

$50,000 Package Stolen.

Express Messenger and Special Guard Under Surveillance—Both Stoutly Maintain Their Innocence—An All Around Mystery, Although Detectives Seem to Be Working on a Clew.

ST LOUIS, Oct. 17.—An express package containing $50,000 was recently delivered to the American Express Company by a New York bank for shipment to New Orleans. The money was placed in a safe, and accompanied by special guard Korzenedorfer, the money should have come to St. Louis, but whether it reached here or not is a mystery, and whether it is lost between St. Louis and New Orleans, its destination, is yet to be developed.

For once the express officials are puzzled. Korzenedorfer can not explain how the package got away, and neither can messenger Crawley, and both the special guard and messenger have since been under surveillance. This morning Korzenedorfer and Crawley were at the Southern Hotel being interrogated by detectives. What was done behind the closed doors of the room in which the well known process of inquiring into express robberies was conducted, will probably never be given the public, but something must have been ascertained, for a reporter learned that a detective, accompanied by Korzenedorfer, would leave St. Louis for New Orleans tonight. It is therefore presumed that the package must have been lost between St. Louis and New Orleans instead of between New York and St. Louis.

What puzzles the express officials and their detectives is the frankness with which Korzenedorfer and Crawley make their statements. It is said that at first it was suspected that the bills might have been abstracted and "dummies" substituted therefor. The New York officials, so it is alleged, claim that this was not the case. Messenger Crawley professes to know absolutely nothing about the special package of $50,000, although he is held jointly responsible with Korzenedorfer for the same.

Burned His Whisky.

Streets of Lancaster Flooded With Liquor on Account of a Big Fire.

LANCASTER, Pa., Oct. 17.—At an early hour this morning the bonded warehouse of Jacob Saffer, distiller, this city, was completely destroyed by fire, with a stock of 1,100 barrels of whisky and other contents. The distilling and other buildings near were saved by the firemen. There was an insurance of $10,000 on the warehouse and $40,000 on the contents, which will cover the loss.

The fire was the work of an incendiary who placed straw saturated with coal oil in different parts of the warehouse and ran the whisky on the floor of the buildings to the depth of several inches. During the fire barrels of whisky exploded with terrible force and the liquor ran down the street gutters in streams. The owner of the property is in Chicago.

They Abolish Slavery.

Bolivia Shows Its Progressiveness by Passing a Bill Freeing the Peons.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—It is stated here through a private source that the Legislature of Bolivia has passed a bill abolishing slavery in that country. While the peons have been practically free for some time and the legislative enactment is more a matter of form than the outcome of a crying demand, the fact is an important one as showing the advances in legislation and progressiveness of the South American republics.

Col. McClure Slowly Improving.

Colonel A. K. McClure editor of the Philadelphia Times has held his own since Sunday, and has perhaps made a slight gain. The beneficial effects of the surgical operation are now apparently permanent, the wounds are healing and fever has subsided in a marked degree. The chief anxiety on the part of his medical attendants relates to the condition of his kidneys which has been serious on several occasions. He is still very ill, but the physicians feel hopeful as to the ultimate result.

Schools Needn't Close on Election Days.

HARRISBURG, Oct. 16.—One opinion has been given by the superintendent of public instruction on the acts of May 23 and 31, 1893, designating the days to be observed as holidays. He holds that the school boards throughout the state are not required to close the schools on the days designated as election days. On the contrary, he urges them to keep their schools in session on these days.

U. P. Defeats Lehigh at Foot Ball.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., October 18.—The University of Pennsylvania defeated Lehigh in this afternoon's foot ball game by a score of 32 to 6. The first half was nearly over before Osgood scored the first points. Lehigh's backs were knocked out in the second half, when Pennsylvania scored at will.

Fired on the Insurgents.

RIO JANERIO, Oct. 17.—Fl. Santa Cruz opened fire on the insurgents ships Trajano and Aquidaban to day and inflicted great damage upon both of them.

Small Pox Spreading.

NEW YORK, October 17.—The spread of small pox continues unabated in this city. Three new cases were reported this morning to the health board.

DEDICATED TO OUR MERCHANTS.—A Kansas editor sarcastically announces that he wants to buy a sack of flour, a pair of three bottom pants and a hat, and is ready to receive lowest bids for same. He says that is the way the merchants do with him when they want two dollars worth of job printing.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

IN THE HOTEL BUSINESS.—Walter H. Butts, of this place, who has for years most successfully represented the reputable Philadelphia firm of Joel J. Bailey & Co., departed for Houtzdale, on Wednesday morning, where he will take charge of the Arlington, hotel in that place. Miss Mary Butts, his sister, accompanied him and will have general supervision of the domestic conduct of the house. If energy and courtesy are to count for anything the new hotel people in Houtzdale will make a decided success of it.

