Down and Out.

No resignation that was ever handed into the ruling powers at Washington was so entirely appropriate, so comcompletely in accordance with the fit ness of things, as that of Pension Commissioner RAUM. If it had been handed in sooner it would have been still better. His administration of the important office, which he too long abused, was a protracted scandal. Nobody regrets his going but the pension sharks who profiled by the malpractices of which his incumbency was so prolific.

But probably RAUM did some service intending it. The manner in which he administered his office brought out in the boldest relief the iniquities of the pension system as Republican polucians have made it, and thus emphasized the necessity for its reformation. Without RAUM possibly its defects would not have been made so glaringly apparent. If there had been no RAUA to show how a system intended for the benefit of worthy veterans could be run in the interest of bummers, bounty jumpers and deserters, and for the enrichment of pension agents, there would not now be such urgency for the correction of the evils that have become associated with that system. In this way, RAUM, although a nuisance and a shame in his official capacity, may have done some good. One of the most urgent measures of reform is that which will transform the pension roll from a roll of fraud to a roll of honor. Steps must be taken to bring the system back to its original intention of assisting with government relief worthy soldiers who on account of disability are unable to support themselves. To carry the system beyond this object is to prostitute it, and that there has been a frightful amount of such prostitution is shown by the character of too many who are the recipients of the government's bounty unworthily. General SLOCUM, one of the most distinguished surviving officers of the late war, calls it a fraudulent roll, and recommends that it be thoroughly overhauled and the unworthy be stricken off. No one was more largely instrumental in making it a roll of dishonor than Commissioner RAUM. All his rulings and the entire policy of his official action tended in that direction. He has now stepped down and out, unregretted by the country whose interests he served so poorly, and with his retirement commences an era of pension reform. --- Easter Sunday, this year, will fall on April second. It is a day which by marking the end of the Len ten season signalizes the awakening of social pleasures and heralds the gay summer time of society just as the robin and blue-bird premonish the awakening of nature. Easter time is gladsome to the hearts of women, and the radiant loveliness of their spring attire is refreshing to the minds of men. Out from the stifled confinement of the winter's home humanity takes its first steps and the season of health-giving out-door life is begun.

Army of the Republic Routed by Revolutionists Under Tavarez. Desperate Friday Conflict Government Commander Led Into a Trap by His Opponent. Uruguayan Movement Win VALPARAISO, March 19.-General Tavarez, leader of the revolution in the Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, has routed and put to flight the army of 3,000 men which the government of Brazil sent against him under the command of General Tellos. This news was tele-COMMITTEEMEN. graphed by a correspondent in Rio .L. A. Shaeffer.

Grande do Sul, and has just been confirmed from the Rivera. The battle was fought near Ypacaray, to which point General Tavarez retired when the advance guard of General Tellos's troops reached Santa Anna on Wednesday. Tavarez's retreat was in reality a feint, by which he led the enemy into a trap and forced him to give battle on ground selected by the leader of the revolutionary army. When Tavarez fell back before the advance of Tellos's army he made it appear that he was trying to avoid an engagement. His movement appears to have completely deceived the government commander, who pushed his forces on toward the position taken by the revolutionists.

The attack upon Tavarez's army was made Friday morning. Skirmishers were thrown out, but the resistance shown from the start showed the commander of the government troops that victory was not to be won so easily as he had expected. Re-inforcements were hurriedly sent forward, and in less the natives. than 30 minutes after the attack was opened the engagement become a general one.

From fighting on the defensive General Tavarez became the aggressor. His best fighting men were pushed to the front while he led in person a vigprous attack upon the enemy's right flank. The onslaught was fierce, terrible and irresistible. It operated in the nature of a surprise to the government troops, who had confidently expected success without much fighting. In vain General Tellos tried to repel he attack. His columns were soon shattered and the wavering ranks fell back under the murderous fire of the revolutionists. Fired by desperation General Tellos and his staff rode among the government troops and restored order in the ranks. But it was no longer an attacking army they had to command. From assailants they had become the objects of attack by forces who already believed victory had been won. On came the revolutionary army. They plunged into the battle with a vigor more irresistible than before. The stand made by the demoralized army of the government was futile. The fire of Tavarez's troops appeared to have greater terrors, and in a few minutes army was in tull retreat. No effort was made to gather the force together. Even Teilos now saw that no power could save the day for him' and he and his badly deteated army pushed their way as rapidly as Fair. possible toward Petrito. The rout of the government army was complete. It was a great victory for General Tavarez. Quickly dividing his forces. he sent one division to pursue the flee-World's Fair. Work of the State Legislature for the Pass Eleven Weeks.

HARRISBURG, March 19 .- The Legislature has been in session eleven weeks and during that time only three bills have reached the Governor. Two of these provided for the payment of the expenses of committees which the Governor would not allow two years ago be cause the amounts alleged to have been expended were not itemized. The bills passed at this session were properly drawn and the Governor promptly ap proved them, although the personal expenses of the members appeared high to hım.

The other bill sent to the Governor authorized the appointment of women as notaries public, but as it was not carefully watched it was passed in an incomplete form. The Senate passed a hill to render women eligible as notaries public, with an amendment providing for the recommission in the married name in the event of forming a matrimonial alliance without additional expense. By some blunder the Senate passed the House woman notary bill which did not contain this provision. It will probably be recalled from the Gov to the interests of the country without the ranks broke and the government ernor and modified to harmonize with the one which orignated and was amended in the Senate.
