

Democratic Watchman

Bellefonte, Pa., Dec. 4, 1891.

To CORRESPONDENTS.—No communications published unless accompanied by the real name of the writer.

THINGS ABOUT TOWN & COUNTY

—Minstrels to-morrow night.
—Genuine Tortoise Shell Pins at Bush's, Bellefonte.

—If you have anything to sell advertise in the WATCHMAN and it will go.

—W. K. Alexander Esq., of Millheim was a pleasant caller on Tuesday morning.

—The State College band spent Thanksgiving day at Aaronsburg, as the guests of band No. 2 of that place.

—Miss Lottie Spigelmeyer returned from a pleasant visit with her friend Miss Elsie Barr, of Tyrone, on Wednesday morning.

—A game of foot ball will be played, on the athletic grounds, to-morrow afternoon, between the High school and the Academy teams.

—H. H. Benner and family, of east High street, will move to Atlantic city before long. Mr. Benner is going for the benefit of his health.

—During the big storm last week lightning struck the railroad station, at Laurelton, on the Lewisburg road, and it was burned to the ground.

—"Quality not quantity" used to be the motto of Gorton's minstrels and it was carried out to perfection. At the opera house to-morrow night.

—Dick Garman, who came on to attend his uncle's, Mr. Harper's, funeral, was in Detroit, Mich., when he received the telegram announcing his death.

—Mr. George Swartz, of the firm of Swartz and Dubbs, implement dealers of this place, was married to Miss Mowry, at Hubersburg, on Wednesday night.

—The forty-fifth annual session of the Centre county Teachers Institute will be held, in the court house, in this place, during the week of December 21st to 25th.

—Handsome Manicure and Toilet sets, Traveling companions and useful articles in Leather, Metal, Wood, Celluloid, Plush, etc., at Bush's, Bush Arcade, Bellefonte.

—Mrs. Jonathan Harter, of Millheim, had her leg broken while getting out of a spring wagon, in front of her home, on Tuesday last. Her foot caught in the lock and she was thrown forcibly to the ground.

—While running down backwards, on Monday evening, the shifter left the track near the Nail Works and the accident delayed trains for nearly an hour. Passengers both east and west were compelled to transfer at the works.

—Miss Ida Clark, the Beech Creek girl, who was so badly burned at the Hotel Dunkle, in Jersey Shore, some weeks ago, an account of which was published at the time, is dead and her remains were buried on Wednesday afternoon.

—Jno. M. Dale, esq., junior member of the law firm of Beaver, Gephart and Dale, is rejoicing over the advent of a young daughter. The little girl arrived on Tuesday afternoon and her fond parents are exceedingly proud of their first born.

—W. S. Frye, the entertaining correspondent who keeps our readers well informed on matters of interest about Pine Grove and vicinity, has been a visitor in Bellefonte during the week. Though busy with court work he did not forget the readers of "Pine Grove Mentions."

—Just one year from last Monday evening we had the first sleighing of last winter and on Monday morning it looked very much as though that storm was going to celebrate its birthday but it cleared off in the afternoon and everything was resplendent in a bright sun.

—The Boston Lyceum Concert Co., in the Presbyterian Chapel, this evening, will be a high class entertainment and should not be missed. The company is composed of stars and they need no recommendation other than they are sent by the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. Artists in every respect, they will more than please you.

—Humes Roberts, who has been visiting relatives for some weeks in town, left yesterday for Passadena Cal., where he will join his parents, who have decided to make that beautiful city their home. Humes is a popular and promising young man and a host of friends wish his success, in every venture, in his new home.

—Robert M. Murray, an energetic and industrious young citizen of our town, died at his home on east Lamb street on Wednesday evening Nov. 25th. Deceased was a corporal in Co. B., N. G. P. and a member of the Logan Steam Fire Engine Co. of this place. A tinner by trade he was a young man of quiet habits and kind demeanor.

DETERMINED TO DIE.—Some weeks ago we published an account of Herbert Spencer Darwin's having stolen three horses from a Williamsport stable, and subsequently of his arrest and incarceration. He claims to be a linal descendant of the great English naturalist, but his somewhat peculiar actions have led to the belief that he is not altogether sane.

The Gazette and Bulletin, of Williamsport gives the following account of one of his determined efforts to end his life: That rather mysterious individual, Herbert Spencer, now in jail awaiting trial on the charge of horse stealing, apparently has a desire to end his life in a sensational manner, his last attempt having been made last evening. Ever since Spencer's suicidal traits commenced to display themselves, strict watch has been kept over him for fear that he would cut short his existence, and one or two men have always had an eye to his every movement.

