

Democratic Watchman

Sellefonte, Pa., Dec. 2, 1892.

The career of William W. Davenport, of Leyden, Mass., has been very similar to that of Mr. Horton. He was born blind, one of a family of eight children, who were left penniless and fatherless when they were very young, but he is now a man of large means and one of the most extensive and prosperous farmers in Western Massachusetts. His success has resulted solely from his own energy and ability, and no part of it is due to aid from others. His farm covers 700 acres and he knows its soil and topography perfectly. He is a splendid judge of live stock, and is often employed as a judge to guide buyers in the market. In passing judgment he is guided solely by the sense of feeling, yet seldom if ever makes a mistake. He buys and sells hundreds of cattle every year, and frequently buys and handles $100,000 worth of wool in a twelve month.

In the affairs of his town he is a leading and influential citizen, and is always quick to come to the assistance of any one whom he believes is being imposed upon. He asks no favors of any one and is prompt to defend his own rights. Once when the County Commissioners put a road through his farm and awarded him $225 he appealed, and so successfully conducted his own case before a board of referees that the latter gave him $55 for the land taken. He frequently visits New York and Boston on business trips and always goes alone, yet has never had the slightest mishap in traveling. He is now worth $75,000 and is a shrewd and careful investor, with a fondness for first mortgages on New England farms.

Rev. William H. Milburn, long chaplain of the lower house of Congress, is a blind man of national repute. For half a century he has been one of the most active and successful members of his profession. He lost his sight when a child, but so great was his energy that he studied for and was ordained to the ministry before he attained his majority. In the course of ten years he traveled nearly two hundred thousand miles, filling missionary appointments in the South. He has been an untiring ministerial worker all his life, yet has found time to fill various positions of trust and honor and to write half a dozen books, which have met with a large sale and won enduring popularity.

A few weeks ago he sailed for a summer tour through Europe, but before his departure, handed to his publishers the manuscript of what he regards as his literary masterpiece. This is a history of the Mississippi Valley, for which he has been patiently gathering material for over thirty years, and upon which he has expended an amount of care and labor that would appall the ordinary author.

MAKES EYES OF HIS HANDS.

Dr. James R. Coshe, of Boston, is another very remarkable blind man. He recently graduated from the Boston University School of Medicine near the head of his class and proposes to become a specialist in diseases of the heart and lungs. A physician's blunder when he was an infant cost him his sight. He was carefully educated and it was the intention of his guardian that he should become a musician, but when he was twenty-one financial reverses left him penniless and dependent upon his own resources for support. He learned the massage treatment, and while practicing it as a means of livelihood determined to study medicine. With that object in view he settled in Boston eight years ago, and since then, without aid from others, has not only paid all his college expenses, but has also purchased a valuable medical library. At the outset his professor seriously questioned his ability to master the mysteries of practical anatomy, but he did so with method of his own devising, and his closing examinations in this branch showed a record of ninety-eight per cent. In clinical surgery he received a still higher average.

As there are no medical works printed in raised type he was compelled to hire some one to read aloud to him and for nearly four years he had a reader six hours a day in summer and three in winter. Dr. Coshe is now engaged in hospital practice and will eventually locate in Boston. He is not the only blind man who is a physician. Dr. Babcock, of Chicago, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of this city, has been for several years an eminent specialist on disease of the heart and lungs.

Alvah T. Canfield, of Highland, this State, although totally blind from infancy, has been for many years a successful breadwinner. As a child he attended the public schools with boys of his own age, played with them and found enjoyment in their sports. He was educated at the New York Institution for the Blind, and later was for four years a teacher there. Then he settled in Highland, where at first he gained a livelihood as a traveling agent. His pluck and energy speedily made him friends in the village, and these were quick to give him assistance. Since 1878 he has been school collector handling each year about one thousand dollars and transacting the business of the office entirely without aid. Twice he has been elected collector of the town of Highland, and for three years he served as a member of the Board of Excise. For ten years he has had the contract for carrying the mails from Highland to the landing, and often makes the trip alone. He also acts as the Highland correspondent for a number of out-of-town papers, and has frequently shown to be an alert and enterprising reporter. He is an expert operator of typewriter, and letters which I have received from him are singularly free from mistakes.

Alden F. Hays is the principal coal and ice dealer of Sewickley, Pa. He is a son of General Alex. Hays, of heroic memory, who fell in the battle of the Wilderness. He is now forty-two years old, and his blindness is the result of an accident which befell him when a child of six. He was educated at the Philadelphia Institution for the Blind, where he made brilliant progress, and later became a music teacher and piano tuner. Twenty years ago, having managed to save $1,000, he engaged in the coal and lumber trade of Sewickley, and met with success from the outset. A couple of years ago he added the sale of artificial ice to his other business, and though he met with bitter opposition from the natural ice men he now controls more than half of the ice trade of Sewickley and vicinity.

