GATSBURGH, Centre County, Pa., Aug. 9, 1892
To the N. F. German Rheumatic Cure Co.,
Tyrona, Pa.

GENTLEMEN:—I had suffered with Rheumatism for many years, when, at the advanced age of seventy-seven years, your cure was recommended to me. I had tried upon myself everything known to me, (I am a doctor of fifty-one years experience) and had despaired of ever being cured. Your remedy was taken according to directions, and after using the second package the disease left me entirely and no rheumatic pain or ache has troubled me since.

I can recommend it without hesitancy to all afflicted with the disease, and being familiar with the ingredients contained in the compound, can recommend them as being non-injurious to the constitution, and as being the most efficient blood remedy known.

Truly Yours,

The Christian Sunday.

Cardinal Gibbons Tells How It Should Be Observed.

"Sunday Rest" is the theme of Cardinal Gibbons' paper to be read at the congress of Sabbath observers at Chicago. The paper has been received here by the committee in charge. His eminence holds that the desecration of the Christian Sabbath is one of our social dangers against which it behooves us to set our face and to take timely precautions before it assumes proportions too formidable to be easily eradicated.

An exhaustive review of the earliest Sabbath observance follows, leading to the conclusion that it was derived from the primitive law given to Adam. With what profound reverence then should we view an ordinance instituted to draw man closer to his Maker. Whenever the enemies of God seek to destroy the religion of a people they find no means as effectual for carrying out their impious design as the suppression of the Sabbath. He refers to Sabbath desecration of other times and then coming down to the present, say:

"I have seen Sunday violated in Paris in Brussels and in other capitals of Europe. And even in Rome I have seen government workmen on the Lord's day in excavating and in building, a profanation which grieved the holy father, as he himself acknowledged to me. Who are they that profane the Sunday in these cities of Europe? They are men lost to all sense of religion, who glory in their impiety and who aim at the utter extirpation of Christianity.

"A close observer cannot fail to note the dangerous inroads that have been made on the Lord's day in our country within the last quarter of a century. If these encroachments are not checked in time the day may come when the religious quietude and happily reigning in our well-ordered cities will be changed noise and turbulence, and salutary thoughts of God, of eternity and of the soul will be checked by the cares of business and by the pleasures and dissipation of the world. The Christian Sabbath is a living witness of revelation, an abiding guardian of our faith, and a potent closing of our civil tribunals would not entail a more disastrous injury on the laws of the land than the closing of our churches would inflict on the Christian religion. The institution of the Christian Sabbath has contributed more to peace and good order of nations than could be accomplished by standing armies and the best organized police force.

"The Christian Sunday is not to be confounded with the Jewish or even the Puritan Sabbath. It prescribes the golden mean between rigid Sabbatarianism on the one hand and lax indulgence on the other. There is little doubt that the revulsion on public sentiment from a rigorous to a loose observance of the Lord's day can be ascribed to the sincere and ardent zeal of the Puritans, who confounded the Christian Sabbath with the Jewish Sabbath, and imposed restraints on the people which were repulsive to Christian freedom and which were not warranted by the gospel dispensation. The Lord's day to the Catholic heart is always a day of joy. The church desires us on that day to be cheerful, without dissipation; grave and religious, without sadness and melancholy. She forbids, indeed, all unnecessary servile work on that day; but as the Sabbath was for man, not man for the Sabbath," she allows such work whenever charity or necessity shall demand it. As it is a day consecrated not only to religion, but also to relaxation of mind and body, the church permits us to spend a portion of it in innocent recreation. In a word, the true conception of the Lord's day is expressed in the words of the Psalmist: 'That is the day which the Lord hath made; let us be glad and rejoice therein.'

How to Be Happy Though Poor.

He Tells the Poor What They Should Do in Order to Be Happy.

You ask how to be happy though poor. I think, as a rule, the poor are happier than the rich. I fancy, moreover, that the very poor are, in the long run, the happier and better off than the very rich. If the poor learn the art of industry and economy; if they put strong emphasis on true character and true culture; if they get rid of the idea that the luxuries of life which wealth brings are really necessary to true enjoyment; if they learn how to make a good use of nature, of the public provision made for our modern civilization for all classes of people; if public schools, public libraries, public gardens, public art galleries, etc.; if they make religious life a reality, they will find that the contentment of an intelligent and reverent man is in itself a fortune, and that this world and the world to come, with all the things which a true Christian inherits, make it impossible for any man to be really poor as to excite the pity of anybody.—John H. Vincent.

Pitcairn Islanders.

