Upward of four hundred were mortally wounded, but were still alive when the memorial left the viceroy, and the distress caused throughout Thibet by the shock is beyond exaggeration. Famine threatens the land and the cry for bread is to all creeds and to all people. The greatest misfortune of all, is to the minds of all Buddhists, that which has befallen their sacred headthe holy Shoolhak. He is among the missing from Lhassa, where the monastery of Kemis was, and the circumstances, although zealously guarded by the faithful for fear that knowledge of it might rend asunder the entire fabric of the ancient faith, is rapidly spreading through all the eastern lands where Buddhism is the religion of the masseso. The outcome is beyond calculation. The shrine is a heap of ruins and the holy one is missing from the earth. The Lama monasteries of Huelyuan and Kemis are situated in the heart of the civilized portion of Thibet and for ages the latter has been the seat of Buddhism proper. The monastery of Kemis was BUILDERS' and PLASTERS' SAND, before Christ. Its great gloomy pile, it was believed, would stand until the end

Her Brother's Death

A Curious Circumstanes Indicating Mental Telepathy. A curious circumstance that may be ooked upon as a confirmation of the doctrine of mental telepathy took place in New Orleans recently in a family of importance in the history of . the state. This family numbers among its members a lady and her twin brother, a young man who for the past two years has been in business in New Zealand, but who has been expected home on a visit to his sister. One evening lately the lady was sit-ting surrounded by friends, when all at once she gave a piercing cry, and, placing her hand to her side, tell fainting to the floor. On reviving, she declared that she had been suddenly stabbed just above the heart and under the left arm, indicating the spots. She was assured that she was laboring under the purest imagination, but was hard to convince that was the case, so plainly had she felt the knife enter the body. That night a little daughter was born to her, and the child was found to be marked on the places indicated by the mother as the wounds she had imagined The marks on the child looked as if they might be the cicatrix of old knife wounds. The next day a cablegram was received from friends of the twin brother in New Zealand informing his sister that he had been stabbed to death by a native in a quarrel, and the date given of the young man's death was that of the night when his sister had felt the pang of a knife entering her own body. She prevailed on her husband to inquire by cable where her brother's murderer had struck him, and to complete the coincidence, learned that he had been stabbed twice, once above the heart and again under the left arm. She is convinced that through her affinity as he received it.

Trend of Electricity.

Motors to Be Attached to Heavy Trucks and Drays in Germany.

A scheme is broached in Germany of employing electricity to move heavy trucks and drays. This is merely a development of the electric carriage idea, which has been successful in that country for several years. A small storage battery is placed in an ordinary phaeton, T-cart or brougham, the power is carried to the wheels and the speed regulated by the driver. Such a carriage has been seen a good deal about New York in the past few months, says a writer in the Sun. The scheme is entirely feasible and practicable, and experiments have been made toward adapting the system to heavy trucks The Government is interested in the experiment and Health Boards are enthusiastic over their subject, their claim for pleasure, but the general scheme of employing electricity for trucks and drays, provided the speed is limited, op-ens up a wonderful field for speculation Represent the best companies, and write policies in Mutual and Stock Companies at reasonable rates. Office in Furst's building, opp. the

Let it be proclaimed and declared to them that we want them to go back home where they came from. They have waved their abhorred banner in our faces, and they have deliberately made that demonstration as signifying a spirit of radical hostility to American ideas and American institutions. It is incumbent on us that we reply to this demonstration by ordering the red-banner-bearers out of our house. It is not right or decent for us to let these threatening insults and outrages pass by without notice. Dumb Luck.

I saw a case of luck awhile ago that nearly made me crazy. I was in a pool-room down in Baltimore, and I was playing close to the cushion. Nothing came my way, and I had but a few dollars between me and the touching of some friend for a stake. I saw a little with her brother she felt his death even | fellow come in there with a $2 bill and get out with $1,402 in cash. I wasn't next, and I didn't get a cent of it. Af-ter it was all over he told us his system, and it almost made me daity to think that any such fool scheme would go through.

"There were five races that afternoon, and he played them all. He parleyed his money, and $1,402 is what he pulled out. If he'd had a good sized roll when he started, he'd have broken the room sure, and every other room in the city. And what do you think his system was? You couldn't guess in a thousand years. He placed the seventh horse in every race. He started at the top and counted down to the seventh, and she won. Then in the next race there were but four horses, and he counted one, two, three, four and then started at the top again and counted five, six, seven. He some people have it to burn, and he was one of that kind. Not again in 67,000-000 years would that scheme work. I tried it for a week, and I know.

-Congressman Tom Johnson, whose recent tariff speech, printed in all the papers attracted such wide atten tion, is the son of a Kentuckian who was a colonel in the confederate army. The son rapidly grew rich through street railway patents and franchises and he is now financially interested in several important manufacturing enterprises. He became an unwilling convert to Henry George's land theory some years ago. Having read "Prog ress and Poverty," and being unable to meet in arguments to his own satisfaction, he turned over the book to his lawyer, and asked him as counsel to read it and render his opinion travers ing its argument.