As Spencer's health required more comfortable quarters than that afforded by the prison cells, he had been removed to the hospital room on the second floor. Last evening one of the prisoners, Charles Donley, who was watching Spencer, came down stairs to assist in sweeping out the hallway on the first floor. When he returned to the hospital room about 8 o'clock he found the door locked and Spencer refused to admit him.

Donley at once informed Sheriff Michael that the door was locked, and the latter hastened to the spot. The door is a wooden one, and with one heavy kick the sheriff broke it loose from its fastenings, Spencer was walking about the room shaking his left arm and scattering blood in every direction. He carried a bloody looking instrument in his hand that had the appearance of being a knife, and he threatened every one who approached him. Dr. Connelly was called in, and with his assistance Spencer was quieted and a piece of glass, about five inches long, was taken away from him.

He had procured this glass by breaking a pane in the transom over the door, and with it cut a rather ugly looking gash in his right forearm. Dr. Connelly bandaged the wound but Spencer threatened to tear the bandages off again.

Tom Mann, another prisoner, was detailed to share the labor of watching Spencer through the night, and he and Donley were left with the prisoner patient. About 9:30 o'clock last night Sheriff Michael was again summoned to the hospital room, and he found Spencer with another ugly piece of glass in his possession. This was taken away from him and a search instituted. Upon a window sill two or three more pieces of glass were found. These were removed. Spencer had evidently procured them all from the same place, and it was likely his intention to prepare for an emergency; if he was frustrated in one attempt he would make another.

GORTON'S MINSTRELS.—The Waverly, N. Y., Daily Free Press, of Sept. 1, says: Gorton's Minstrels gave an excellent entertainment in the Opera House, Monday night, to a large audience. The interest awakened with the opening musical feature, introduced in the first part. The troupe is a really meritorious one and does not travel on its reputation with a few "dummies" and a job lot of "old furniture." They are wide awake and abreast of the times. The specialties were all good being a departure from the old Rip Van Winkle rut traveled by so many burnt cork artists. Charles H. Larkin's solo "Loves old Sweet song," was rendered in a manner that awakened a slumbering memory of the days of "Auld Lang Syne" in the hearts of his attentive audience and elicited sincere and well merited applause. The club swinging by Dewitt Cook was a rare treat to all who are fond of athletics. Johnston and Ward's "On Guard" is a novelty in a military sense of the word, and we would not be surprised to hear of Johnston drawing a pension long before his hair is gray. "The picture that is turned toward the wall" as sung by Eugene Elliott merited and received a hearty encore. Garman's Opera House, Dec. 5th, 1891.

HIS FIRST NIGHT IN TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.—It is a singular fact that in all the times Mr. William Wolfe, the John Wanamaker of Centre Hall, has been in Bellefonte he has not spent a night in town for 25 years, but he was caught on Tuesday night when an unusual press of court business compelled him to take a bed at the Bush House. Now since the ice has been broken, and no direful result experienced, we suppose he will favor us oftener by spending a night in town.

—The Sugar Valley Journal seems to have a great penchant for the Bellefonte and Eastern railroad, which it booms about every other week. We hope the Journal will succeed in getting the road through, but we fear that its alleged interviews with great railroad magnates are originated in the fertile brain of its editor.

—Read the Cash Bazaar ad. of this week.

—Prices are all broken to pieces at Bush's.

—Hettie Bernard Chase delighted a large audience, on Wednesday night, with her neat little comedy "Uncle's Darling."

—Go to Bush's, Bush Arcade, High street, Bellefonte, for holiday goods of all kinds.

—The Tyrone Herald says that Gorton's minstrel band is a fine musical organization. Look out for the concert to-morrow.

—Miss Stella Armor attended the Gray-Stewart wedding, in Tyrone, on Wednesday evening.

—The most elegant stock of Christmas cards and games in Central Pennsylvania at Bush's, Bellefonte.

—Phil. Waddle spent Wednesday night in Tyrone. The wedding of his cousin, Miss Carrie Gray to C. B. Stewart, was the attraction.

—The Sandy Ridge fire brick works are closed and John Blanchard esq., of this place, has been made assignee. It is altogether probable that the works will resume ere long and all the liabilities cleared.

—Christmas is coming and nothing is more acceptable at that time than beautiful art linen. This you will find at Mrs. Gilmore's, hemstitched and stamped in bureau scarf tray covers and table centers.

—Souvenirs given to every purchaser at Bush's.

