Bicycle.

NOW FOR A FIRST-CLASS BICYCLE
 James R. Hughes has the agency for the Victor, Crendena and Nonpartiel bicycles for another year, and is now ready to sell to any who wish to secure a good wheel and at the most reasonable terms. The Victor needs no eulogy. They make the pace to day, and everybody knows it. The Victor wheels for '93 are beauties and no one should buy until seeing them. The Crendena is an excellent wheel, at the popular price of $15. The Nonpartiel is the boys' and girls' wheel at $10. These wheels are much lighter than last year—the sprockets, cranks and pure rubber mud guards instantly detachable. Extra inner tube furnished with each wheel, free of charge. Second hand wheels—good as new—at bargain. Catalogues sent to any address on application.

 Read following testimonial of an eminent Centre county physician.
 GATESBURG, Centre County, Pa., Aug. 9, 1892
 To the N. F. German Rheumatic Cure Co., Tyrone, Pa.
 GENTLEMEN:—I had suffered with Rheumatism for many years, when, at the advanced age of seventy-seven years, your cure was recommended to me. I had tried up myself everything known to me, (I am a doctor of fifty-one years experience) and had despaired of ever being cured. Your remedy was taken according to directions, and after using the second package the disease left me entirely and no rheumatic pain or ache has troubled me since.
 I can recommend it without hesitancy to all afflicted with the disease, and being familiar with the ingredients contained in the compound, can recommend them as being non-injurious to the constitution, and as being the most efficient blood remedy known.
 Truly Yours,

Indian Hospitality.
 A Woman Well Treated in a Mountain Mission.
 When Mrs. Jackson was pursuing her investigations among the mission Indians of Southern California she was invited to pass the night at Potrero—a mountain meadow or pasture—high up the mountain side, and reached an almost impassable road. The Indian who gave her the invitation assured her timidly that they had plenty of beds and would do all they knew how to do to make her and her companion comfortable. How well this promise was fulfilled may be gathered from Mrs. Jackson's narrative.
 "One might be in many a dear-precious hotel less comfortable lodged and served than we were by these hospitable Indians in their mud houses, floored with earth.
 "In my bed room were three beds, all neatly made, with lace-trimmed sheets and pillow-cases and patch work coverlets. As I fell asleep I wondered if in the morning I should see Indian heads on the pillow opposite me. The whole place was swarming with men, women and babies, and it seemed impossible for them to spare so many beds. But no, when I waked there were the beds still undisturbed.
 "A soft-eyed Indian girl was on her knees rumaging in one of the trunks. Seeing me awake, she murmured a few words in Indian which conveyed her apology as well as if I had understood them. From the very bottom of the trunk she drew out a gilt-edged mug, dented out of the room and came back bringing it filled with fresh water. As she set it on the chair, in which she had already put a tinpan of water and a clean coarse towel, she smiled and made a sign that it was my wash.
 "The food which they gave us was a surprise; it was far better than we had found the night before at the house of an Austrian Colonel's son at Pala.
 "Chicken, deliciously cooked with rice and chile; soda biscuits delicately made, good milk and butter, all laid in orderly fashion, with a clean tablecloth and clean, white china.
 "When I said to my hostess that I regretted very much that they had given up their beds in my room, she answered me with a wave of her hand that it was nothing; they hoped I had slept well; that they had plenty of other beds.
 "The hospitable I did not deceive me, for by examination I had convinced myself that the greater part of the family must have slept in the kitchen.
 "We left there at 6 o'clock in the morning. One of the men, the 'captain,' rode to see us with us safe on our way. When we had passed the worst gullies and boulders, he whirled his horse, lifted his hand to his forehead and said, 'I calvater smiled, wish-ed us good-day and good luck, and was out of sight in a second, his little wild pony galloping up the rough trail as if it were a race course.'"
 Presidential Love Affairs.
 Bits of Romance Concerning the Highest Officers of the Land.
 One of the queerest couples that ever inhabited the White House, and one of the most devoted, were Andrew Jackson and his wife. She was as democratic as himself, smoked a pipe, and used strange country idioms and confined her reading to the Bible. Yet she was intensely sensitive to public opinion. There had been some misunderstanding about her with the first husband, which, through a confusion of State laws, had not really taken legal effect until after her marriage with Old Hickory. The scandal was revived when she entered the White House, and it was the object of Jackson's tenderest solicitude to keep from her all knowledge of the shameful attacks that abounded in the newspapers. She died in the White House and her bereaved husband ever afterward bore around his neck and hidden in his bosom a miniature, which every night he placed on a little table by his bedside so that her face might be the first to greet him in the morning. On her tombstone he had caused to be engraved the words, "A being so gentle and yet so virtuous, slander might wound, but could not dishonor."
 General Grant during the whole of his married life wore a ring which his wife had given him during his engagement and at his request it was buried with him.
 General Tyler and Millard Fillmore were the only presidents who were twice married. The former was President at the time of his second marriage, but for some reason he considered it indelicate to be married in the White House, a precedent which Cleveland rightly honored in the breach rather than in the observance. Fillmore's first wife was taken sick on the very day that his term of office expired, and died in a few weeks afterward at Willard's Hotel, in Washington, whither she had been removed from the White House.
 Lincoln's romance was connected with his first love rather than with the woman whom he afterward married. The former was a golden-haired little blonde named Anne Rutledge, to whom he was engaged at the age of 24. She died before they could be married, and Lincoln almost went out of his mind. His friend thought indeed that he was crazy. He was especially violent in gloomy or stormy weather, when he would rave and cry that he could never be reconciled to have the snow, rain or storms to beat upon her grave. It was not until nearly ten years afterward that he became engaged to Miss Mary Todd, who refused Stephen A. Douglas in order to accept him. But he had a premonition that his marriage would not be a happy one. On the day first set for the wedding he became suddenly ill and was unable to make his appearance, though, clergyman and guests were all waiting for him. More than a year afterward the marriage was consummated.

