Paints.

PAINT CRACKS.—It often costs more to prepare a house for repainting than has been painted in the first place with cheap ready-mixed paints, than it would to have painted it twice with strictly pure white lead, ground in pure linseed oil.

STRICTLY PURE WHITE LEAD

forms a permanent base for repainting and never has to be turned or scraped off on account of scaling or cracking. It is always smooth and clean. To be sure of getting strictly pure white lead, purchase any of the following brands:

"ARMSTRONG & McKELVY,"
"BEYMER-BAUMAN,"
"DAVIS CHAMBERS,"
"FAHNESTOCK."

For Colours—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-penny keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood.

Send us a postal card and get our book on painting and color-card, free; we will probably save you a good many dollars.

The Red Men Sat Down.

Then They Arose and Departed, for the Iron Rails Beneath Them Were Hot.

"For real hot weather stories you want to go to a hot weather country," says W. F. White, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe railroad. "Now, you can find hot weather that is hot weather in New Mexico and Arizona. It's one thing to go through that country now on a train which carries the conveniences for keeping cool, but it was quite another thing when the railroad was being built and there was nothing between you and the sun but alkali dust.

"The Atchison road reached Deming, N. M., in 1881, and it was a hot summer. It has been hot right along in that steady, energetic fashion that would make a man wish for an hour in a Bessemer steel mill to cool off. The first construction train pulled into Deming on a day that was so scorching as to stand out even among those other blistering days. The train was made up of a long line of flat cars, and along the centre of the cars ran a pile of steel rails a foot high. The rails had been in the full glare of an ardent blinding sun until they were about as hot as when they came through the rolls at the mill.

"When the train came into Deming it was, of course, an object of great interest, and no one was more interested in it than a lot of Apache Indians. They were peaceful enough, and filled with curiosity and were quick to assert the birthright of the American Indian to ride free on a railroad train. The conductor in charge was something of a joker and saw an opportunity for some fun. He urged the Indians all to climb up on the flat cars and have a ride. The engineer was in the scheme, and as soon as the Indians were up on the cars, he backed his engine with a jerk.

"They could ride a bucking pony under any condition of unsteadiness, but this motion was new to them and the entire party sat down on the rails. Now, you must remember the summer costume of an Apache can be cut out of a pocket handkerchief with cloth to spare. Well, my idea of Indian stoicism was shattered. There were shrieks that added new notes to the regulation war whoop, and the Apaches left that train and started off across the hot sands in a way that would have turned us all gray if they had been coming toward us instead of running away. They undoubtedly remember that as the hottest day they ever knew."

A Treacherous Memory.

An Absent-minded Man Who Sometimes Forgets His Own Name.

A day or two ago the most forgetful man in Chatham went into Sam Kelly's grocery, and when he stepped up to the counter he looked around and scratched his head in a most perplexed way and said:

"Sam, I came in for something, and for the life of me I cannot remember what it is."

"Perhaps it is molasses?" said Sam.

"No," replied the forgetful man; "it cannot be molasses, I am sure, because I didn't bring a jug with me."

"Is it a bottle of Worcestershire sauce?"

"No, because we never use anything in that line but catsup."

"Is it beef extract?"

"No. I'm pretty sure it isn't that."

"It may be extract of vanilla."

"No; it isn't extract of anything. By gracious! It makes me mad to think that I cannot remember a thing five minutes. Now, what in the world have I come in for anyhow?"

"Are you sure it isn't French mustard you want?"

"Positive, because I kept repeating the name of the thing all the way up the road, and it didn't slip my mind until I attempted to ask for it. I hate to go back home to find out what it is for fear of being laughed at. I know it isn't canned soup or mixed pickles or a broom."

"Is it a package of split peas for soup?"

"No; it is not."

"Is it a jar of pickled walnuts or a box of sardines?"

"Neither of them."

"Is it a loaf of bread?"

"That's it, Sam; that's it. A loaf of bread. I knew we'd hit it before long. This poor memory of mine is so poor that sometimes I forget what my name is and have to go and look in the family Bible to find it."

And he departed, smiling, with the bread.

Money Worn by Circulation.

A number of patriotic sons of Erin were seated around a table one night discussing a little of everything, when one of them began a lamentation over a light weight silver dollar he had.

"Th' hid an' th' tail's worn down that foine ye wouldn't know th' hid from th' tail it wasu' that th' hid's always on th' other side."

"Got worn by circulation?"

"So they say, but O! believe some smart-rt devils tuk a jack plane and scraped a doime or two off for luck. Circulation can't wear a dollar down like that."

"It can, too, and O! I'll prove it," said a third. "Have you got a good dollar, Dinny?"

Dinny, curiously enough, had one and produced it.

"Now pass it around the table."

Around it went.

"Twice more."

"Twice more it went."

"Wance more, and let me hov it."

Once again it circulated, and finally it rested in the palm of the instigator of the performance. He then leaned over to the owner of the dollar and handed him a silver quarter.

"Phwat's this?" asked the latter.

"That's yer dollar, Dinny."

Two Great Days.

The teacher was instructing the arithmetic class in history.

"On what day is Washington's birthday?" she inquired.

"Twenty-second of February," answered the class.

"And Independence day?"

"The Fourth of July."

"What is the difference between the two days?"

This seemed to be a poser, and no reply was forthcoming. Finally a youngster who had been scribbling on a slip of paper held up his hand.

