Facts About the Earth.

The existence of volcanoes, pyroclasts and hot springs irregularly scattered over the whole surface of the globe and continually ejecting molten rock, ashes, steam, mud or hot water is an obvious indication of some widespread source of heat within the earth, but of the nature or origin of that heat they give little positive information.

The heat thus indicated has been supposed to be due to many causes, such as the pressure and friction caused by the contraction of the cooling crust, chemical action at great depths beneath the surface, isolated lakes of molten rock, due to these or to unknown causes, or to a molten interior, or at least a general substratum of molten matter between the crust and a possibly solid interior.

The two first causes are now generally admitted to be inadequate, and our choice is practically limited to one of the latter.

There are also important evidences of internal heat derived from the universal phenomenon of a fairly uniform increase of temperature in all deep wells, mines, borings and tunnels. The increase has been usually reckoned as one degree Fahrenheit for each 60 feet of descent, but a recent very careful estimate by Professor Prentiss, derived from the whole available data, gives one degree Fahrenheit for every 47.5 feet descent.

It is a curious indication of the universality of this increase that even in the coldest parts of Siberia, where the soil is frozen to a depth of 60 feet, there is a steady increase in the temperature of this frozen soil from the surface downward.

Much has been made by some writers of the local differences of the rate of increase, varying from one degree in twenty-eight to one degree in ninety-five, and also of the fact that in some places the rate of increase diminishes as the depth becomes greater.

But when we consider that springs often bring up heated water to the surface in countries far removed from the seat of volcanic action, and the extent to which water permeates the rocks at all depths reached by man, such divergences are exactly what we might expect.

Now, this average rate of increase, if continued downward, would imply a temperature capable of melting rock at about twenty miles deep, or less.

Cappa Dead.

The Well Known Musician Dies in New York. Sketch of his Life.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The well-known musician, Carlo Alberto Cappa, band master of the Seventh regiment, died this morning at his residence, 123 East Ninety-second street. His death was due to a tumor in the right side. Mr. Cappa has been ill for only a few weeks and it was said that he was suffering only from a slight cold. His death this morning, therefore, came as a surprise to all who knew him.

Mr. Cappa was born at Alessandria, Sardinia, in 1836. His father was an officer in the famous Eleventh regiment and followed the eagles of Napoleon to Russia and he was in the famous retreat from Moscow. Young Cappa received his early education at the Royal Academy of France, by virtue of being the son of an officer. Leaving school life at the age of 16 he joined the Sixth Lancers (French), where he served six years in the band.

In 1858, at the age of 22, he came to the United States and enlisted in the navy, where he served two years, becoming leader of the band on board the frigate Congress. Under Mr. Kendall he made a tour of the principal cities, afterwards joining Skelton's celebrated New York band, of which, at the time, Grafula was leader, and when the latter took the leadership of the Seventh Regiment band in 1860 Cappa went with him, remaining until Grafula died. Then Cappa became leader. Thus his services in the Seventh Regiment band has been a continuous one of over thirty-two years, and since 1881 he has been its leader.

Arsenical Poisoning.

The danger through arsenical poisoning in our homes is not confined to the wall papers, having been found often present in crutones and imitation Indian muslin in poisonous quantities. A bad specimen of crutone has yielded on analysis 19 grains of white arsenic, 23 grains having been known to be a fatal dose. Some months back a London doctor experimented upon forty-four samples of crutone supplied by a local tradesman, not one of which was absolutely free from poison; eleven of them were grouped by the analyst as "very bad," and nine as "distinctly dangerous."

It is quite a common occurrence to have pieces of these substances in a room containing sufficient arsenic to give 100 people a fatal dose. A very popular impression has been that greens and blues are the dangerous colors, but the analyst declares that reds, browns and blacks are more dangerous still. —Chamber's Journal.

American Fortunes.