—Col. and Mrs. Roberts, Miss Roberts and Miss McFarlane, of West Chester; Miss Haley, of Radnor; Miss Beck, of Cincinnati; Miss Hoburn of Jersey Shore and Walter Stevenson, of Pittsburg spent Thanksgiving in town en route to the college to attend the Assembly.

—Daisy and Beaver still return to their old haunts every morning. Daisy is Col. Tate's brindle cow and Beaver is the little dog that has never been known to be out of her sight for five minutes at a time. It is a strange case of animal affection, but the two are almost inseparable.

—Constable Keller, of Lock Haven, recovered a horse and buggy owned by liveryman J. B. Bricker, of that city, at Millheim, on Wednesday of last week. B. F. Lutz had hired it and forgot (?) to return, but he will sojourn in Lock Haven until court; having failed to produce the $500 bail required to liberate him.

—The Boston Lyceum Concert Company, this evening at the Presbyterian chapel. This company comes to us with the highest recommendations from all parts of the country and when papers like the Boston Globe, Louisville Courier Journal and New York Herald have only flattering notices to make of their entertainment. We who have so few opportunities to see or hear a really good thing should not let this one go by.

—Miss Carrie, the only daughter of Z. B. Gray, of Tyrone, was married to Charles B. Stewart, on Wednesday evening, at seven o'clock. The bride is well known in Bellefonte, having been a frequent visitor at the home of Miss Stella Armor, on east Linn Street. Her husband is a leading clothier of Tyrone and one of her most promising young men and is a son of Rev. Jno. D. Stewart. The happy young couple left, after a wedding supper had been served, for a tour. Florida is their destination.

—A telegram from Houtzdale says: The Houtzdale bank receivers will pay the first dividend of 15 per cent to the depositors on or about December 20. They have made a careful estimate of the assets of the bank, and are of the opinion that about 50 per cent. can be paid from its resources without any aid from Clearfield. The amount that the bank will receive from Clearfield, together with other assets now unavailable, but which will be converted into money in time, it is thought will be sufficient to pay all the creditors in full.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strine, of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Schreyer, of Milton, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Schreyer and Mrs. J. S. Evans, of Altoona, Mr. and Mrs. George Evans, of Lock Haven, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Maitland, of Williamsport, Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver, of Rebersburg, Mr. and Mrs. Simeon Harper, of Centre Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Whitman, of Windburn, and Hayes Schreyer, of Pittsburg, were some of the friends from a distance who attended Mr. Harper's funeral last Friday.

—If you want printing of any description the WATCHMAN office is the place to have it done.

—Pictures and Fine Stationery at Bush's, Bellefonte.

WHEN WILL THE SHOWER BE OVER.

—With the Nail Works, practically gone to pieces, the Glass Works closed down, many think for all time, and the Bellefonte Furnace out of blast one would think that the measure of this locality's misfortunes was about full. But things are never so bad that they cannot be worse, and Tuesday's Philadelphia Times brought the news that the "National Heat and Power Company," another organization which has been making experimental tests of a new gas producing process down at the Nail Works and in the success of which some of our citizens are largely interested, is now in trouble. The New York correspondent of the Times gives the facts connected with this enterprise and the trouble that threatens it in the following statement under date of December 1st:

"A suit has been brought against prominent Pennsylvanians which promises to disclose some of the methods whereby incipient corporations are suddenly enlarged and floated upon the New York market through the aid of magnificent offices and alluring prospectuses. The plaintiff is the well known William McMahon, who has just succeeded in tying up Boston $1,000,000 worth of securities belonging to James M. Waterbury, the president of the Twine Trust, as a result of some secret promoting which he claims to have done in the efforts made by a combination of wealthy men to gain control of the underground railroad franchise of the metropolis. His latest suit has been brought in the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court against Ex-Governor James A. Beaver, Ex-Adjutant General Daniel H. Hastings and others, representing the National Heat and Power Company. His counsel is Mayer Shtzberger and the matter has progressed so far that already a day has been fixed for trial.

"McMahon claims that the National Heat and Power Company was organized in Pennsylvania with headquarters at Bellefonte with a capitalization of $1,000,000. Its basis of existence was the possession of a method whereby gas could be cheaply made and practically applied for puddling iron, re-heating and other manufacturing purposes.

"The company removed its headquarters to this city, with the view to induce capitalists to take an interest in a development of the invention. The capital stock was increased to $5,000,000, and the services of McMahon, who is known as a bold and audacious promoter, were secured as boomer-in-chief. A really magnificent suite of offices in the Manhattan building, 40 Wall street, were leased and furnished in a style that was fairly dazzling. Handsome Turkish rugs covered the floor, silk tapestry curtains and portieres draped windows and communicating doors. The furniture was of the most expensive character. In these apartments McMahon was installed during 1889 and 1890 and in them he practiced his wiles upon the big financiers of the metropolis.

