A Bit of Life in Libby.

Experiences of Emil Frey, who is now President of the Swiss Republic. Ten months after my capture the fate which they had escaped seemed in store for me. A northern court martial had condemned to death three confederate officers, Major Armeey, Captain Gordon and Lieutenant Davis. By order of Jefferson Davis, three of our officers were taken as hostages for the condemned, and the lot fell upon Major Robert Goff, of West Virginia; Lieutenant Manning, of Massachusetts, and myself. The commander of the Libby prison apprised us of the fact, and declared positively that if Armeey, Gordon and Davis should be hanged, no earthly power would save us from the same fate. Without further notice we were transferred to the cellar, and there confined to a dark cell, nine feet long by six and a half feet wide. This happened on May 3, 1864. I was then aged 25 years and 6 months, the oldest of the three. We had hitherto suffered almost unbearable hunger, but there now began, besides the agony of confinement, real starvation.

Our daily ration, which we received every day about noon, consisted of a little piece of cornbread, a morsel of rancid bacon, and six or seven spoonfuls of nigger beans or rice of the meanest quality. By strict order of the government, the total ration was not to exceed the weight of three quarters of a pound and two ounces. Very fortunately there were a number of rats in the cellar and they paid us a visit on the first night of our confinement. Friend Manning, who was a clever and imaginative man, proposed to hunt these horrid animals, which, especially at night, used to fight most fiercely. He constructed a trap, and we used our hair rotten bacon as a bait. The rat having been caught, it was my business to raise the cover until it showed its head, when the major had to set to work and belabor its head with a log until it was dead. Next morning the rats were cooked by the negro who had to clean our cell, and then we ate them. It required a dreadful hunger to conquer the disgust we had for these beasts.

To Protect the Seals.

Special Action Needed on the Behring Sea Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.--It is said at the state department that there is urgent need of speedy action by congress upon the bill recently submitted by Representative McCreary to give effect to the agreement reached by the arbitration in the Behring sea case. This bill prohibits sealing from May 1 to August 1 in all that part of the Pacific ocean north of a point on the coast of California and west to the one hundred and eighty-fifth meridian and running along the boundary line between the Russian and the United States possessions in the Arctic. Already the sealing vessels are fitting out and sailing on the Pacific coast so that they will be able to make disastrous inroads upon the seal herds as they follow the coast, making their way north to the Bering islands. While the modus vivendi will remain in operation it will apply only to Behring sea waters, and the killing by pelagic sealers will doubtless be severely felt. Moreover, unless the new law takes effect before May 1 it will be necessary for the naval vessels to serve notice on all sealing craft which may sail before its enactment before any seizures can be made.

A Famous Utterance Mistaken for Modern Profanity.

A party of juveniles and walking gentlemen, now engaged at elevating the stage in Broadway, supped heavily at Shanley's restaurant early Sunday morning, to the detriment of other patrons' conversation. At the beginning the party settled itself to a serious consideration of the more liquid portions of the repast, with the result that much jocular persiflage ensued. The proprietor walked unceasingly to and fro before the table with a main serious enough to quench the heavy villian in the last act. But it didn't quench the young men, and as the hours sped away toward dawn their witless badinage grew apace. At last one of them describing the supple of enthusiasm which had spread from one end of the Rialto to the other over his last "magnificent delineation" of something or other, gave voice to the historic alliteration, "Veni, vidi, vici." The roar which he emitted at the brilliancy of his own wit was still rumbling away in echoes when the proprietor, red as to face and emphatic in expression, strode swiftly to the table. "See here, my friends," he cried, "if you use language like that again you will all have to get out into the street!"

Hon. B. L. Hewitt III.

He is Now at the Bingham House, Philadelphia --His Left Arm and Leg are Paralyzed.

Hon. B. L. Hewitt, of Hollidaysburg, ex-speaker of the State House of Representatives, is lying seriously ill at the Bingham House, Philadelphia. He had been unwell for some time past, and after he finished his labors in the Jaekel-Caldwell case, he concluded to consult Dr. Pepper, of Philadelphia. In fact, he was unable to take part in the above named case at all, and so expressed himself to Judge Landis. Last Tuesday he left for Philadelphia accompanied by his son, Oliver. His condition became no better, and during the latter part of the week, he received a stroke. Dr. Pepper pronounced his illness muscular rheumatism. He has entirely lost the use of his left arm and leg, and, although suffering intense pain, he maintains consciousness.