"Good for you, Johnny," said the teacher encouragingly. "Now tell us what the difference is between these two of the greatest days in our national history."

"Four months and 12 days, ma'am," and the teacher was shocked, because she had forgotten there was an arithmetic side to the question as well as a historic.

Preservation of the Forests.

Nearly all the nations of Europe are engaged at the present time in controlling the forest supply that every bit of public and private property in trees is placed under reconstruction against destructive cutting. The forests are highly protected, and even where no state control exists the freedom in cutting trees which exists in this country is unknown, says Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. In Germany during the last twenty-five years some 300,000 acres have been reforested, and the government has granted $300,000 in this way to private owners of waste land. In Austria, since 1852, a forest law, which exercises a strict supervision over the forests, both public and private, has been in existence, and no one is allowed to devastate a forest to the detriment of adjoining holders of land, and every cleared or cut forest must be replanted within five years. In Italy the effort is constant to increase the amount of wooded lands, and the government contributes three-fifths of the cost of reforestation, upon the condition that the work is done according to its plan and instructions. In Switzerland the national government contributes from thirty to seventy per cent. of the establishment of new forests, and from twenty to fifty per cent. for the planting of protected forests, and the law is very strict in regard to cutting. France is also deeply interested in public forest property. The forests belong largely to communities and public institutions, as well as to the state, and they are controlled in a manner similar to the regulation of forests in Germany. Here, as well as there, no clearing is allowed except by the consent of the forest administration. In all these countries the strictest attention is paid to the subject of forestry, and schools are everywhere maintained for the purpose of instructing men in this work. Russia has been the only nation where forests have been until lately under no restriction, but since 1888 even this country has had its forest law and other laws on favorable terms for the protection and increase of the forests. Hardly any European nationality is without its state control of the forests or men are instructed how to take care of them. They are trying in Europe in every way possible to save the forests, and in the United States efforts are now being made in nearly every commonwealth to regulate and control the wooded lands, but our people are not yet ready to accept the stringent measures which have been employed in Europe, as a necessity, for their preservation.

Patrons' Picnic and Exhibition.

The 21st annual encampment and exhibition will be held at Grange Park, Centre Hall, September 17th to 22nd inclusive. The encampment will open Saturday the 15th. Religious services on Sunday the 16th, and on Monday the 17th the exhibition proper will open.

Arrangements have been made for the erection of 250 tents for the accommodation of the people which will be rented at a nominal price. Ample provision is being made for a large exhibition of agricultural implements, live stock and poultry. Daily meetings will be held in the large auditorium. Addresses will be delivered by the leading farmers and statesmen of the country, and interesting entertainments will be held in the auditorium every night. Admission to the grounds absolutely free.

For information as to tent accommodations, exhibition privileges, hotels, boarding, lodging and other privileges, address Leonard Rhone, chairman, Centre Hall, Pa.

"I don't like the breath of that stove!" exclaimed little Ethel one day when the gas was escaping from the sitting room stove. Coal gas is like the breath of India compared with the catarrh, but among many other symptoms the sense of smell is often deadened so that the sufferer is unconscious of the offensiveness of his presence. Why any one will endure such a painful, dangerous and offensive disease, when Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—costing only 50 cents—will cure the most stubborn case, is one of the many mysteries. The proprietors are so confident of this Catarrh Remedy, that they offer to forfeit $500 for any case of catarrh they cannot cure. It would be suicide for their remedy, for them to make this offer, unless they understood its exact powers.

A leading Republican newspaper in the West is disposed to acknowledge that the Democratic party is not responsible for the drought that has overtaken the corn crop of that region. This is, indeed, a rare and unexpected concession.

A good peg on which to hang your personal comfort for the next few years is Ramon's Tonic Liver Pills. This remedy is almost magical in its effects, and positively cures all forms of biliousness, sour stomach, disordered liver, etc. Sick headaches vanish speedily when this treatment has been used for a fortnight. Do not forget the name. Ask C. M. Parrish your druggist, for Ramon's and insist upon having it. A box costs 25 cents—sample dose free.

A Vain Wish.

I would not live always—I ask not to stay, But may Fate spare my life till I've seen the poem in print that's accepted to-day hard!"

GROWING OLD GRACEFULLY.

"What a lovely old lady," I heard a man remark, at the opera lately. "She's quite as beautiful as any girl in the house. Such color and complexion is rarely seen in a woman past forty."

Indeed, the woman of whom he spoke was lovely. Her face was clear and smooth, her cheeks, fresh and rosy, her eyes bright with perfect health and the enjoyment of life. She had passed the critical "change of life" without falling into "the sere and yellow leaf," as most American women do. How had she succeeded in doing this? Simply by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription when nature stood in need of some assistance. She had taken it at the right time. In doing this she was wise. Wiser than most women who "trust to luck" in getting through the critical and trying period safely. This standard is just what is needed, at such a time. It is, from girlhood to old age, woman's best friend. In all diseases peculiar to the sex, it accomplishes what no other remedy does—a cure. Take it, woman, when life's autumn begins, and "grow old gracefully." Your money back if it don't help you.

The value and necessity of Home Rule for American cities receives an emphatic illustration in the statement made in the New York Constitutional Convention that the yearly revenues of New York city are $36,000,000. The total revenues of the United States in 1890 were only $60,000,000.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of this place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by F. P. Green.
