watches of the night, the God of day throws Judge Dean; Senator Scott and Senaback his refulgence upon the stars and his light is eternal, and so of a life like that of Governor Curtin. We bear his body to the tomb to-day but we bury not his memory. We bury not his achievements, his records, his examples. They will remain with us, lustrous as the silver stars of the night that never permit darkness to come upon the earth. And so from generation to generation in Pennsylvania will the memory of this man endure, will the love for him be perpetual, and as those who come generation after generation to hear the story of his greatness, of his devotion, his liberality, his humanity toward all mankind he will dwell in the sweet memories of Pennsylvania and while the higher cliffs of his mountain home shall stand sentinei around his tomb, wherever there shall be the altar and worshiper of free government, there will be the lovers and worshipers of the memory of A. G. Curtin."

J. M. Bailey Esq., of Huntingdon and Gen. J. P. S. Gobin, of Lebanon, followed. All of the addresses teemed with ecomiums that only heroes elicit. The body was then borne into the Court House and laid in state until 2 o'clock, when it was taken back to the house for the private services.

The casket in which the remains reposed was of red cedar covered withblack broadcloth, with oxydized handles; an exact model of the one in which Gen. Grant was buried. Over the top was draped the American flag and by the side of the casket the many floral offerings were arranged. The most lavish of which were a beautiful palm de- of Philadelphia, Col. A. K. McClure, the veter sign, from the Soldiers' Orphan Sixteeners Club of Penna. A large pillow of fern and roses from the Masonic Fraternity, of Bellefonte. A broken column by the Centre county Bar Association. The Grand Army of the Republic, Gregg Post, of Bellefonte, a handsome floral design of a G. A. R. badge draped. A Tyrone. A harp by Fred Stinson. Also a large star with no card attach, ed, and an ivy and rose wreath from the Dept. Com. of the Loyal Legion of Dep't. of Phila., Wm. C. McPhail, Survey Dep't

The placid features of the dead were viewed by thousands, after the exercises, while the great bell of the court house tolled the solemn death knell. At 2 o'clock the guard of honor consisting of David Love, Jas. A. Green, Chas. Eckenroth, Simon Sellers, H. H. Hewitt, J. C. P. Jones, Alfred Smith, Jas. Fulmer, Henry Comer, Thos. Taylor, Wm. Haverack, Jas. Gallagher, Stanley Watson, Thos. Watson, Geo. F. Derr, J. Green McKinley, Henry McMullen, Hugh Shultz, D. C. Walters, David McClellan, with John C. Miller, Past Commander, in charge, which had been in charge of the hods and stood guard over it while away from the house, carried it back for the last sad rites in the home which in life it presided over.

These services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Laurie, of the Presbyterian church of this place, assisted by Rev. Dr. T. H. Robinson of the Western Theological Seminary, at Allegheny, who was Gov. Curtin's pastor during his first term at Harrisburg. The ministers stood on the first landing of the stairs and there Dr. Laurie read the funeral sermon from the text:

"And the King said unto his servants, know ye not that a prince and a great man has fallen this day in Israel." 2 Sam. III, 38.

Dr. Robinson then made the closing address and the service was concluded with a prayer by Dr. Laurie. The body was then given to the military for burial.

THE IMPOSING FUNERAL CORTEGE.

Never before and never again will Bellefonte witness such an imposing spectacle, Hundreds of armed infantrymen, cavalrymen and artillerymen, battle scarred veterans, distinguished men from all over the country and thousands of sorrowing townsmen followed the remains to the Union cemetery, where the simple burial service of the Grand Army was carried out, the casket was lowered into a cement enceased tomb that had been lined with evergreen. The civilians then departed and the Guardsmen fired a parting salute over the grave, while the cannon boomed out a thundering farewell to the dead. As the body was being born from the house the brigade band played "Nearer My God to Thee."

The Cortege moved in the following order.

1st. The military escort, detailed by Gov. Pattison, Col. Theodore Burchfield of the 5th Reg. commanding, consisting of the following of the National Guard of Pennsylvania: Second brigade band of Pittsburg; Sheridan troop, of Tyrone; Battery B, companies A, B, C, and G of the Fifth Regiment, and A, B, D, G and H of the Twelfth regiment.

INCIDENTS OF THE FUNERAL.

It is estimated that 4500 people view ed the remains during the time it was in the Court House.

Messages of condolence were received from many prominent men, among them Gov. Robert E. Pattison, and Gov. Roswell P. Flower, of New York and Matthew Stanley Quay.

The late Gov. Curtin is said to have been the only Congressman with whom a president ever dined during official residence in Washington. It is estimated that 7000 visitors were in town on Wednesday and had the weather not been so threatening in the morning the crowd would have been double that size. A coincidence relating to the death of Andrew Curtin is seen in the fight that is going on over the license question in Potter county to-day. April 11th, 1866, Curtin signed the bill that prohibited the sale of "wines, spiritous, malt or brewed liquors within the limits of Potter county." The day of his burial the destroyers of the good measure were still fighting against it.

Andrew Gregg Curtin was born at Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa., April 22, 1815.

Seventeen years before his birth his father, Roland Curtin, settled in Bellefonte and began the manufacture of iron. He was a pioneer in this great industry, which has now grown to such gigantic proportions in this State. He is said to have erected one of the first, iron furnaces built in Pennsyl-years before settling in Bellefonte, and brought with him to this country wealth and a good education, obtained at the French capital. His second wife was the daughter of Andrew Gregg, who served as United States Senator, member of Congress, and Secretary of State. So, in birth and advantages, Governor Curtin was favored above the lot of most men. He had every advantage of education that the schools and academies of Bellefonte afforded, and, after a term of school at Harrisburg, terested may appear, H. C. QUIGLEY,