He Obed Her.

One Time When Politeness Was Not Its Own Reward.

Most American women have had embarrassing experiences in social encounters. Perhaps none was ever more trying than the adventure of a lady noted in New York society for her coarseness and her savoir faire. One winter day she started on the train for Philadelphia, taking her seat in what she supposed was an ordinary parlor car. There was but one other occupant, a somewhat stout man, who sat with his back to her. Presently he lighted a cigar and began to smoke. The lady coughed and moved uneasily, but her hints had no effect. She said at last tartly: "You probably are a foreigner, sir and do not know that there is a smoking car attached to the train. Smoking is not permitted here." The man without replying threw his cigar out of the window. A few minutes later the conductor entered and stared at her in dismay. "How did you come here, madam?" he inquired. "Why, where am I?" "In General Grant's private car." The mortified lady's usual tact failed her here. She looked at the dumb, immovable figure and retreated without a word.

The Town Crier of Columbia, S. C.

"The strongest voice I ever heard," said Colonel Marshall, of Charleston, at the Laclede, "is that of the town crier of Columbia, S. C. Columbia is the only town in the United States that still keeps up the custom of having a town crier, and probably the largest in area that any one man's voice was expected to reach the uttermost boundaries of the town. The crier stands upon a high tower and calls the hours, '10 o'clock and all is well; '11 o'clock and all is well; '12 o'clock, fire--fire--fire.' The voice of the man now occupying that position can be heard anywhere within the city, and it is remarkable how quickly he sees and reports a fire or general disturbance. I was there once when at midnight he cried that a child was lost, and within five minutes it seemed as though half of the population was on the streets, ready to join in the search. It was finally found under a bed, where it had rolled and gone to sleep. When the crier dies the office will probably be abolished--they certainly cannot find another with such a voice."

What the Kirmess Is.

We have frequently been asked the meaning of the word Kirmess, which was produced in Altona, last week. This description of the word is as follows: "The Kirmess is a festival that originated among the Dutch. Quercy, because the Hollanders are at least to the popular idea, a nation of intensely practical nature. Their exquisite cleanliness, their level land, their windmills and tulips and cows and big breeches and methodical ways and thriftiness and wooden shoes are interesting and even picturesque, but still they are hardly a people one would think of as inventing and perpetuating a carnival of dancing--the Kirmess. But the fact remains that the Kirmess owes its being to the land of the Zuyder Zee. And how picturesque the Kirmess is, or rather was, for its glory in these days is subdued somewhat--why, only those who have seen the blue stockinged, white-capped frauclins and sturdy young Hollanders throw their earnest souls into their soles can thoroughly understand. The exact origin of the Kirmess seems to be doubtful, but authorities on the subject pretty well agree that it had its conception in the annual or semi-annual 'hiring fairs' that are even now a feature of Hollandish rural life."--Tyrone Times.

O'Shea's Bankruptcy.

LONDON.--Details of the bankruptcy of Captain O'Shea, formerly the husband of the lady who married the late Charles Stewart Parnell, after having obtained a divorce from the captain, have been issued. It appears that until 1892 Captain O'Shea had an income of £2,000 and that in 1893 his income was only £700. During the last four years, according to the statement made Captain O'Shea has been involved in constant litigation, and he attributes his insolvency to this cause. Captain O'Shea's liabilities are £18,000, and he offers 7s. 6d. in the pound. The receiver advises the creditors to accept this offer.

Kept His Dying Wife's Request.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 24.--Waldo Robinson, who married a cousin of President Cleveland some years ago and went to Battle Creek, Mich., to live, was married to-day to Miss Emma Brown, of this city. Robinson and his family now live in Des Moines, Ia. When the first Mrs. Robinson was on her death bed she wrote to Miss Brown, who was an intimate friend, urging her to become a mother to her children by marrying her husband when he should be a widower. Before dying she made her husband promise to grant her wish regarding his marriage to her friend, Miss Brown.

