Democratic Watchman

Bellefonte, Pa., Nov. 3, 1893.

The sermon which Lady Henry Somerset preached before the Woman's Christian Temperance union on last Sunday was a fair sample of the new spirit that is rapidly taking possession of the church. We have called it a new spirit, but in truth it is a revival of the original principle which was the distinct characteristic of the primitive church and which was the secret of its wonderful success, viewing it from a human standpoint. Learned discussion of abstract theological problems have no longer any charm for the multitude, and the church that would win the confidence of the people must get down among them. The chances are they will not enter its stately temple, and if they are to be reached it must march out of its entrenchments and camp among them. It must realize that it has a mission to the bodies of men as well as to their spirits and that the best way to fit them for heaven is to fit them for the earth which is their present dwelling place. There are modern churches whose officials regard their houses of worship much as the fine lady regards her parlor, more for ornament than use; simply a show room, by no means to be opened to the sunlight and the air, and only to be used by the family on extraordinary occasions. They think more of the wear of their carpets than of the value of men's souls and protect the holding of socialists lest damage be done to the perishable furnishings. They instruct their sexton, in the interest of economy to permit no lingering after the close of a service, but to extinguish the gas as soon as possible. And the more the "church" is shut up and deserted the better they are pleased, for when it is not in use there is little danger that it will be injured by tramping feet or careless hands. A church administered on such principles has no place in this age; it must either get more heart or decay, and we are glad of it, for such a travesty upon the religion taught by the Carpenter of Nazareth is a sham or a fraud, doing more to bring Christianity into contempt than all the atheists who ever lived. The true church is not a select company of respectable people who sit comfortably in their pews for two or three hours a week listening to a pretty little essay, and who feel that it is the proper thing to profess religion, but vulgar to feel any vital concern for the lower classes who are on the outside. It is a company of earnest men and women, possessed by the spirit of Him who sought not to please Himself, and just as eager as He was to do good to others. Their religion is not a selfish thing, chiefly concerned about their individual salvation—they are so absorbed in the task of helping others into better ways and a nobler life that they seldom think of themselves. The building in which they worship may have cost much money, but it is for use, not for show, and they keep it open as much as possible, encourage sociability among those who attend the services, urge them to tarry awhile, and contemplate the wear and tear of the furnishings without worry, since the people are enjoying themselves.

The Thrifty Japanese.

What is the reason that Japan has no poverty problem? One reason is probably to be found in the land system, which has given to every worker a holding and encouraged him to supply his wants by his own labor. There is, too, in Japan a curious absence of ostentatious luxury. The habits of living are in all classes much the same, and the rich do not outshine the poor by carriages, palaces and jewelry. The rich spend their money on curios, which, if these are costly, is limited, and the most popular agitation is against the big European houses which ministers build for themselves. Wealth is thus not absorbed and is more ready for investment in remunerative labor. The last reason which occurs to the mind of a traveler with comparatively few opportunities for forming opinions is the equality of manners in all classes. Rich and poor are alike courteous. It is not possible to distinguish employer from laborer by their behavior. All are clean; all are easy; all are restrained. The governor lets his child go to the common school and sit next to the child of the casual laborer, certain that his child will pick no bad manners and get no contamination in thought or in person. This equality enables rich and poor to meet as friends, and gifts can pass without degradation. The rich nobles in the country, just as the university men with whom we meet in Tokio, are thus able to give to those whom they know to be in need, and friendship becomes the channel of charity. The question is, Will this survive the introduction of the industrial system? It is possible that some of it may and that Japan may teach the west how to deal with the poor.

APPLE PUDDING.—Soak half a cup of fine bread crumbs in one cup of milk or cream; cream two teaspoon of butter with three quarters of a cup of sugar and beat into this the yolks of five eggs. Put into it the soaked bread crumbs and stir until smooth and light; put in one ounce of finely shredded citron, a teaspoonful of nutmeg and a dozen cloves. Butter a pudding dish of five eggs. Butter a pudding dish and pare, core and slice eight large apples. Put them in the dish first, sprinkling with sugar and cinnamon. Pour the custard you have prepared over them and bake, three-quarters of an hour. Sift powdered sugar over the top and serve cold.

There was a young girl in the choir

Whose voice rose high and clear, Till it reached such a height As it was clear out of sight, And they found it next day in the spoor.

For and About Women.

The fin de siecle female was on hand at the Cherokee strip rush. Mrs. Jenny Wheeler staked the first claim, and 14-year old Cora Wiley secured a site on which she will open a hotel.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe received the very magnificent sum of $5 for the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" from the publishers of the Atlantic, and $10 for "Our Orders."