The death of Jay Gould and publication of his will and the real facts as to his fortune have given renewed impetus to the discussion on great American fortunes and the rights of the public toward them. The discussion has of late grown very heated and bids fair to become acrimonious. The New York Tribune had its agents and correspondents make a careful count, and published a list showing over 4,000 millionaires in the United States, of whom 1,447 live in New York city and its suburbs. Putting their wealth at the lowest estimate, these 4,000 men own one-fourth of all the property in the country.

A Display of Pennsylvania Pottery and Porcelain at the World's Fair.

From the West Chester Daily Local News.

Col. John A. Woodward, Deputy Executive Commissioner of the Pennsylvania State Board of World's Fair Managers, has requested our townsman, Edwin A. Barber, to procure a representative collection of the pottery and porcelain made in Pennsylvania in past years, for exhibition in the State building at Chicago next year. Persons having ornamental or curious examples of such wares, which they are willing to loan for this purpose, should communicate with Mr. Barber, and furnish descriptions of pieces in their possession. It is intended to include in the exhibit specimens of old red earthenware and stoneware, showing the first attempts of our Pennsylvania potters in the direction of decorative designs, such as pie-dishes, flower pots, and other pieces containing dates, German or English inscriptions and fancy ornamentation; examples of porcelain from the old Tucker and Hemphill china manufacture which was in operation in Philadelphia from 1825 to 1838, and pieces made in any old pottery in the State, having historical or artistic value. There are many such in the possession of private parties, and it is hoped that these may be brought to light in order that a creditable display may be made. Arrangements will be perfected by the Commission for the safe transportation, care and return of pieces entrusted to their care. Persons having valuable examples which they are unwilling to send to Chicago, can furnish drawings, photographs or descriptions, which may be used in place of the articles themselves.

There will also be a series of old English dishes exhibited, having views of Pennsylvania scenery, historic buildings, portraits of prominent men, and other designs relating in any way to the history of the State. These views include such subjects as the Old Philadelphia Library, the Philadelphia Water Works in Centre Square Fairmount Park views, Staughton's Church the United States Bank, the Hamilton House in Woodlands, Girard's Bank, the United States Hotel, the bridge at Columbia, Pa., view of Gilpin's Mill on the Brandywine, Mendenhall's Ferry, Penn's Treaty with the Indians Arms of Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Hospital, views of Philadelphia, Washington Church, Race Street Bridge, Franklin's Tomb, and many more which are doubtless in possession of collectors and others. Such views are printed on plates, platters, coffee pots, etc., in dark and light blue, pink, green, black and purple. The names of the views are generally printed on the underside. It is desired that a complete series of such views may be represented, either by examples or china or by photographs, and persons possessing such pieces are requested to send lists or descriptions to Mr. Barber in order that he may be enabled to prepare a complete catalogue. Pieces exhibited will be labeled with the names and addresses of the owners, and will probably be displayed in cases in the ladies parlor of the Pennsylvania State building, where they will attract much attention. This occasion should bring out examples of every variety of ware made in the State from the earliest times, and every historical design on china which can in any way interest Pennsylvanians. Mr. Barber's address is West Chester, Pa.

Drowning Sensations.

As there is considerable discussion in regard to death by drowning, I offer my experience. I used to go swimming with the other boys, but could never learn to swim well. Hence, one day, when playing on some logs that were quite a distance from shore, I fell off and came near drowning. I struggled desperately of course and tried to swim, but could not, and was sinking for the third time when I was rescued. Just before I had given myself up for lost everything I had ever thought or did seemed to pass with lightning speed before me, and it was as though I could separate the evil things from the good of my past life. The sensation was torturing rather than pleasant, I can assure you. My brother, who witnessed my struggling, could never forget the utterly despairing expression of my face. —Alexander McCauley in New York Sun.

No Bitterness There.

"Does it not throw a shade of bitterness into your heart," she said, "to see the trees all leafless and to hear the wind sighing forever in mournful monotony? Does it not make you feel that there is too much that is bleak in the world?"

"No," he answered, "it weally does not."

"Why?"

"Because my papa is in the coal business." —Washington Star.

Inventive.

Small Son—I know what I'll be when I grow up. I'm going to be a great inventor.

