Yes, protection had a hard death last November, killed by the votes of the poor man at ident Stephenson and family will leave the polls,-the man who was promised protection for many years, and got it in just the way the supporters of it chagrined at the justifiable homicide of their pet, are determined to do in Bellefonte to-day. As usual they never bring forth anything openly and truthfully but always in disguise. The cow is domed to protect the town from the cholera and all the most dreadful diseases known to the medical profession, when in fact it is only to protect the pocketbook of a few wrote to a friend there on March 8th, 1893, wealthy residents having lands in and around and received a reply very flattering to the B-llefonte, on which they can keep a number of cows to a great profit to themselves. But who pays these enormous profits? Just the same class that pays the profits upon all their protection schemes. Invariably the poor man has the greater burden.

If the cow must go there is only one of two things for the poor man to do, sell his cow or keep her in the stable the whole year. To sell her would be to lose a large proportion of the ranges for baking and stewarg, and saves one family's support. The advanced price of milk would make it impossible for him to buy for his family of little children. To keep her in the stable, would be very expensive, to say nothing of cruelty. But they say why not pay for pasture? Pray tell us where to get it. That which can be had is readily taken by the well-to-do class, notwithstanding the advanceprice that would be asked. Or the owners themselves would utilize it by keeping more cows themselves.

The Gazette reports that a business man thought to start works here to employ hundreds of men, but seeing the cows upon the streets, in disgust left the town and located in' some other town. What an assertion ! Tney say there is nothing upon the streets for the cow to eat. That may be true within the main part of the town but are there not back streets, little traveled, upon which the cow can graze. Are there not comm ins for waste lands within the town and its suburbs? Are there not many roads leading from the town into all parts of the country around upon which many cows could almost muintain themselves and thus to a large ex-teat maintain the family of their owners? The advocate of this question should again come before the people and say what a friend he is of the poor man and ask them to vote for him. Is he what he so represented? His olfactory nerves being so sensitive that he cannot endure to breath the atmosphere upon the streets through which a cow had quietly passed that morning upon her way to her grazing grounds outside the city limits had better climb to the top of the highest mountain and there remain the rest of his days, in quiet solitude, or within the next six months we may expect his auditory to become so affected as to come forward with an ordi nauce to prohibit all children from being upon the streets, unless with an adult person, and not allowed outside of their houses without being properly protected from speaking above a common tone. He will say that this is also

THE OLD MILL.

O. H. WASON The water mill I love it still, Now it is old and gray : Though to my mind A bit declined, It never can decay.

The swallows nest, And aged mosses are While down the deep The waters sleep The pondrous wheel Is like the keel Of time forsaken boat,

There on its crest

Or mossy bridge Upon the ridge Of old ancestral moat But time brings back The click and clack

The waters pure and fleet, When on the brim Where shad ows dim Of weary little feet.

And then a maid Beneath the shade Of trysting willow tree. And then a youth

In periect truth Two lovers fair to see But time did pass The miller's lass Grew lovely unto death The stream ran dry And by and by The miller ceased his breath.

In Loving Remembrance.

The following verses were sent to us for publication, dedicated to the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Blackburn, whose dear little son, William Mingle, died of membraneous croup on Wednesday the 12th, at his grandparent's, at Johnstown, where he was visiting with his mother. Mingle was between two and three years old and was an exceptionally bright child. Away from their home, their beautiful boy On pinions of light hath been borne, Up to the shining courts on high Up to the great white throne.

Up to the great white throne in heaven, Beside the Jasper Sea, Where wave o'er wave of rapture rolls Through all eternity.

'Tis in heaven their darling's feet shall tread Safe on the blissful shore. Those pattering steps will echo back Sweet music as of yore.

As he waits to bid them welcome When they near the glittering strand, There to greet them first in heaven. At the portals fair he'll stand.

Will Go to Chicago.

FROM the smallest concern in our line in Bellefonte we have steadily grown until now no one will question our right to the title of Leaders, but still we are not satisfied. We fully appreciate the fact that to deserve your liberal patronage we dare not stand still. To maintain our position as Leaders we must keep abreast of the times; we must strive on and on until we have so far out distanced our competitors that were they race horses it would take them years to get a position along side of us. We have done everything in our power to bring our store and contents up to that standard of perfection which is sure to win your con.

With our two large new rooms we have what we never had before, ample room to show an assortment of goods that should please everybody, rich or poor, large or small. We can now suit and fit without the least trouble, needing only your inspection to satisfy you that our prices are the very lowest that well made, honest goods can be sold for, and our past success is the best evidence that the trade receives the fairest of treatment from us. We ask you for your benefit, as well as for ours, to give us a call, see our stock, note the prices, and we feel sure you will then see nothing unreasonable in our expecting to make this the largest business year we have ever had.

The medicine you gave me for Bronchitis and Asthma helped me wonderful. There are 5 or 6 patients here who know of my case, and want to consuit you and want to know if you will stop over here; if not we will come to Bellefonte at your next visit. Yours Respectfully, Mrs. Jennie Carsons.

Thanks to the good Dr. I feel once more hale and hearty.

Bellefonte, Pa., Oct 13th, 1892.

For more than 5 years I have had sore eyes and at the same time a miserable case of Dyspepsia, I felt bad all over, became thin and pale, lost all appetite and energy. But now after only a few months treatment with Dr. Salm I have gained very much in flesh, have a good color, eat heartily; my eyes are as good as any ones, and Dyspepsia is all gone. In fact I consider myself entirely cured, and thanks to the good Dr. I feel once more hale and hearty.

her mother Mrs. Sarah Kelley. Successful double cross-eye operations.

Indiana, Pa., Oct. 12th, 1892.

I have been cross-eyed, and that very badly for over 28 years. Dr. Salm operated on bott eyes in less than two minutes time, without causing the least pain, nor was I confined to my room for a moment. I can conscientiously say that my eyes are now perfectly straight thanks to the Dr.

Respectfully, Mrs. Callie Kinter.

SEVERE EYE TROUBLE. I have been troubled with some Eye disease I have been troubled with some Eye disease for some time. The pain was almost unbearable at times, and I couldn't think of reading or sewing at any time. I put myself under the care of Dr. Salm, who visits Butter every four weeks, and after only three months treatment, I consider myself entirely cured, and I can safely say that my eyes feel better and have better vision than at any time within the last twelve years.

Mrs. P. Golden, Butter, Pa., W. Jefferson street.

EAR TROUBLE AND CATARRH.

I have been troubled with catarrhand desf-ness, ringing in the ears. about six years. Tried two different doctors in Pittsburg and ever so many patent medicines, without the least benefit. I have now been under Dr. Salms treatment four months, and the improvement is remarkable, and I am certain that within a short time I'll be entirely cured. He is the Doctor to go to, to get cured.

W. R. MILLER. W. R. MILLER, Kelley Station, Armstrong Co. Pa. Oct. 3, 1894 GROWTH REMOVED FROM THE EYE BALL.

Dr. Salm has removed a hard, gristly growth from my left eye with perfect success and but little pain. The sight has also improved to a great extent.

Respectfully,