Hats grow smaller, and are medium of brim and flat of crown. Mercury-wings spring from each side in iridescent color, or a gaudy butterfly spreads his wings above velvet rosettes, posed equally one on each side for the dual idea reigns still. But some carriage hats of felt are large, and flare off the face in brims notched into battlements faced with guipure. Plumes nod above. With such confections as these last go for visiting gowns bright colored silks, overlaid with broche in black patterns, and trimmed with pendants of jet, and fringed ruffles of silk pastementeries. And all these things properly mingled and rightly worn seemed to have their affinity with the season.

A lady never extends her hand to a man whose acquaintance she is making. She may or may not shake hands with a lady who is introduced, but she must not give her hand to a strange man. A low bow is the elegant form of salutation. A cultured woman will not shake hands with any man, no matter how long she is acquainted with him. A gentleman never extends his hands to a lady first. To do so would be presumptuous and subject him to a snubbing. A man shows his breeding the way he eats his dinner, a woman shows her breeding the way she receives people.

The word "dress" is less and less used, and, instead, one hears nowadays, either the old English expression, "frook," or the commoner, "gown." To call a part of one's dress by the name of the whole is reprehensible as the still more antiquated appellation of "meat" fish, flesh, or fowl, when, in fact, the entire display of food is meat, and not one particular portion of it.

A rather characterless, fair-faced blonde, with light eyes and lashes, will bloom out into positive beauty if she wears a becoming color, while she remains insipid in others. Dark blue is, par excellence, the shade for this class of girls. It is surprising that they do not always recognize the fact and refuse to wear anything else. It effects a perfect transformation in the wearer.

Mrs. Grant, widow of General Grant, has decided to spend the winter of 1893-4 in her permanent home. She has spent some time recently searching for a suitable house, but thus far has not succeeded in finding one.

A "going-away" gown was a smart confection of navy blue serge flannel, French trimmed sparingly with a dark blue and white shepherd's plaid ribbon velvet, enframed on one side with a narrow line of astrakhan and on the other by a narrow gimp of black silk cord. This formed the trimming around the hem of the skirt, and outlined and braced a neat little wrap of the dark blue stuff that was wadded and lined throughout with amber twilled mervellux, the checked velvet and black fur forming a high rolling collar. The tightly fitting bodice of this gown fastens under the left arm, and is simply trimmed on the bust, back and upper portion of the sleeves with a large ruff of black military braid. The high collar was of checked velvet and black fur. With this she wore (for she was married this week) a kind of sailor hat of black felt, with a broad band of velvet passed through a long, shallow, curved buckle of steel, the ends of velvet being arranged like wings on either side of the crown.

Wool skirts strictly tailor-made, whose liberal trimming is stitched bands, depend for their style on being cut rather full at bottom, to hang in round folds; a skirt to be ruffled should be somewhat narrower, that the ruffles may do their part in adding to the effect of width.

A new element looms onto the horizon in the form of the basque, which old form ignored some time ago shows itself now half ashamed of troubling a better order of things, as it should. It is as yet kindly hailed by those only who will have change, even at the cost of beauty. It came in guise of silk ruff, pendant from the belt, but has since smoothed its wrinkles out, and, some twelve or fourteen inches deep, is on wool gowns worn below, the bolero jacket and silk blouse. The idea has invaded also the little jacket itself, which has grown long enough to curve outwards at bottom into the hint of a basque, the back slightly and the front more deeply pointed; by this it has lost the delicious bravo of the bolero and taken on the look of the garcon, to the elevation of neither its sentiment nor its beauty. This gives a lengthened and pointed waist effect, and is the latest creation for the costume of serge.

A recent model is of chestnut brown. On the skirt is a wide flounce of green velvet, cut in deep vandykes on its upper edge, which gives to the skirt the look of the flower, whose calyx begins at the waist. The round bodice has a belt, and a stock collar of green velvet, and a cape of velvet overlaid with a shorter cape of velvet, over which falls a flowing square collar that gives to the velvet a more suggestion of the vandyking below.

A delightful hair dressing which cleanses the scalp like soap, and makes the hair smooth and glossy without a suggestion of grease is what is called "Lime Juice and Glycerine," and is sold by fashionable druggists at fashionable prices. In reality, neither lime juice nor glycerine enters into its composition. It consists simply of olive oil and lime water in the proportion of half a pint of oil to six ounces of lime water well shaken together and foaming a white cream.

A MILLION FRIENDS.—A friend in need is a friend indeed, and not less than one million people have found just such a friend in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds.—If you have never used this Great Cough Medicine, one trial will convince you that it has wonderful curative powers in all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at Parrish's Drug store. Large bottles 50c. and $1.00.

