye see, right down there, near the river, crook around that 'ere great rock, they allers gets washed and we finds 'em!"

A PROMINENT DOCTOR ACCUSED OF MURDER—A gentleman recently made a startling accusation in the hearing of the writer. Said he, "I firmly believe that Dr. —, intentionally killed my wife. He pronounced her complaint—consumption—incurable. She accepted the verdict, and—died. Yet since then I have heard of at least a dozen cases, quite as far advanced as hers, that have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Her life might have been saved, for Consumption is not incurable." Of course it is not. The "Discovery" will remove every trace of it, if taken in time and used faithfully. Consumption is a disease of the blood—a scrofulous affection—and the "Discovery" strikes at the root of the evil. For all cases of weak lungs, spitting of blood, severe lingering coughs and kindred ailments, it is a sovereign remedy.

NOT UP TO THE TIMES.—Amy—Why have you dropped Miss Elder's acquaintance? Mabel—O, I was compelled to. She's beyond redemption. Amy—What's the trouble? Mabel—She persists in saying "well-dressed" instead of "smartly gowned."

A three-year-old daughter of August Martienssen, of Mauch Chunk, fell into a vessel of boiling water. In some parts of the body the child's flesh was burned to the bones. Death ensued in a short time.

Saddlery.

SCHOFIELD'S NEW
HARNES HOUSE.

We extend a most cordial invitation to our patrons and the public, in general, to witness one of the
GRANDEST DISPLAYS OF Light and Heavy Harness

ever put on the Bellefonte market, which will be made in the large room, formerly occupied by Harper Bros., on Spring street. It has been added to my factory and will be used exclusively for the sale of harness, being the first with glass cases in which the harness can be nicely displayed and still kept away from heat and dust, the enemies of long wear in leather harness in the same cuples. Room 10x74 feet and the store 2x30 added makes it the largest establishment of its kind outside of Philadelphia and Harrisburg.

We are prepared to offer better bargains in the future than we have done in the past and we want everyone to see our goods and get prices for when you do this, out of self defense you will buy. Our profits are not large, but by selling lots of goods we can afford to live in Bellefonte. We are not indulging in idle philanthropy. It is purely business. We are not making much, but trade is growing and that is what we are interested in now. Profits will take care of themselves.
When other houses discharged their workmen during the winter they were all put to work in my factory, nevertheless the big (1)
houses of this city and county would smile and compare ours to them, but we do not mean to be so odious, except to venture the assertion that none of them can say, as we can say "NO ONE OWES US A CENT" THAT WE "CAN'T GET." This is the whole story.

The following are kept constantly on hand.
50 SETS OF LIGHT HARNESS, prices from $8.00 to $15.00 and upwards, LARGE STOCK OF HEAVY HARNESS per set $25.00 and upwards, 500 HORSE COLLARS from $1.50 to $5.00
each, 1000 worth of HARNES OILS and
AXLE GREASE,
$400 worth of Fly Nets sold cheap
from 15c to $3.00 each,
Horse Brushes, Curry Combs
Saddles, Ladies Sidesaddles,
SADDLES, LADY SIDESADDLES,
Harness Soap, Knee Dusters, at low prices, Saddlery hardware always on hand.
For sale, Harness Leather at low as 25c per pound. We keep everything to be found in a FIRST CLASS HARNESS STORE—no change-over in the same room. No two shops in the same town to catch trade—NO SELLING OUT for the want of trade or prices.
Four harness-makers at steady work this winter. This is our idea of protection to labor,
when other houses discharged their hands,
they soon found work in my factory.

tion for producing an honest return for the money invested.
Our large trade listifies us in buying our supplies in large quantities, hence we buy at the lowest prices, which enables us to sell at the lowest prices; therefore, it will be to the interest of every farmer in Central Pennsylvania to examine our stock before purchasing.
We take great pleasure in entertaining farmers. It does not cost anything to examine the articles we have on exhibition.