AN EXPERT METEOROLOGIST.

Martin N. Kellogg, the blind meteorologist, is one of the best known residents of St. Paul. He is a veteran of the Mexican war and was the first American to plant the Stars and Stripes on the walls of Chapultepec. He established the first drug store opened in the Territory of Minnesota and later acquired a competence in the toy business. He became in his youth an ardent student of astronomy and meteorology, and such he continued through life. He has been totally blind for the past thirteen years, but during that time he never relinquished his studies and is constantly making weather forecasts and predictions remarkable for their accuracy. He keeps himself informed as to the positions of the conditions by the aid of members of his family. Frequent planetary observations are taken by his wife and two daughters, the latter both well educated young ladies, who from their constant reading of works on astronomy and kindred science to their father, are the best informed young women in these branches of learning to be found in America. They are familiar with all the standard works on astronomy, can easily pick out the planets from their myriad companion bodies and for many of them have invented pet names of their own. With their mother they are almost constantly making meteorological observations and reporting them to their father. All the magazine articles on matters relating to astronomy and meteorology are read to Mr. Kellogg by one of his family. Thus with the knowledge acquired prior to his blindness, he is enabled to keep pace with the march of science in this direction, and even to surpass the scientist himself in the accuracy of the observations and predictions he is all the time making.

One of New York city's most notable blind men is Julius Stern, who resides on Columbus avenue, near Ninety-first street. Mr. Stern, who is still a young man, has been blind for the last ten years. He is a man of marked intelligence and before he became blind was a tireless student. He conducts a news stand delivering the daily papers to his numerous customers without assistance and in this way gains a comfortable living for himself and family. He goes about the city wherever his business calls him, unattended, and is often seen on Newspaper row. He is an expert billiard player and some of his proficiency with the ivory balls would be highly creditable to one who could see.

As the blind person's only association with the world about is by means of sound it is not at all surprising that it is through a musical training that the great majority of them are fitted to earn a livelihood. In various parts of the United States there are now 150 blind people employed as piano tuners. There are fully as many more who are teachers of music in schools for the blind, nearly 600 who are private teachers of music, 100 who are church organists, 15 or 20 who are composers and publishers of music and a large number who are dealer in musical instruments.

Steinway & Sons employ two blind piano tuners. One of them, Gustavus J. Kaufmann, who is now about twenty years old, has been blind from his second year. He is a graduate of the Institution for the Blind, and an accomplished tuner. He lives in Brooklyn, and goes to and from his work unattended. His evenings are given to piano practice, and he has frequently appeared in concerts. He gives great promise as a composer, and many of his compositions, which include piano solos, sonatas and songs and male choruses, have been accepted and published. Albert Leitz, the other blind piano tuner employed by the Steinway, is also an expert workman.

Clement Hagar is organist of the Episcopal church at Highlands, N. Y., and has besides a large number of pupils. The choir which Mr. Hagar directs is not surpassed in many of our large cities.

The oldest and the best known hymn writer now living is a blind woman, Fanny Crosby, of Park avenue, N. Y. Her hymns, "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour," "Rescue the Perishing," "Saviour, More Than Life to Me" and "Jesus, Keep Me Near the Cross," are known and sung wherever the English language is spoken, and, though blind from infancy, she has composed more than 3,000 others. She is now sixty-five years of age, and before she made hymn writing her life work, was for many years a teacher of the blind. All of her poetical efforts are dictated to a secretary, and so faithful is her memory that she often composes a dozen or more hymns before she dictates any of them to her assistant. Her disposition is a sunny, hopeful one, and her cosy home is the abiding place of cheerfulness and contentment.

The cases I have cited by no means exhaust the list of those who, though blind, have made their way in the world. Robert Leibold was for some years the postmaster of a little town in Westchester county and proved a most efficient and capable official. Martin Farrell owned three farms in Orange county, all procured through his own efforts, as he began life without a dollar. James Peacock, until stricken with fatal illness, was an expert electrician in N. Y. A blind man named Selly conducts the leading upholstery establishment in Poughkeeps, and is making money, while there are many blind men who are prospering as real estate and insurance agents. So it will be seen that the lot of the blind person is anything but a hopeless one.

—For pity's sake, don't growl and grumble because you are troubled with indigestion. No good was ever effected by snarling and fretting. Be a man (unless you happen to be a woman), and take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which will relieve you, whether man or woman.

—Jerry Simpson won $500 on the election and has invested the money in a stocking factory.

Tourists.

It May Be Interesting to Know.