—If the good die young, why is it that there are 104 women centenarians in England and Wales to only 42 men? —New York Recorder.

THE BEST PLASTER.—Dampen a piece of flannel with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bind it on over the seat of pain. It is better than any plaster. When the lungs are sore such an application on the chest and another on the back, between the shoulder blades will often prevent pneumonia. There is nothing so good for a lame back or a pain in the side, a sore throat, can nearly always be cured in one night by applying a flannel bandage dampened with Pain Balm. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. Potts Green.

A boy stood on the burning deck, Unwisely, too, 'tis said, For, with the fast approaching flame, His elders quickly fled, So, many now in peril stand, Unmindful of their fate, Till, step by step, Grim Death comes on, And then, alas! too late! Far wiser, surely, would it seem, When his approach we see, With "Pierce's Pellets" well in hand To vanquish old "G. D."

Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have remarkable power to correct all physical derangements, thus warding off disease that would surely follow. Purely vegetable, pleasant to take, perfectly harmless! With a little forethought, they'll be a present help in time of need—cheating the doctor and robbing the grave! As a Liver Pill, they are unequalled. Smallest, cheapest, easiest to take. One a dose as a laxative, three or four as a cathartic. "Tiny, sugar-coated granules, in vials; 25 cents."

—The making of chocolate is not easy. One's own taste must be the guide in regard to strength. Soften and smooth the chocolate with cold water in a jar on the range, pour in boiling water, then add milk, stirring constantly. Serve as soon as it boils. When each cup is filled with the chocolate, place two tablespoons of whipped cream on top.

—I have been a sufferer from catarrh for 20 years. I found immediate relief in the use of Ely's Cream Balm. Since using it I have not suffered a moment from headache, sore throat or loss of sleep, from which I previously suffered, caused by catarrh. I consider your Balm a valuable remedy.—R. G. Vassar, 56 Warren St., New York.

—Miss Jessie Ackerman, the second round world missionary and president of the Australian W. C. T. U., has completed her trip. It occupied four years, during which time she traversed over 100,000 miles.

—The plain truth is good enough for Hood's Sarsaparilla.—there is no need of embellishment or sensationalism. Simply what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story of its merit. If you have never realized its benefits a single bottle will convince you it is a good medicine.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action. Sold by all druggists. Price 25 cents.

Consequences.

Perhaps there is no better test for a man's intelligence and character than the way in which he accepts the consequences of his own actions. Indeed the actions themselves seldom afford so true a criterion, as they may be performed hastily or under strong impulse, while the consequences are endured or enjoyed at leisure, without any powerful influence to control the natural expression of feelings they engender. In one way it may seem that there is not much option about accepting consequences—that as they are inevitable, so to receive them is simply a destiny to which all must submit. Certainly nothing is more entirely beyond our power to alter or evade. We can neither prevent nor escape them. The action is in our power to do or to forbear; but, once done its consequences are no more to be resisted or controlled than the winds and the waves. Yet as the strong swimmer can breast the waves and the skillful captain can steer his vessel through neither can resist their force, so it is impossible to meet the consequences of our actions, though irrevocable in such a way that they may bear us to a harbor of safety.

—There are comparatively few names for other aggregations of abstract numbers beside the dozen and the score. Two things make a brace, a couple, a duet; 3, according to St. Paul, are a few; 13 make a baker's dozen. But taking concrete numbers we find plenty of such names. Fourteen pounds make a stone, 28 pounds a quarter; a clove of wool is 7 pounds; a tod is 28 pounds; a wey is 64 tods; a sack is 2 weys, and a last is 6 sacks.

—Last year the fleur de lis was seen everywhere in decoration, even extending to men's cravats and shirts and women's stockings. This year it is the Napoleonic wreath and knot the epidemic. It has been put upon the window-sills and doors of new houses, appears in upholstery and is also woven into some of the latest fabrics.

Medical.

PROFOUNDLY GRATEFUL

FOR HELP DERIVED FROM HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

Symptoms of Cancer Removed—Rheumatism Cured.

"I am profoundly impressed with the medical virtues of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was threatened with cancer, and disagreeable eruptions on my back and other places. Providentially I obtained a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and by the time it was gone, the bad symptoms had nearly all disappeared. I have used four bottles, and believe it has SAVED ME FROM PREMATURE DEATH. I am now almost 73 years of age and I work like a tiger. And I know that Hood's Sarsaparilla has had much to do with my vigor and strength. I recommended it to my wife, who had suffered so much with rheumatic troubles, as also with female weakness. In two years HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA CURES she has used about three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and to-day, and for the last six months, she seems like a new being." Rev. O. H.