THE GIRL WE ALL LOVE.
 You will find that she is frank and girlish, says a New York exchange, with an old-fashioned sentiment, charmingly developed, which recognizes her duty as a daughter toward the woman who acts as her mother. The lovable girl understands that all day and every day cannot be devoted to holiday-making, but that life holds duties without number. She is a cheery little party, and so she goes about them in a brisk and whole-hearted way that is simply irresistible. She can tread with a step as light and gladsome when on an errand of mercy as if shod with a pair of fairy slippers and tripping over a well waxed floor. Ah, this is the girl who will broaden out and sweeten the life of the man she marries. She can accept thorns with roses without a murmur. Submitting to the inevitable has prepared her to become a companion well worth the wooing and the winning.
 GUARANTEED CURE. We authorize our advertised druggist to sell Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption Coughs and Colds, upon this condition. If you are afflicted with a Cough, Cold or any Lung, Throat or Chest trouble, and will use this remedy as directed, giving it a fair trial, and experience no benefit, you may return the bottle and have your money refunded. We could not make this offer did we not know that Dr. King's New Discovery could be relied on. It never disappoints. Trial bottles free at Parrish's Drug Store. Large size 50c and $1.00.

A Paperhanger's Paste.
 A good paperhanger's paste is made of four pounds of fine wheaten flour mixed with a small quantity of cold water, thoroughly stirred; two ounces of powdered alum are then added and when dissolved, a gallon of boiling water. When cool it may be thinned as desired with cold water and used.
 Here it is, and it fills the bill much better than anything we could say: "It gives me the greatest pleasure to write you in regard to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. During the past winter I have sold more of it than any other kind, and have yet to find any one but what was benefitted by taking it. I have never had my medicine in my store that gave such universal satisfaction." J. M. Roney, Druggist, Gueda Springs, Kansas. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Frank P. Green.

 Here it is, and it fills the bill much better than anything we could say: "It gives me the greatest pleasure to write you in regard to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. During the past winter I have sold more of it than any other kind, and have yet to find any one but what was benefitted by taking it. I have never had my medicine in my store that gave such universal satisfaction." J. M. Roney, Druggist, Gueda Springs, Kansas. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Frank P. Green.
 Who Was She.
 "Hullo!" said the sparrow to the ant.
 "Who are you?"
 "I'm afraid I'm your ant," said the ant.
 "I'm afraid you are right. Come inside," said the sparrow gobbling the ant up.—Harper's Young People.
 Rev. Sylvanus Lane of the Cincinnati M. E. Conference, makes a good point when he says: "We have for years used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family of five, and find it fully equal to all that is claimed for it. Some people are greatly prejudiced against patent medicines, but how the patent can hurt a medicine and not a machine is a mystery of mysteries to me." Hood's pills cure liver ills.
 Joseph Pulitzer, proprietor of the New York World, maintains a Paris residence at a cost of $200,000 a year the establishment including a dozen horses and 30 servants. He has also a handsome New York residence near Central Park. His ill health still keeps him abroad; and although there is said to have been some slight improvement in his physical condition, there is no indication of complete convalescence.