Papa—That's encouraging certainly. What makes you think you have inventive genius?

Small Son—Why, I wanted to take a screw out, and I couldn't find any screwdriver, and so I unscrewed it with my razor. —Good News.

The Truth About It.

He—You say you love me, but cannot be my wife. Is it because I am poor? There are better things in the world than money.

She—Quite true, but it takes money to buy them. —Trib-Bits.

An Explanation.

"I am getting quite heavy," remarked the coal dealer.

"You don't look it," rejoined the sarcastic person. "Haven't you been weighing yourself on your own scales?" —Washington Star.

The Mature Man.

A contributor of Vick's Magazine declares that the best half of life is in front of the man of forty if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hand of a master and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not "see men as trees walking," but sees everything clear and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power.

It Took Trouble, But He Got It.

About two or three months ago I purchased from you a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, put up in Des Moines, Iowa. Such good results were obtained from its use that I enclose one dollar and ask that you send me two bottles by express. —J. A. Scriven, 18 E. 15th St., New York City. —To H. H. Lane, Druggist, Peekskill, N. Y. Mr. Scriven is president of one of the largest shirt factories in New York, and widely known in business circles. When troubled with a cold give this remedy a trial and, like Mr. Scriven, you will want it when again in need of such a medicine. 50 cent bottles for sale by Frank P. Green Druggist.

—"Ah! there goes Chris and his mother!" "So I see." "What a popular flower they would make!" "Why so?" "Because they may be described as Chris-an-the-num. See?" —Chicago Mail.

—Allow me to add my tribute to the efficacy of Ely's Cream. I was suffering from severe attack of influenza and catarrh and was induced to try your remedy. The result was marvellous. I could hardly articulate, and in less than twenty-four hours the catarrhal symptoms and my hoarseness disappeared and I was able to sing a heavy role in Grand Opera with voice unimpaired. I strongly recommend it to all singers. Wm. H. Hamilton, Leading Bass of the C. D. Hess Grand Opera Co.

—The Arid Region.—"De Mesa? Oh! he's cultivating his voice." "But he drinks so hard!" "Well, you know he's from the southwest, where they can't cultivate without irrigation." —Puck.

A REMEDY FOR THE GRIP.—A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the influenza is Kemp's Balsam, which is especially adapted to diseases of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease before securing the remedy, but get a bottle and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the influenza has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. All druggists sell the Balsam.

Physicians' prescriptions have failed to reach many cases of rheumatism known to have been subsequently cured by Salvation Oil. That is the reason why the popular voice is practically unanimous in its favor. 25 cents.

A Cold Leads its Victims Direct to Consumption.

There are three roads which lead from health to consumption. Over one of these roads pass all of that great multitude of people who die every year of consumption. Each route begins with disease and happiness and ends with disease and death. They are described as follows: 1st road, a slight cold—neglected—settles in the head or throat—chronic catarrh—extends to the lungs—consumption—death. 2d road, a slight cold—neglected—cough settles on the lungs—cough gradually growing worse—consumption—death. 3d road, a cold—neglected—settles in the throat—hoarseness—short breath—consumption—death.

Thousands have just started on one of these roads, all of whom could be easily cured by Peruna, thousands more are half way to the fatal end of one of these roads who are still curable by a course of treatment with Peruna; and yet other thousands are near the end whose last days would be made more bearable and hope of recovery more probable by commencing Peruna without delay.

Send to the Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, for a free copy of their latest publication, the Illustrated Ills of Life, a complete treatise on catarrh and all other chronic diseases of the lungs.

GENTLEMEN:—I had suffered with Rheumatism for many years, when, at the advanced age of seventy-seven years, your cure was recommended to me. Your remedy was taken according to directions, and after using the second package the disease left me entirely and no rheumatic pain or ache has troubled me since.

I can recommend it without hesitancy to all afflicted with the disease, and being familiar with the ingredients contained in the compound, can recommend them as being non-injurious to the constitution, and as being the most efficient blood remedy known.