From the gorgeously appointed offices of the National Heat and Power Company McMahon invited capitalists to invest money in the Pennsylvania corporation, and he claims that he was highly successful. He alleges that he induced Alfred Sully, the famous millionaire; O. L. Jones, another millionaire, and the practical controller of the gravel roofing business of the country; and two other wealthy and influential men, to agree to furnish all the money that was required in the enterprise, provided they were given a practical demonstration of the utility and the economy of the invention.

"The demonstration took place in Bellefonte, where the New Yorkers who attended were entertained by General Beaver. It is alleged that the demonstration was not successful, in that it was not presented in a practical form. Certain it is that the New Yorkers were not satisfied. Further practical demonstrations were promised, but never took place, and finally Mr. Sully and Mr. Jones and their associates refused to invest any money in the enterprise. Some time after this the National Heat and Power Company abandoned the New York financial field, presumably in disgust, and restored its head quarters to Bellefonte.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the Pennsylvania interested in the company are wealthy and influential men, McMahon swears in his complaint that he personally advanced money to some of those connected with the corporation as individuals and that he also advanced money to the company itself to carry out experiments and in partial payment of the rent of the magnificent offices in the Manhattan Building. It is for these amounts that he has brought suit. McMahon is like a bull in a china shop when he is started on a rampage and he promises to make these legal proceedings very interesting."

The foregoing is the story as told by the correspondent of the Times. What truth there may be in the statement that suit has been entered for the recovery of money advanced by McMahon, we know not, but we do know that the experimental plant that has been in operation at this place for some time, has been doing the most satisfactory work, and gives promise, to those who have invested in it, the most abundant returns. The suit story may be all correct, but all the same the Gas Machine is going to prove a success.

—LAFAYETTE'S NEW President, Dr. E. D. Warfield, favors us with a copy of the addresses that were delivered at his recent inauguration. He makes a bold and earnest plea for the introduction, retention and assertion of the distinctively Christian element in all grades of education. His hopeful view of the tendencies and aims in the teaching given in such institutions as Lafayette College promises well for his success in building up that college, both by his administrative power, and his gifts as a ready lecturer and an enthusiastic teacher in fullest sympathy with the buoyancy of youth. The methods of teaching so ably employed at the Easton bespeak a hearty appreciation of the needs of our entire school system, and assure us of the skill and zeal of the large and able Faculty of Lafayette College.

—Gold Pens, Artist's Materials and Musical Instruments of all descriptions, and at lowest prices are to be found at Bush's, Arcade Book Store, Bellefonte.

—Bibles, Prayer books, Pictures and Fine Books. Bush, Bellefonte.

—South Philipsburg is now a full fledged borough and will conduct its own municipal affairs.

—All are invited to call and examine Bush's elegant stock of Holiday goods at knockdown prices.

—One of the escaped prisoners from the Huntingdon Reformatory was arrested in Tyrone, on Friday, and taken back to the institution.

—Dr. Buckingham, of Philipsburg, spent the early part of the week in town. He was attending to some legal business, but found time to call on his many friends.

—On Monday evening two Altoona brothers indulged in a little shooting match. One of them is now in the hospital and the other under bonds for his appearance at court.

—Jake Cohn, one of Tyrone's big clothiers and proprietor of stores at Hollidaysburg and Hazelton made an assignment last week. His liabilities are placed at $60000 and assets scarcely amounting to $20000.

—A fine figure is more admired than a pretty face, and how can you have a fine figure if you wear an ill fitting corset. Mrs. Gilmore is the only agent for the P. F., a corset that is warranted to wear well and retains its shape.

—Saturday night's attraction, at the opera house, will be Gorton's celebrated minstrels. This company has not visited Bellefonte for a number of years, but we can assure our readers that it never gave any but the most highly satisfactory performances and everything points to a pleasing entertainment to-morrow night.

—A letter from L. B. Curtin formerly of Roland this county, who is now in the United States Indian service, at Ouray, Utah, states that he is getting along nicely in his far western home and that he can't get along without the WATCHMAN, though it arrives just exactly one week late from the time we mail it. We don't know how Larry stands on the Mormonistic principle, but suppose he's like the rest of us and finds that one better half is quite enough.