BATHS FOR THE Y. M. C. A. ROOM. There is a movement on foot to equip the gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A., in this place, with complete shower and tub baths which will be open to the use of all members of the association. Such a thing has long been needed in Bellefonte and it is to be hoped that our people will lend every assistance to the undertaking.

For the small sum of $4.00 yearly, you can become a member of the association, enjoying the privileges of the reading room, library, evening classes and baths. Why not do it?

OF INTEREST TO CATTLE OWNERS.—An exchange publishes the following decision on line fences which was rendered at Pittsburg last week.

"Among the decisions handed down by the supreme court at Pittsburg last week was one relating to partition or line fences. It has been held by many eminent lawyers that when the fence law of 1700 with regard to outside fences was repealed in 1889, that the act of 1842, which required the erection of line or partition fences, not being specified in the act, continued to remain a law. On the other hand, lawyers of high standing claimed that the act of 1700 was removed from the statute books. But Judge McClure held that the law of 1842 is valid and Judge Dean has sustained him in his view, the point of difference being where the supreme court held that in the case of Barber vs. Mensch that the defendant should have seen that there was sufficient fencing to keep in his own cattle, notwithstanding the fact that there had existed between the litigants an agreement for each to keep one half of the fence.

Hereafter then, according to Judge Dean's decision, a man who wishes to pasture cattle must see that the whole partition or line fence is sufficient to keep his cattle on his own premises, with the right to recover one-half of the costs of the fence from his adjainer. In other words, the supreme court holds that all agreements between parties for the maintenance of one half by each will not stand, and that the man who wishes to pasture his cattle must see to it that they do not damage his adjainer. In cases where you have already your half under an agreement your only remedy against your adjainer, who refuses to build his half, is to construct the fence and then put viewers on under the act of 1842 to recover the cost of your adjainer's half."

ON A LONG TRAMP.—The Tyrone Herald, of Wednesday, has the following account of the arrival of a colored pedestrian, at that place, who is just finishing up a tramp between New York and Chicago:

"Edgar Allen Thomas, the young mulatto, who is tramping the railroad ties from New York to Chicago and return, arrived in Tyrone at 1:55 today. He spent last night in Altoona, leaving that city at 8 o'clock this morning.

Thomas's trip consists of two thousand five hundred miles, and the New York Athletic Club offers $2,500 to the person who makes the journey in one hundred ten days. The pedestrian is not allowed to ask for money, food, or clothing, and neither is he allowed to buy any. He is supposed to be cared for by the sporting people of the cities or towns he enters; he is also not allowed to carry money; these are the conditions given him by the Athletic Club, and if he violates any of them the money will not be given him. He must tramp railroad ties the entire journey.

He started from New York on April 17th, walking to Chicago by way of Washington and Cincinnati. On June 10th he arrived in the Windy city and remained there nine weeks, leaving over the Pennsylvania Railroad on August 15th on his return. Thus far he has lost two weeks through sickness. He has been treated royally in some cities and at his reception at Chicago and Pittsburg he says he forgot himself and thought he was king of the Sandwich Islands, on account of the courtesies shown him at those places. He left Pittsburg ten days ago.

He carries a little memorandum book with him, and every signal tower and station he arrives at he has the operator and agent write the name of the place, time and date at which he arrived, which is done in order to show the Athletic club he has been doing things on the square. After he arrives in New York he intends writing a book describing his journey. He carries with him newspapers containing items published concerning his arrival at many places, and he intends mentioning them in his book."

OF INTEREST TO RASPBERRY GROWERS.—The newspaper bulletins which the Pennsylvania State College Experiment Station send out, giving the readers of State papers an idea of the work that is going on in the laboratories at the institution, are of growing interest to our readers and we take pleasure in publishing the latest issue, which deals with culture and productiveness of the various varieties of raspberries.

The following is the report of the Horticulturist of the Station, Mr. George C. Butz, upon the seasons result with raspberries.

It is an easy matter to secure enough raspberries for home use from a few plants, little regard being paid to the selection of variety or location of the bushes in the garden. He who grows for the market, however, will profit by a little attention to the kinds of berries he produces. In color he may have yellow, red, purple and black, and in Pennsylvania he will find that none of them will require winter protection. For yellow, the Caroline and Brinkle Orange are very profitable berries. For red, the Marlboro, Cuthbert and Rancocas. For purple, Shaffer's Colossal, and for black the Souhegan, Mammoth Cluster and Ohio. These are all well tested varieties which can be recommended for productiveness, covering a period from June 20 to August 1, with profitable pickings. New varieties appear each year and demand some attention from berry growers. Among these, the following have been tested at this station.

Ada. The plant is strong, with a whitish green thorny stalk and bristly hairs on the fruit stems, the berry is not large although the several drupes are large making the berry rather soft, it is reddish black in color and slightly acid in taste. One season is not enough to determine productiveness, but the berry itself has little to recommend this variety.

