

The law firm of Beaver, Gephart & Dale, of this place, has dissolved partnership, Mr. J. W. Gephart having retired to devote his entire time to the interests of the Valentine Iron Co., and the new Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, of which he is general superintendent. Ex-Gov. Beaver and John M. Dale will continue the business under the firm name of Beaver & Dale.

Rev. G. E. Zehner pronounced the ceremony, last Thursday evening, that united Mr. Elmer C. Straub and Mrs. Alice Alexander Linn in marriage. The wedding took place at the home of the minister on Willowbank street and was the beginning of what will be a life of happiness. The groom is an industrious young shoe-maker and a son of William Straub, his bride being the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Alexander of this place.

The wills of three well known men of this county, lately deceased, were entered for probate in the Register's office last Friday. They were those of John H. Orvis, who left an estate valued at $100,000; John H. Odenkirk, of the Old Fort, whose entire estate was left to his widow, and John Homan, of Ferguson township, who left a farm to each one of his seven children, with an annual rental from each to his widow.

LAND FREE FOR MANUFACTURING SITES.—The first meeting of the Board of Trade that brought forth substantial inducements for prospective manufacturers was on last Tuesday night. Heretofore the Board has done nothing but advertise the exceptional advantages of this town as a center from which all kinds of manufactures can disseminate, but on Tuesday Mr. Andrew Brockerhoff appeared before the Board and stated that their estate was willing to give ground for the location of any industry that may come here to locate without cost. They own a lot of six acres just west of the borough limits which is located on the banks of spring creek and for which a deed will be given free to the first industry that is located on it.

Such offers are the only ones that will have a tendency to bring plants here. There must be some other inducement, more substantial than just the fact that Bellefonte has exceptional facilities. Just now negotiations are under way to have the Watsontown car works located here.

LEWIS AND CONNELLY, THE OLD TIME ROBBERS.—A report was in circulation on Monday that the hiding place where Lewis and Connelly concealed their money had been discovered in a cave at the head of Six-mile run, but that the air in the cave was so foul that it prevented search.

Lewis and Connelly were famous, or infamous, highwaymen who ravaged this country from Lewisport to Clarion in the early part of the century and were supposed to have enormous wealth concealed somewhere. One of the robbers was shot and killed at Sinnamahoning while holding up a stage coach. The other died in prison at Lock Haven. Ever since they were wiped out people have hunted diligently all over the Alleghenies for the place where they hid their ill-gotten gains. The last story is that before Lewis died he revealed to a friend their hiding place, which he designated as being in a cave at the head of Six-mile run. He told his friend to find the place, get the money ($62,000) and divide it with Lewis' sister. His friend searched diligently, but could not find the cave. When he did reveal the secret to Lewis' sister, who never told it until just before she died, which was lately, at Lock Haven. She told the story to a Lock Haven man, who, with a friend, came to Philipsburg and went to look for the cave, but being unacquainted with the locality they could not find it, and had to tell the story to some one else, and so it got out.

About twenty fellows, so we are told, went out on Monday and located what they believed to be the place. It is a cave in a rocky fastness known as the Wolf Rocks.

The cave is well known to hunters, but has never been explored fully on account of foul air. If you believe that Lewis' and Connelly's treasure is buried in its gloomy depths you had better go and help find it.—Philipsburg Ledger.

THE UNHEARD OF HAS TRANSPIRED.—At a phantom party, in Tyrone, last week eighteen young ladies actually kept quiet for four successive hours. They are not mutes and thus have made a record which will hardly be broken in history.

NEW PARTNERSHIPS IN LAW.—Within the last week several partnerships have been formed among the lawyers in this place. The first one announced was that between Gen. James A. Beaver and John M. Dale, the firm to be known as Beaver & Dale. This change was occasioned by the withdrawal of J. W. Kephart from the firm. Next came a partial change in the law firm of Orvis, Bower & Orvis, occasioned by the death of the late Hon. John H. Orvis, senior member of the firm. C. M. Bower and Ellis L. Orvis together will continue practicing under the firm name of Orvis, Bower & Orvis which has gained such a reputation all over the State.

The third and last co-partnership that was formed was that which now exists between Edward R. Chambers and James Alexander, under the firm name of Chambers & Alexander. The lawyers seem to be firm believers in the motto of Kentucky, "united we stand, divided we fall."

MARRIAGE.—Nov. 9, 1893, at the Evangelical parsonage, by Rev. G. E. Zehner, Mr. Elmer E. Straub and Mrs. Alice A. Linn, both of Bellefonte.

AMBITION.

M. V. THOMAS.

Onward, upward, onward, upward; And the people still press onward, While the years are gliding by.

Onward, upward, onward; 'Tis ambition that holds away; And its echoes are resounding, While the ages roll away.

Toiling onward, they are millions. One by one, they droop and die; Others, still, are pressing onward, While the years are gliding by.

Nations rising into power, Nations falling to decay. Time is ringing in the changes, While the ages roll away.

Hearts are thrilling to accomplish, Hands are ready to apply; And they rise and build and perish, While the years are gliding by.

Men may toil and plan forever, Men may build and build for aye, But the storms of changing eras Rise and sweep them all away.

Joy and gladness, wealth and honor, Fame and glory, man may try; But they pass and are forgotten, As the years are gliding by.

Like a drop in Time's great ocean Is what man can do or say. While the ages, like the billows, Rise and fall and roll away.

Major J. N. Everts on Tuesday of this week moved to Spruce Creek, to take charge of the Haslett hotel, where the Major intends to show his kindly disposition and genial hospitality to the travelling public. Mrs. Everts is an expert in the culinary department and the weary traveler will be able to satisfy the inner man at her inviting table.

On the evening of the 9th inst., Mr. Wm. Homan, son of John M. Homan, accompanied by the lady of his choice Miss Sallie Fry, of Centre Hall, presented themselves to Rev. C. T. Atkins, at the Lutheran parsonage at this place where the marriage service was solemnized in the presence of a few friends, after which the happy couple drove to the home of the groom's father, where refreshments awaited them.

And still they come just as the shades of night were falling on the 13th inst. The front door bell of Rev. Atkins was rung and upon answering it the Rev. was met by Mr. Clyde Detro and his best girl by his side in a matrimonial mood. Their wish was soon gratified by the Rev. in his pleasant and happy manner pronouncing them man and wife. The bride, Miss Alice, is the second daughter of J. M. Homan. For a time the newly married couple will spend their honeymoon at the hospitable home of Peter Louck. To the newly wedded folks the WATCHMAN joins in the congratulations with hopes that they will never regret the change they have made from single bliss, edness to married bliss.

It is our sad duty to note the death of one of our oldest citizens, Mr. John Cramer which occurred at his home near Pennsylvania Furnace on the 9th inst after a brief illness. The deceased was prostrated with a severe attack of quinsy and from the first there was little or no hope of his recovery entertained by his attending physician, Dr. Houser. Inexorable death coming all too soon, silently stole in upon him and called him from his family and neighbors, who held him in the highest esteem. His word was considered as good as his bond, he was the father of 12 children all, except one, of whom with his wife survive him. He was aged 63 years 2 months and 6 days; he was a member of the Reformed church. Interment was made at Pine Hill cemetery on the 11 inst., Revs. Black and Alkens officiating.
