CREATES AN APPETITE.

There is nothing for which we recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla with greater confidence than for loss of appetite, indigestion, sick headache and other troubles of dyspeptic nature.

DYSPEPSIA.

"I suffered a great while with dyspepsia and tried a great many remedies. A friend urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have now taken two bottles. It has entirely cured me of dyspepsia, and a scrofulous affection has also entirely disappeared.

BROKEN DOWN IN HEALTH.

"For three years I suffered with dyspepsia, growing so bad that I was at one time completely broken down in health. I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla on trial, and seeing that it was doing me good, continued with it.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL REMEDY ever discovered, and it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

BEVERLY, Pa., Nov. 27, 1890. Dr. B. J. Kendall Co.: Gentles—I would like to make known to those who are almost entirely cured of Spavin Cure the fact that I think it is a most excellent Liniment. I have used it on a Blood Spavin. The horse went on three legs for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used ten bottles on the horse and have worked him for three years since and has not been lame.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

ENOSBURGH FALLS, Vt. Enosburgh Falls, Vt. Gentles—In praise of Kendall's Spavin Cure I will say that a year ago I had a valuable young horse become very lame, hock enlarged and swollen. The horse went on three legs for about three weeks, and I considered him almost worthless. A friend told me of the merits of your Kendall's Spavin Cure, so I bought a bottle, and I could see very plainly great improvements immediately from its use, and before the bottle was used up I was able to ride it, and it should be in every stable in the land. Respectfully yours, EUGENE DEWITT.

They Talked It Over.

Two Sweet Girl Graduates Have a Nice Confab.

Miss Mae Madeline Gushington, Miss J. Hortense L. Sotpage, Sweet Girl Graduates.

Miss Mae—How are you getting along, Hortense?

Miss J. Hortense—Oh, slow enough. It's worse than pulling teeth. I never could write an essay.

Miss Mae—Nor I. But really, you know, we have so little to put in. Professor Wise was so kind to outline the whole thing for us, wasn't he?

"Oh, yes, indeed. But I wish now I'd chosen an easier topic than 'Drifting Where?' I've only got as far as 'We are standing to night on the threshold of life, looking out over its temptuous sea and drifting where we know not where.'"

"Oh, that is perfectly lovely, Hortense."

"It is pretty, isn't it? I got it out of an old scrapbook. How are you getting on with your 'Onward and Upward' topic?"

"O Caesar! Don't mention it! I hate the sight of it. While I think of it, tell me if Clear lived before or after the time of Christ? I want to refer to him in my essay, and I don't know to save my soul when he lived."

"I don't either. It seems to me it was somewhere about the time of Peter the Great that Caesar held forth, but I'm not sure."

"I'll have to look it up. Now, another thing, who and what was Plato, anyhow?"

"O Mae, for heaven's sake, who or what he was, I haven't the remotest idea."

"Then I suppose I'll have to spend half a day looking him and a lot of other old fossils up in the library. How horrid this graduating essay business is, anyhow!"

"O! I hate it. But I suppose—oh, did you know that Sallie Rich was going to wear white silk with a train two yards long?"

"She isn't?"

"Indeed she is! And a diamond crescent!"

"Oh, my?"

"And she is going to get up in that kind of a rig and read an essay on 'Simplicity of the ancients.'"

"I don't care. I wouldn't have the cheek to say the word simplicity before a thousand people if I was dressed like that."

"And Sallie hardly knows enough to come in when it rains! If I was—oh, has your dress come yet?"

"No; but I went to see it for the fiftieth time yesterday, and its perfectly lovely, and it's going to fit me to perfection."

"Did you decide about the sash?"

"Oh, Hortense! I lay awake all of last night trying to decide between the cream India silk and the pale blue China crepe with knotted fringe and embroidered ends. One reason I'm behind with my essay is because I couldn't decide about that sash!"

"Which did you get? Do tell me!"

"The blue. I finally settled it by getting up out of bed and writing blue on one side of a piece of blank paper and cream on the other and then tossing up the paper."

"And the blue side came up?"

"Yes."

"I often decide important matters that way. But I'm awfully glad you got the blue. I like it best."

"Really?"

"Yes, honest; but I didn't want to influence you, and."

"Oh, I am so glad you like it better than the cream. It is lovely."

"Perfectly beautiful! And blue is becoming to you."

"Do you think so?"

"Yes, I do."

"You're real sweet to say so, and how about your dress?"

"Well, I stood three mortal hours yesterday having the thing fitted for the fifth time. It was twisted and jerked and pulled and stuck full of pins until I was ready to faint, but the dress is going to be perfectly beautiful!"

"Do tell me about it!"

"It's one of those soft clinging China silks, made to just touch the floor, and it's to have yards and yards of soft, creamy lace on it, and I'm going to wear a perfect mass of exquisite Marchal Niel roses and."

"How lovely!"

"And a great bunch of them at my belt, and."

"How beautiful they'll look?"