Pitcairn Island, where the descendants of the mutineers of the bounty live in isolation, and primitive contentment, boasts of being absolutely free from the vice of drinking. The prohibition laws there touch not only liquors, but tobacco. A shipwrecked sailor named Coffin, who was cast ashore there a few months ago, had managed to save his dearly cherished pipe and pouch of tobacco. The chief magistrate of the colony promptly informed him that he must give up smoking if he wanted to enjoy their hospitality, and when he refused he was so effectually boycotted that he fled this ocean paradise by the first passing ship. Captain Bailey of the American merchantman Vigilant, from Japan, brings this story. He stopped at the island and traced trinkets for food with the natives, and found them happy and prosperous, though not a drop of rain had fallen there for two years, and the volcano over which their island lies has been giving ominous indications of activity.

A Floating Island.

In certain places floating islands are not uncommon, but one seen three times last year in the North Atlantic Ocean was not only a rare occurrence, but was, besides, of peculiar scientific interest. It was first seen on July 58, in latitude 39 degrees, 31 minutes, and longitude 65 degrees West. The second occasion was on August 28, in latitude 41 degrees, 39 minutes, and longitude 50 degrees, 39 minutes, and the third time, was on September 19, in latitude 42 degrees, 20 minutes, and longitude 42 degrees, 39 minutes. As it was never seen after that date, it was presumed the island was destroyed in the autumnal storms. On the three occasions the island was come upon it was moving toward the Azores at the rate of about a mile an hour. Its extent was about 300 feet each way, and it contained much forest growth, many of the trees thereon being fully 30 feet high. The finding of such an island in that part of the Atlantic is in itself a curious incident, but to scientists generally it is more interesting as showing the possible migration of animals by this means, as put forth by Darwin.

It is tastefully gotten up and presents in a most practical and comprehensive manner about four hundred popular summer resorts, from which excellent selections may be made for either limited trips or extended sojourns during the summer and early fall months.

The great variety of routes suggested, the complete schedules of rates, the graphic and exhaustive descriptions of the different places, the explanatory maps and the illustrations, make this volume a most valuable guide.

Copies of the book may be obtained at any ticket office of the Pennsylvania Railroad on payment of ten cents, or upon application to the General Passenger Agent, Pennsylvania Railroad, Philadelphia, it will be forwarded upon the receipt of twenty cents.

A Barber's Queer Story.

He Shaved a Man Who Left a Note Confessing That He Had Murdered the Bordons.

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—William H. Devere, a barber at 38 bridge street, told the police to-day a queer story. He says one day last fall a man about 45 years old came in and had his heavy black beard and mustache shaved off and then wrote three letters. They did not seem to suit him and he re-wrote them.

Before the man went away he looked at himself in the glass, the barber says, and said to him: "You would not know me, would you?"

After the man left the barber picked up one of the sheets of paper. It was addressed to Mayor Coughlin, of Fall River. It read: "I murdered Mrs. Borden. I did it out of revenge. It is no use trying to catch me, because I am so disguised you would not know me."

Wanted to be a Boy Again.

Mr. Sidney Eastwood, the president and manager of the Denver Fire Dispatch Company, is something of a genius. He is the author of the following lines, which a reporter of the Colorado Herald managed to secure recently. It is a clever production:

"I'd like to be a boy again without a thought or care, with freckles scattered on my face and hayseed in my hair; I'd like to rise at 4 o'clock and do a hundred chores, and saw the wood and feed the hogs and lock the stable doors; and herd the hens and watch the bees and take the males to drink, and teach the turkeys how to swim, so that they wouldn't sink; and milk about one hundred cows and bring in wood to burn, and stand out in the sun all day and churn and churn and churn; and wear my brother's cast-off clothes and walk four miles to school, and get a licking every day for breaking some old rule, and then get home again at night and do the chores once more, and milk the cows and feed the hogs and carry mail to school; and then crawl wearily up stairs to seek my little bed and hear dad say: 'That worthless boy! he isn't worth his bread! I'd like to be a boy again; a boy has so much fun; his life is just a round of mirth from rise to set of sun; I guess there's nothing pleasanter than closing stable doors and herding hens and chasing bees and doing evening chores.'

A Cure for Constipation and Headache.

Dr. Silas Lane, while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick headache. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for clearing up the complexion it does wonders. Druggists sell it at 50c. a package—enough for five weeks.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cured a Complication of Diseases and Gave Good Health.

"I have been a very great sufferer for 5 years with my lungs and kidneys and the worst stage of dyspepsia. I could scarcely eat anything because of the intense pain in my stomach. I was also at one time covered with salt rheum, and my cough weakened me so that I could scarcely walk. I had several attacks of bleeding at the lungs. My breath became so short that I was unable to work. So I kept going from bad to worse. I then had an attack of the shingles, which, with all my other complaints, confined me to my room for three months and