—We are sorry to learn that Mr. Simon Loeb has determined to close out his business and remove to Philadelphia. When Mr. Loeb retires it will be the withdrawal from Bellefonte business interests of the last representative of one of the oldest mercantile Houses in town. In 1860 Mr. Loeb began life as an errand boy in the store of Isaac May, on Allegheny street, and from that date to the present time he has been constantly connected with the mercantile business in Bellefonte. His departure we know will be regretted by all who have had business transactions with him, but he has made up his mind to go and the closing out sale he is now conducting, offers opportunities not often extended our people.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.—Wm. Riley, Jr., of Philipsburg, and Katie Swigart, of Osceola Mills.

Ewing T. Massey and Laura M. Hull, both of Bellefonte.

George W. Reed, of Milroy, and Annie M. Havico, of Soigleville.

Oliver T. Stover, of Haines twp., and Annie M. Spangler, of Miles.

A. M. Saook and Maggie Swartz, both of Penn twp.

J. Edward Horn and Jessie C. Laurie, both of Philipsburg.

U. H. Hoy and Kate Dorman, both of Walker twp.

William Van Tries, of Loverville, and Ada Musser, of Penna. Furnace.

During the past year 309 licenses have been issued which is 39 short of last year's issue.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.—The regular term of the November court reconvened, on Monday morning, at nine o'clock and was compelled to adjourn until afternoon because none of the cases were ready. The case of Lydia Keller vs. J. R. Runkle's administrators was taken up first and occupied the attention of the court until Wednesday morning. It appears that the plaintiff had been employed to take care of old Mr. Runkle and her work was of a very confining and disagreeable kind hence her claim for $5 per week. The jury returned a verdict in her favor amounting to $1014.25 which gave general satisfaction, though Love and Hewes, attorneys for defendants, will move for a new trial.

In the case of Cunningham & Co., vs. Mr. M. Leathers, the jury rendered a verdict of $1603.15 in favor of plaintiff. In the case of Mr. Scholl vs. M. M. Musser concerning the title of property supposed to belong to Thos. Scholl the jury returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff. It was a test case and elicited most interest.

—Full lines of Ready Made Clothing—Mens, Boys, Youths, and Children.—The largest and fullest line—childrens clothing a specialty. Cape Overcoats and Storm Coats.

MONTGOMERY & Co. Tailors.

FARMERS INSTITUTES.—At which prominent agriculturists from a distance will be present to address Centre county farmers, will be held within this county at the following places and time:

Millheim, Feb. 1st and 2d, 1892;
Boalsburg, Feb. 3d and 4th, 1892,
Howard, Feb. 5th and 6th, 1892;

These institutes are held under the auspices of the State Board of Agriculture and have come to be looked upon as occasions of considerable importance and great interest to the farmers. Already the places, appointed for these meetings within the county, are working to arouse the interest of the people in their vicinity, and each is making an effort to have its particular Institute the most successful of the three.

Thomas J. Edge, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture as well as a member of the Board, and Hon. John A. Woodward will be in attendance. Mrs. Emma P. Ewing, the Chataqua lecturer upon cooking, will be one of the speakers for the benefit of the ladies of the farm. General prominent members of the State Grange and other foreign speakers will be present.

A BRILLIANT RECEPTION.—The fall reception given by the class of '92, in the Armory of the Pennsylvania State College, on last Friday night, was undoubtedly the most brilliant social event of the season. The great drill hall of the cadets was artistically draped in College colors, and tropical plants and stacked musketry added but an additional charm to the beautiful scene. Stopper and Fisk's celebrated orchestra furnished both the dances and concert music and the dreamy strains of their beautiful waltzes sent many a light hearted couple gliding over the polished floors of the hall. Twenty three numbers were danced and then the gay throng dispersed carrying with it the remembrance of one of the prettiest and most enjoyable receptions ever given at the College. Though not a success financially; in every other way it reflected great credit on the class and its committee.

AMONG THE SICK.—Miss McBride who was hurt in an accident the day before the election is slowly recovering.

Mrs. D. H. Hastings is confined to her room with bilious fever.

Mrs. Reuben Valentine who has been seriously ill for over a week is improving.

Mrs. Susan Weaver, mother of J. C. and H. C. Weaver, is dangerously ill, at her residence, on Howard street.

WHAT OUTSIDERS THINK.—McCalmont & Co., lime dealers and manufacturers of agricultural implements, in Bellefonte, have thirty-eight men working for them and to each man they presented a fine big gobbler for his Thanksgiving dinner. That's just one of that company's many clever acts and it re-echoes to their interest in the long run.