"And mamma will send me up a great basket of them when I'm through with my essay—and do you expect many flowers?"

"Oh, a cartload of them!"

"So do I, and I've been a week practicing on the bowing and scraping I must do over them, and the graceful way in which I shall pick them up!"

"Oh, you funny thing!"

"Well, I have. But I must go and find out about Caesar and Plato, and get a book of quotations I want to pad out my essay with."

"And I must get out my Composition and Rhetoric and see if I have the capitals and punctuation points all in right in what I've written. Horrid work, isn't it?"

"Don't mention it!"

"But I'm so pleased with my dress!"

"And I with mine."

"I'm sure it's lovely."

"Thanks. I know your is."

"Oh, thanks!"

"By, by."

LITTLE BROTHER'S AID.—Little Girl (reading).—Nature unarned the most. What does that mean? Little Brother (after deep thought).—I guess it means a roast chicken is nicer than a chicken with its feathers on.

Mrs. Jane Bracken, of Pottsville, drank sulphuric acid in mistake for medicine and died in two hours.

Mr. Barnes and the Bear.

Yonah's Companion.

Mr. Elisha Barnes, one of the early settlers of Henninger, N. H., stood looking out of his cabin door one day in early spring, when he saw a large bear passing along the upper edge of the snow covered clearing. He ran for his gun but found it unfit for use. He seized an ax, therefore, and in considerable excitement started in pursuit of the bear.

As Mr. Barnes came up, the bear stopped and looked at him. He raised his ax and brought it down with what he thought stunning effect; but Bruin lifted his paw and struck the ax from the hand of its enemy, and then fell upon him, biting him severely in the leg and thigh.

It was a dangerous situation—alone with the bear and wholly unarmed. When the bear opened his mouth for another bite, the unfortunate man, in desperation, pushed his hand between the jaws and his arm down the animal's throat.

Meanwhile Mrs. Barnes had run to the nearest neighbor, Samuel Eastman, who seized his gun and hastened to Mr. Barnes' relief. He arrived very opportunely. Mr. Barnes was struggling with the bear, but was growing faint from loss of blood.

Not daring to shoot for fear of wounding his friend, Mr. Eastman took the axe and dealt Bruin a blow on the thigh. The animal turned, and then without ceremony lumbered off toward the woods, where he disappeared before Eastman could fire at him. On the following day, however, the bear was tracked and killed.

Mr. Barnes' injuries were so severe that months elapsed before he was able to perform any labor.

UNPARDONABLE RUDENESS.—Miss Maria—Oh, say, ma, I happened to say something to Jennie Figg about our cook being a widow woman, and she says "widow woman" kinder low to herself, and then snickered. I wonder if I said anything out of the way?

Mrs. Gastruck—Of course you did. You ought to say "widow lady." Ain't you never going to learn no manners?—Indianapolis Journal.

PRISON STATISTICS.—Said the superintendent of the Texas penitentiary, at Huntsville, to a newly arrived delegate: "You have the privilege of working at any trade you prefer."

"I'd like to keep on drivin' cattle to Kansas."

Another gentleman in the same institution wanted to be a sailor.—Texas Siftings.

One Fact is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

The recent discussion on tobacco and alcohol, following Tolstoi's merciless scold against their use, has revealed a man who smoked for seventy years without interruption, consuming between 8000 and 9000 pounds of tobacco, and yet retaining perfect physical and mental health.

Addressing a camp meeting at Decatur, Ill., Bishop Turner said that any man who thought he was near the close of his life at 60 or 75 ought to be ashamed of himself, and those who obeyed nature's laws ought to live to the age of 100 years.

"You remember Vickers and his wife were divorced about a year ago?" "Yes." "They are going to remarry. I have just received an invitation to the wedding." "So have I. I wonder if they have the nerve to expect a second batch of presents?"

IMPORTANT! If you cannot read this print distinctly by lamp or gaslight in the evening, at a distance of ten inches, your eyesight is failing, no matter what your age, and your eyes need help. Your sight can be improved and preserved if properly corrected. It is a wrong idea that spectacles should be dispensed with as long as possible, if they assist the vision, use them. There is no danger of seeing too well, so long as the eyes are properly corrected.

GOOD WIFE SUGGESTS CUTICURA REMEDIES. USES THEM 7 MONTHS, AND IS ENTIRELY CURED.

I was in the war during 1863-64, and took a heavy cold at Gettysburg, from which I never recovered. In 1871 I broke out in sores all over my chest and shoulder, which seemed impossible to cure. I tried all the famed doctors, and expended some five thousand dollars trying to find a cure, but could not, and finally giving myself up to die, my good wife suggested to me, one day, to try the Cuticura Remedies, which were so extensively advertised and used. I followed her suggestion, and am happy to say by diligent application of your Cuticura Remedies for seven months I was entirely cured, after spending five years of time and money without avail, and am a sound and well man to-day. You may refer to me if you wish, as I will tell any one who may call on me my experience.
