- On Tuesday, August 23th, Rev. Morris E. Swartz, now located at Riddlesburg, Bedford county, was married to Miss Caroline M. Bashore, of West Fairview, Pa. The bride is a well known and very popular young woman who met her husband during his work as pastor of the West Fairview Methodist church. Morris Swartz is well known here, as the son of the late Dr. Geo. M. Swartz who resided here for many years. He is a graduate of the Bellefonte High school and of Dickinson college. His present station is considered a very good one for a man so young in the ministry, but Morris gives promise of a very bright future and his rise will necessarily be rapid.

CAN THE FORESTS BE REGROWN .--The Driftwood Gazette states that two expert arborists from Boston, Mass., are out in the wilds of that vicinity investigating and experimenting as to the practicability of planting the seed of the white pine. This scheme has been given careful attention and research of late, and would prove a grand thing if the large area of land in this section of the State, now denuded of timber, could be replanted and made to yield a fine growth of pine again within the years necessary to make it a paying investment. The experiments of these two gentlemen will be watched with much

THE MILTON FAIR .-- Notwithstanding the disastrous floods of May damaged the Association grounds and buildings over two thousand dollars, the progressive management have everything back "ship-shape," and in addition are just completing a magnificent new stock exhibition building 150 feet long. The management last week concluded a contract with the celebrated Sugimoto's Troupe of Royal Japs, who will give their wonderful exhibitions every day of the Fair. From present indications the races will be most exciting, as many new horses are promised. The agricul. tural and stock displays will excel those of last year. No gambling or gamblers allowed on the grounds and every possible protection given those in attendance. Excursions on all the railroads. Remember the dates-October 2, 3, 4 and 5. 1894.

IMPROVEMENT NOTES .- The brick work on the new Brockerhoff building, on Allegheny street, is all completed and after a stone top coping is laid the structure will be ready for the roof.

The new Armory at the corner of Lamb and Spring streets is at a standstill. The changing of material of construction from stone to brick has necessitated a delay that will make its completion almost an all winter's job.

Dr. E. S. Dorworth broke ground, on Tuesday, for a new brick dwelling which he will erect on his lot on east High street between the homes of A. C. Mingle and M. Fauble.

A stone house which has been commenced on the extreme east end of Linn street will be owned by Joseph L. Montgomery of the Bellefonte fuel and supply Co. when finished.

Charles Garmer Jr., came down from his home in Tyrone, on Wednesday, to make arrangements for the building of a neat frame dwelling house on the lot he purchased on east Logan street some

OUR NEXT CONGRESSMAN WEL-COMED HOME. - When the late train rolled into the C. R. R. of Pa. station, at the foot of Lamb street, on Friday night, and Aaron Williams Esq. of this place, stepped out onto the platform a sight met his eyes that he is likely to remember all the rest of his days.

It was his return from the 28th con gressional district conference, which had been in session at Ridgway the day before, and as he came home a winner, a great crowd of admirers had gathered at the station to give him a rousing reception. Notwithstanding it was nearly midnight fully five hundred people assembled about the cars to catch a glimpse of the Centre county man. Meyer's band, cannon crackers, red lights and cheering men made it seem more like an independence day celebration than anything else, and the enthusiasm of the crowd ran high as Mr. Williams was escorted to the head of a long line of carriages in which were seated a number of the prominent Democrats of the town and county. The band then headed the procession that made its triumphant way to the home of the Congressman-to-be, on west Howard street, where in answer to repeated calls he made a neat speech thanking the people for such a manifestation of their good will. Ira Mitchell Esq. followed with a rattling talk, full of encouragement to the candidate and his party. He was frequently interrupted by the plaudits of the crowd. Representative James Schofield and county Treasurer John Q. Miles said a few words in response to calls for them. The lateness of the hour precluding any further talk, Mr. purpose he had taken a course at the

MAX J. FUREY KILLED ON THE RAILROAD .- At noon on Saturday a telegram was received in this place informing friends of the veteran editor Joe W. Furey that his youngest son, Max, bad been killed on the railroad at Lock Haven. The lad had been attending to his duties as an employee of the Democrat office when he met his most untimely death. He was an intelligent, energetic boy, who when his father suffered the physical collapse that left the family helpless some time ago, stepped into the breach and worked with a will to support them.

He was well known here and the many friends who remember him as a chubby little; boy, playing about town, when his father was a writer on the WATCHMAN, will be grieved to hear of his sad end. Interment was made in Lock Haven Sunday afternoon.

The Democrat publishes the following account of the accident. "This community was shocked shortly after noon to-day when it became known that Max J. Furey, an employe of The was his daily duty Max had gone to the P. and E. station on an errand for the office. On returning he was in the Irvin house bus. When the bus arrived at the railroad crossing at Henderson street it was prevented from going across by a freight train coming east. The driver of the bus then turned his horses around intending to go out bus reached the track of the Y switch, News express began backing around from the main track. Watchman Nagle and another man seeing the danger velled! to the driver of the bus

FOR GOD'S SAKE, HURRY! The noise of the passing freight must have drowned the noise made by the approaching passenger train, for the driver went on and did not look around. Inside the bus was a physician, Max and the porter of the Irvin house. The physician on seeing the danger of the bus being struck yelled to the porter to open the door. The porter threw himself against it, burst it open, and jumped out, quickly followed by the physician. Max was the last getting out, and as he stepped down, the HIND COACH STRUCK HEM. rolled him over and over for the distance of about sixty feet. The train was at once stopped. A. A. Woodward, who was in the coach and Robert Poorman were the first to reach the unfortunate young man. It only needed a glance to reveal that Max was badly mangled and that death must have been instantaneous. The bedy was picked up and carried to the baggage of music with a number of ladies and room at the station. Shortly after the gentlemen on horseback will be the spebody was taken to the rooms of undertaker Sloan where they were prepared for burial.

Max J. Furey was the son of the veteran editor, Joe W. Furey, who for many years so ably filled the editorial chair of The Democrat. Max attended school and when it became necessary for him to assist the family by reason of his day older than when he ministered to father's failing health, he cheerfully his flock here. gave up his studies and went to work. He for several months was in the telelearn the trade. He was also a member League. He was an obliging boy, ready at all times to do any one a favor; performed his duties cheerfully and was his way through life.