Brackets's 101. A very vigorous plant with thorny stems, foliage slightly attacked by rust. The berry is very large, in fact the largest black cap in our garden, the several drupes are large with a rather firm substance that is sweet and possessed of a good flavor. Another year is necessary to determine its earliness and productiveness.

Columbian. The plants and berries of this variety resemble Shaffer's Colossal. These two are of a type very different from the other raspberries. Columbian is described by its originator, Mr. J. T. Thompson, of Oneida, N. Y., as a seedling of the Cuthbert grown near the Gregg and therefore believed to be a cross between the black and red raspberries. It is a prolific bearer and a most vigorous grower; the canes this second year from planting are erect and from 6 to 8 feet high, the berries are very large, purple and in total yield there was nearly twice the weight of berries from the best red or black variety.

Older. The plants are vigorous with light purple thorny stalks. The berries are very large, round, and in color range from purple to black. They are quite soft, slightly acid and in flavor cannot be considered excellent. It ripens late and finishes early. Nothing can be said of its bearing qualities at this writing.

Smith's Prolific. Stout canes are produced by this plant and its fruit is borne in large clusters. The berries are very fine, being of medium size, made up of small drupes which are very black and sweet possessing a good flavor. When the plants have made a good stand they should produce a large yield of fruit, which another season might prove to be.

Thompson's Early Prolific. The principal merit claimed for this variety is its earliness which was not marked in this its first fruiting season with us. Pickings were made continuously until August 1. The berries are very large, light red in color, with the prevailing flavor of the red berries. Other new varieties on trial have not fruited sufficiently to merit notices.

In Memoriam.

Professor Josiah Jackson died, somewhat suddenly and after a comparatively brief illness, at Chester, Pa., Oct. 16th, 1893.

We, the faculty of the Pennsylvania State College, realize that there has gone from among us a man whose strong individuality was a force in the growth of the college; whose warm, genial sympathies rendered his friendship a peculiar treasure to his care who, during long years of experience as a teacher, had endeared himself to the hearts of a large circle of students.

We shall miss him in the management of the college, from our social circles, but, more than all else, from our hearts.

While, in this sudden removal from earth of our beloved co-laborer and friend, we bow with loving submission to the Divine Will; we share in the bereavement which has so suddenly come upon the household, and extend to the afflicted wife and children our deepest sympathy, commending them to His care who has said, "I will not leave you comfortless, I will come to you." Pine Grove Mentions.

Master George, son of John Fortney, is carrying one of his arms in a shingle from a dislocated elbow, caused from a fall while on a chestnut hunt.

Rev. C. T. Atkins and family are spending their four week's vacation among relations in southern Penna., and Maryland, where the WATCHMAN wishes them a pleasant visit.

Grandmother Sheffer, one of our oldest residents, has just returned from a prolonged visit to the Fair city, much improved in health and not sick as was reported some days ago.

Our amiable friends are threatening vengeance on the long eared canines that are daily making the mountains hideous with their "longues" after the feet. Owners had better look a "leedle" out and shorten the chain on hounds that prolong the chase for days.

On last Tuesday morning Mrs. Wm. Musser, of our town, was carried from their apple orchard having received serious injuries from a fall from a ladder that gave way. It was at first thought one of her limbs was broken, but happily it proved to be a severe fracture with which she is getting along nicely.

J. M. Musser, a former Centre cottontail, is visiting his aged mother, on Main street. Mr. Musser has a reputation as a builder and architect in the northern part of the Sucker state. He says the WATCHMAN is a welcome visitor out there, as many of their people are particularly interested in Centre county folk.

Dr. Ward, of Bellefonte, spent Sunday in our town greeting old timers, besides casting a weather eye about for "mine frow", who evidently took the other end of the road, and as our town is cut off from the outside world from telephone communication the doctor just had to sit and wait for the wife who never came, but went home another way.

Rev. D. Y. Brouse and family are pleasantly spending a week's vacation among their many friends here. On Sunday evening last the reverend very ably filled the M. E. pulpit and in his usual eloquent style held his hearers spell-bound. He is always received with large audiences who gladly greet him and wish him God's speed in the service of the master.

On last Monday, while A. S. Walker, was viewing the passing train at Lemont his team of horses took fright and suddenly turned the corner, in fact several corners were made and several bridges crossed, making the first mile on Nancy Hanks time, before Mr. Walker realized what had happened. Fortunately but little damage was done. However it would be better to watch a fractious team in front instead of in the rear.

The following letters remain uncalled for in the Bellefonte P. O. Oct. 16, 1893. S. Grafton Bibby, Cal. Hathson, C. O. Brinkerhoff, Mrs. Annie King, Agnes Schenck, Harry Lucas, Herbert Hale, Edie Hanley, Nancy J. W. Brouse.
