Carrying Money.

The Pocketbook of People an Index of Their Character.

From the New York Press.

"I can tell you the business of six months out of every 10 who come in here, and the social standing of all of them, the way they carry their money," said a Broadway ticket seller for one of the Sound steam boats as lines to a Press reporter recently.

"Did you ever think how much of a person's individuality is expressed in his method of carrying his money? I see people every day get at their change and have made a study of it.

"That is so," said the ticket seller, as an old gentleman who had purchased a postpaid good for a trip to Boston went out, "is a retired banker. Did you notice that he carried his money in a long morocco pocketbook? That pocketbook is always carried in the inside pocket of his coat, on the right hand side. It contains a number of bright, clean bills, all neatly smoothed and laid out at full length and right side up. He never folds a bill. I will venture a cigar."

"The young broker or wholesale merchant carries his money in a small case made of seal or lizard skin. He folds the bill twice. His roll is never large, but he has enough on hand to meet any emergency.

"The clubman invariably carries a roll of clean $5 bills in his vest pocket, were they can be easily reached. Some carry only gold. James Potter Brown favors gold and usually carries a few quarter-eagles in a small silver case, in which the coins fit without rattling. Liepsander Stewart usually has a roll of new bills in his vest pocket.

"The man who comes in and fishes from a deep trouser pocket a lot of $1, $2 and $5 bills that have been twisted up like a gun wadding I always set down as a sporting 'gent' of the Gutenberg type.

"The farmer on an excursion to 'Boston counts out the price of a ticket in quarters and halves from a tan-colored leather pouch that is tied up with a string run through small slits near the top. The seafaring man on his way to his home on the Maine coast carries the proceeds of his trip in a calf skin wallet. It has been handed down from his father and grandfather, for it is as black and shiny with age. It has a long strap passed through a number of cross straps. The cross straps seldom have more in them than tobacco dust or a frayed tax receipt that shows he owns a home. But in the centre of the wallet is a place where bills may be laid in straight and covered with a calf skin flap from either side.

"The man who carries change in his coat pockets has been a car conductor at some time or other. The fellow who draws 10-cent pieces from every pocket in his clothes is a peanut man or a vendor of small wares.

"The women, too, have a variety of ways to carry their money. Some have their lack of pockets limits their vagaries in that direction. The young woman with fluffy hair, who has the price for her ticket rolled tightly in her palm, has a mysterious storage place for money somewhere. When she is not spending it she puts it where no man will get after it, but the place is accessible to her slim fingers in a second."

Where Whetstones come From.

A deposit made in a very early geological period in the old river bed near Raisin, Germany, furnishes the stone from which is made the German razor hone, preferred by barbers over all others for sharpening razors. This deposit varies in color, being white in some years and blue in others. Both afterwards hardened into stone, and the white layers, being much the best, are the material chosen, the blue stone being used only for the base or back of the hone. For sharpening other edged tools, the snow white "novaculite" or "altered schist" of Arkansas is preferred to any other stone, and is chiefly obtained from a single hill in that State, which supplies not only the American market, but also a considerable foreign demand. The long spike or "cedar," as it is called, which housekeepers use for sharpening kitchen and carving knives, may be of either the dark gray "Labrador stone" of Portland county, N. Y., or another gray sandstone called "Hindustan stone," which comes from Orange county, Ind. Of foreign whetstones used in this country come mostly from Ohio and Nova Scotia, the latter variety being preferred, especially for scythes. Of foreign grindstones the main supply is from England, says The Industrial World, authority for the foregoing statements.

Work of a Writer.

A rapid writer can write thirty words in one minute. To do this he must draw his pen through the space of a rod, sixteen and one-half feet. In forty minutes his pen travels a furlong, and in five and one-half hours a full mile. He makes on an average sixteen curves or turns of the pen for each word written. Writing at the rate of thirty words per minute he must make eight curves to each second; in an hour 28,000; in five hours, 144,000, and in 300 days, working only five hours each day he makes not less than 48,200,000 curves and turns of the pen.

An Overworked Invalid.

"Doctor—Have you tried the seashore?"

"Valid—Yes, I tried it once, but it too hard work. Dressing and undressing is very tiresome."

"I don't quite understand?"

"Well you see doctor I had there said I must take a toddy after each bath."

"Yes, but suppose he did?"

"It keeps me in bathing all the time."