That when excursion rates are made to Chicago for people who live in the East, to enable them to attend the World's Fair next year, it is contemplated by the Western roads to also make excursion rates from Chicago to all principle business and tourist points in the West, Northwest and Southwest, so that those who desire to spend a few weeks among their friends in the Great West, may have an opportunity of doing so without incurring much additional expense. It may be well to consider this subject in advance of actual time of starting, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. has issued maps and time tables and other instructive reading matter, which it will be glad to furnish free of expense upon application by postal card to James T. Pott, District Passenger Agent, Williamsport, Pa., or to Geo. H. Heatford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

The Titan of Chasms.

A Mile Deep, 15 Miles Wide, 217 Miles Long, and Painted Like a Flower.

The Grand Canon of the Colorado River, in Arizona, is now for the first time easily accessible to tourists. A regular stage line has been established from Flagstaff, Arizona, on the Atlantic & Pacific Railroad, making the trip from Flagstaff to the most imposing part of the Canon in less than 12 hours. The stage fare for the round trip is only $20.00, and meals and comfortable lodgings are provided throughout the trip at a reasonable price. The view of the Grand Canon afforded at the terminus of the stage route is the most stupendous panorama known in nature. There is also a trail at this point, which leads to the top of the Canon, the descent of the trail is a grander experience than any other in the world. It consists of this terrific and sublime chasm are hundreds of mountains greater than any of the Alps range.

A book describing the trip to the Grand Canon, illustrated by many full-page engravings from special photographs, and containing the most complete and reliable information for application to Geo. J. Byrne, 723 Monmouth Block, Chicago, Ill. 37-39-3m

Whitney, St. Paul, Minn. 39-32.

The Land of Sunshine.

A Unique Country where the Skies are almost Never Clouded, and the air is Cool and Bracing, like Perpetual Spring.

As an anomalous southern resort, by reason of the fact that there one may escape summer heat no less than winter cold, New Mexico is rapidly becoming famous. Averaging throughout the entire territory 5,000 feet in altitude, nearly level, and characterized by dry air which, unlike a humid atmosphere, is incapable of communicating heat, the temperature in midsummer remains at a delightfully comfortable degree through the day, and at night becomes invariably brisk and bracing. The sunshine is almost constant, yet the most violent out-of-door exertion may be undertaken without fear of distressful consequences. Sun-baths or sun-beds are absolutely unknown there. It is an ideal land for a summer outing. Its climate is prescribed by reputable physicians as a specific for pulmonary complaints, and the medicinal Hot Springs at Las Vegas are noted for their curative virtues. The most beautiful and interesting of the hot springs, the M. de Tezuma, is located at these springs. Write to Geo. J. Byrne, 723 Monmouth Block, Chicago, Ill., for prospectus and descriptive of this region, the most picturesque and romantic in the United States. 37-43-3m

Abraham Lincoln.

When leaving his home at Springfield, Ill., to be inaugurated President of the United States, made a farewell address to his old friends and neighbors, in which he said: "neighbors give your boys a chance."

The words come with as much force to-day as they did thirty years ago.

Up in the northwest is a great empire waiting for young and sturdy fellows to come and develop it and "grow up the country." All over this broad land are the young fellows, the boys that Lincoln referred to, seeking to better their condition and get on in life.

Here is the chance!

The country referred to lies along the Northern Pacific R. R. Here you can find pretty much anything you want. In Minnesota, and in the Red River Valley of North Dakota, the finest of prairie lands fitted for wheat and grain, or as well for diversified farming. In Western North Dakota, and Montana, are stock ranges limitless in extent, clothed with the most nutritious of grasses.

If a fruit farming region is wanted there is the whole state of Washington to select from. As for scenic delights the Northern Pacific Railroad passes through a country unparalleled. In crossing the Rocky, Blister Root and Cascade mountains, the most stupendous scenery to be seen in the United States from car windows is found. The wonderful Bad Lands, wonderful in graceful form and glowing color, are a poem. Lake Pend d'Orelle and Couer d'Alene, are alone worthy of a transcontinental trip, while they are the fisherman's Ultima Thule. The ride along Clark's Fork of the Columbia River is a daylight dream. To cap the climax this is the only way to reach the far famed Yellowstone Park. To reach and see all this the Northern Pacific Railroad furnish trains and service of unsurpassed excellence. The most approved and comfortable Palace Sleeping cars; the best dining cars that can be made; Pullman Tourist cars good for both first and second class passengers; easy riding Day coaches, with Baggage, Express, and Postal cars all drawn by powerful Baldwin Locomotives makes a train fit for royalty itself.

Those seeking for new homes should take this train and go and spy out the land where they wish to settle. To be prepared write to CHAS. S. FEE, G. P. & T. A. St. Paul, Minn.
