The Family Physician.

This is such a day of specialties that comparatively few can ever enter into the dear old relation that existed formerly between physician and family. Heart secrets and sufferings that the minister could not extract from burdened souls were poured into the trustworthy ear of the good doctor, who ministered to soul quite as much as to body. His breast was the repository of every man, woman and child in the parish who needed his confidence; and to no other human being did he ever betray these confidences. When such a man enters the sick room the burden of anxiety falls from the mother's heart; her child is safe so long as he is there. It seems as though he had power to banish the death angel; or, if indeed that sad massenger must come. the physician becomes the sympathetic friend who gives strength to bear

There is no man in the community who has more love and respect than the well-known physician. As a rule physicians are more permanent residents than ministers, since short pastorates are future? When the great men die, we ask, where are they who are to be the great men of the days to come? And tell th' toime it comes out an' says so, when we see the family doctor going his rounds, faithful, generous, devoted, and daily growing more wise, threading his way through crowded streets that were pasture-lands when he began his practice forty years ago, we ask with a pang at our hearts. Who can ever take the place of the beloved physician? Long may be be spared! And may many of the young men who are now seeking that profession for "what there is in it," find that the noblest thing in it is the opportunity that it gives for devotion and selfsacrifice, for winning love and honor, and for saving men heart and soul as well as body. No profession requires more of a man,—fidelity, wisdom, patience, hard work sleepless nights, weary days; but no profession brings richer rewards or sweeter benedictions .- Christian Regis-

Kansas Sunflowers.

How They Grow and Their Usefulness in Paper

Making. The principal "sunflower" of Kansas is Helianthus annuus, a plant that grows wild and native all over the 'great plain" from British America to central Texas. It has been here from time immemorial. The Mormon story is probably a beautiful figment of the brain. Botanically there is no difference between our sunflower and that of the gardens of the East: vet there is considerable difference which you can detect at sight on acquaintance. judge of wh

it. Experience may possibly develop something useful. Farmers do not need to plant it. It grows profusely in 'gumbo' lands where scarce anything else will grow. Gumbo soil is a dense black alluvium, with less than 25 per cent. of sand, flat, covered with water in early Spring, too wet and sticky to plow; and baked hard and cracked in Summer, too hard and tenacious to plow. Such lands (and waters) kill grasses largely, but the sunflower seeds are covered just deep enough at the right time for germination. Cockle burs (Xanthium strumarium) may also grow freely there : but the sunflower soon overshadows them and eventually kills them out. The discovery that paper may be made of sunflowers is an important one; but one should not be carried away with is said to be very nutritious. Corn is that idea alone. We have many valua- ground by hand, the meal is then parchble fibrous plants here, chief among which may be mentioned Abutilon avicennae, which grows here eight or ten feet high; Yucca augusttifolia, Callirrhoe involucrata, etc., all of which you know. These are all rank weeds.

This sunflower very seldom has only one head to a stem. No matter how close they grow they are usually branched and have, say, twenty or more heads. One plant in my back yard last year, under cultivation, had 357 heads. nearly all a little more than two inches in diameter. ## A Joke on Neal Dow.

A good story is told at the expense of If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honor able, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We fit you out with something that is new, solid, and sure. A book brimful of advice is free to all. Help yourself by writing for it to-day—not morrow.

A good story is told at the expense of this eminent apostle of temperance by Mr. Payson Tucker, a prominent eitizen of Portland, Maine. These gentlemen lived in adjoining houses, and one winter's day when the sidewalks were slippery Mr. Tucker saw General Dow nearing home, and occasionally helping himself over the iciest places by clutch-light the pickets of the fences which inclosed the houses along his route. Suddenly the old gentleman's feet shot out from under him, and before he could prevent a fall be lay flat upon the snow and ice. Mr. Tucker rushed to his assistance and helped him to his teet with tender care. Then, having satisfied himself that he was not seriously hurt, Mr. Tucker said earnestly, but quietly, Mr. Tucker said earnestly, but quietly, lish metropolis. as though for fear some-one might over-hear: "Now, general, don't be alarmed I am sure nobody else has seen you. I'll get you into the house all right and no one will be the wiser for it." General Dow attempted to make a remark at this point but Mr. Tucker interrupted. "Not a bit of it general," he said, "I won't even tell Mrs. Tucker. Don't you worry about it at all. Mum's the word with me." All the same General Dow's long life and excellent health are one of the best temperance arguments ever made.

Out in the South Side a young man was suffering from a swollen jaw. His landlady had applied various remedies without much snccess, and finally she said: "I think you will have to get a TT IS NOT couple of leeches."

"Where can I get them ?" "At a drug store."

"Will two be enough ?" "Yes, and you want both of them at once. In three or four hours that swelling will go down."

The young man went to the nearest drug store and there purchased two leeches. He returned to his room, studied the flat, blackish, oblong things with some distrust, and then boldly washed them down with a big glass of water. In a few minutes the landlady came around.

"Where are the leeches?" she asked.

"I took them." "Took them! Swallowed them?" "Why, yes; what's the matter?"
"They'll eat you up. Don't you feel anything? Run for the doctor!" The doctor came. The young man