No maiden should attempt passing this boundary-line without the aid and assurance of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Daniel Huntington has completed a portrait of the late Mrs. Harrison for the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution of which Mrs. Harrison was first president. It will be hung in the White House. It represents the late mistress of the Executive mansion standing close to an open doorway, with a glimpse of the Potomac beyond.

The strongest recommendation that any article can have is the endorsement of the mothers of the town. When the mothers recommend it you may know that the article has more than ordinary merit. Here is what the Centerville, South Dakota, Citizen, says editorially of an article sold in their town: "From personal experience we can say that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has broken up bad colds for our children. We are acquainted with many mothers in Centerville who would not be without it in the house for a good many times its cost, and are recommending it every day." 50 cent bottles for sale by F. Henry Watterson's fondness for travel grows with his years. He lectures almost as much in summer as in winter, and is consequently in one city one day and in another the next. He writes his editorials in hotels and railroad trains and sends them down to Louisville by wire or mail, as the urgency of the subject requires.

A Boy's Experience.--"A few months ago my face and neck were covered with boils and carbuncles and I had a tired feeling. I tried several different kinds of medicines but they had no effect until I got Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken the second bottle the boils began to heal and the tired feeling went away." Lorenzo Grinnell, Columbia Cross Roads, Pa. Hood's Pills are purely vegetable.

Mrs. George W. Childs is a slender little woman, small featured, dark complexioned, and of an exceedingly nervous temperament. This finds expression in the anxious solicitude with which she regards the most trifling details of the management of her household affairs. Although provided with a competent staff of servants, Mrs. Childs insists upon a general personal supervision of everything.

Street-car drivers and others who are constantly exposed to all kinds of weather, and cannot find time to lay by should ever bear in mind this plain fact that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup cures coughs and colds. It is unequalled.

Business Men, from close application and too little exercise, are especially liable to constipation--clogging up nature's great sewers--producing headache, biliousness, sluggish circulation and general derangements of the vital organs. A regular movement of the bowels is indispensable to perfect health; to neglect, is to imperil it! If constipated, Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure you. No interference with business. Very modest expense. Mild in action, yet powerful in cleansing regulating the stomach, liver and bowels, curing constipation, headache and kindred ailments.

SAVED HER LIFE

SURGICAL OPERATIONS AND BEST MEDICAL TREATMENT FOLLOWS. An Almost Miraculous Cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:" "Beginning in February, '92, I was very sick for two months. Slowly I got better but was confined to my bed. A physician said I had a PELVIC ABSCESS IN MY SIDE. After an operation I did not improve, the abscess continuing to discharge even more freely than before. In two months time three operations were performed and tubes inserted to carry off the impurities, but all in vain. Finally it was decided the my life depended upon another operation and that I must be removed to the hospital. About three weeks previous to this I had noticed an advertisement in the Daily News of a case where Hood's Sarsaparilla had cured a boy somewhat similarly afflicted in Trenton, N. J., and I decided to give it a trial. When the time decided upon for me to go to the hospital arrived I had been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla about two weeks.

I WAS GETTING BETTER and the abscess had already begun to discharge less freely. I felt stronger and had a terrible appetite. Previous to this I had given up to die. When I had taken the second bottle I was able to sit up and accordingly I was not taken to the hospital and the final operation was deferred. Now I have taken six bottles and the abscess has entirely healed. I am well and go every where. My friends think it a miracle to have me restored to health again so healthy and even younger in looks than before my sickness.

I FEEL BETTER THAN EVER I did in my life and weigh over 120 pounds, the heaviest in my life. I do a big day's work and am gaining in strength every day. My mother worried and worked herself almost sick in caring for me. She has since taken Hood's Sarsaparilla and it has done her much good. We praise Hood's Sarsaparilla to everybody, for I KNOW IT SAVED MY LIFE I am 27 years old and a stranger to look at me now would not think I ever had a day's sickness. Even the doctors are surprised at the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla in my case. Mother and myself continue to take the medicine regularly and we earnestly recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. MOLLIE WENTZ, 568 West Eighteenth Street, Chicago, Illinois. COBOLRATES THE ABOVE.

"C. L. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:" "Dear Sirs--I am a drug clerk and have sold Mrs. Mollie Wentz many bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and can certify that she was cured by the use of it." F. C. BILLERBECK, 530 West Eighteenth Street Chicago.
