Where Is Defaulter Gardner?

The Aloona Tribune of Thursday morning contains the following, and the latest, about the defaulter Gardner:

Where is Harry A. Gardner? This is a question asked regularly every day but as yet no one authentically an-The defaulting cashier of the swers it. Second National bank seems to have fallen off the earth between two days so far as any positive information concerning his whereabouts is concerned. Disappearing he has left in his wake a surviving wife, a self-murder which would not have occurred but for his criminal actions, and a host of morbidminded individuals who catch at straws in the same way in which, from all appearances, the absent cashier caught at bank notes.

The latest intelligence as to the whereabouts of Gardner is to the effect that he was seen in Philadelphia yesterday morning. This news was contained in a telegram received here during the day and in which the sender was positive as to the identity of the man. One theory advanced in this connection is that the woman who has figured in the | be successful. case was ill, and that Gardner was only holding over under the hope that she would recover. It is generally supposed that she is sick in Philadelphia.

On the heels of this telegram there comes one from Pittsburgh by United Press, which contains the following long range information :

"Harry A. Gardner, the defaulting cashier of the Second National bank of Altoona, is en route for China or Japan, and he has with him the sum of $100,-000 in bank-notes of large and small denominations." So spoke Samuel B. Griffith, assistant district attorney, when asked to day regarding the truth of a rumor that Gaadner had been in this city to-day. "Gardner was in Portland, Ore., a few days ago," said Mr. Griffith, "and he has likely left the country by this time."

"A week ago last Monday Gardner learned that Bank Examiner Miller was going to investigate his accounts. Gardner at once began preparations for a flight and left that afternoon, taking every dollar of the bank's money he could carry. The capital stock of the week. bank is $100,000 and the defalcation is in excess of that sum."

A Kansas City Pamphlet Cites the Railroad Strike as a Sure Sign.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 22.-A small pamphlet entitled "What Do These Things Mean ?" is being freely distributed among the homes, particularly of workingmen, about town. It is interesting, inasmuch as it attempts to prove that the end of the world is at hand and that the wonderful things told in the Book of Revelations are about to come to pass. The recent railroad strike is declared to be the last sign of prophecy. This last sign, it declares, is distress with per-Nations have been perplexed before, and likewise have been distressed, but this is the first time, it is asserted, that both calamities have

When Cashier Gardner disappeared early last week and it became evident that he had stolen a large sum from the Second National, Mr. Miller as the government examiner had just reached that institution in the course of his regular examinations of national banks in this district. He at once assumed charge of affairs at the Second National and closed its doors until a thorough examination should be made. It is said that Mr. Miller had just completed his inquiry and had dispatched his reports to the treasury department at Washington, awaiting the reply therefrom before he would order the bank's doors reopened. The only explanation of his terrible suicide that he was led to the act because on completing his examination he feared that he would be censured by the government for not having discovered Cashier Gardner's crooked operations long ago. It is said that the books and papers show Gardner's wrong doings had extended over a long time, and Examiner Miller was doubtless driven to desperation when he found how he had been deceived.

The suicide did not speak to Mr. Levan before committing the deed, nor did he leave any written explanation of it. He did, however, write two letters, these letters when found may explainthe cause of his deed.

Ever since the opening of the examination Mr. Miller has worked hard. The bank clerks told him they could not stand the work much longer. At times he worked until 12:40 o'clock in the morning, beginning operations again at 5 o'clock. At no time did he seem to be specially worried about anything, but all along his nervousness showed the effects of the strain upon him.

Miller was single and aged 42 years. He had been bank examiner of this circuit for about four years and had a reputation for honesty and hard work. His home was at Mercer, Pa., where he was cashier of the First National Bank previous to becoming examiner.

For the WATCHMAN. DO YOU REMEMBER?

M. V. THOMAS. Oh! Do you remember the day? Meade, When we walked beside the sea; And the waves were kissed by the sunlight, What thoughts came to you and me ?

How we walked on the beach and gathered The shells, that the waves had thrown Far up on the sands of the seashore, Until weary, with gathering we'd grown ?

You said there were none quite perfect, Something was lacking in each. They were tossed by the waves, and broken Before they found rest on the beach.

I have often thought of your words, Meade And the thought has come to me-How rarely we find perfection, in Our journey over Life's sea!

Ah! No, there is none quite perfect, Some blemish in each, we see. The bark, that is tossed by the billows, Comes not unscathed from the ses.

We, like the shells that we gathered, Are tossed on the shores of life's sea. Some are all mangled and broken : But none, from grave faults, are quite free.
