Pine Grove Mention
This week the Excelsors are out and of course we all expect a good supply of venison. Woo beto the fleetfoot that Elmer Reed drives a beed on, his meat sure.

Butcherings are an every day occurrence in the valley. Many fine porkers are being slaughtered, and sausage and "sich" are selling much lower than they did this time last year.

By the advice of his physician G. W. McWilliams has concluded to go to Philadelphia to have his eye treated in hopes of saving the sight which there is not very much chance.

Rev. Ralph Hingworth is as happy as the proverbial sunflower. One—Henry Snyder Hingworth is getting along splendidly at grandfather Snyder's, where they will probably stay until Spring.

The Modocs under the leadership of that successful old veteran sportsman Israel Condo returned from a week's hunt on their old camping ground near the Bear meadows. They shot five fine deer and wounded one that the Stone valley crowd captured next day. A big black bear was also fired into several times but kept up his usual gait.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE.—On the 14th inst. the good person was partaking of his noonday meal, a crowd took possession of his house, which he supposed was a wedding party, and ordered them into the parlor, but when he came to perform the ceremony he found the guests had brought a goodly supply of everything but marriage licenses, even the slughtly dollar was not forgotten. By the time the entire party had crowded themselves into the parlor, the surprised person had gone upstairs three times to change his house jacket for a Prince Albert, but each time came down stairs attired just as he went up, which only added to the merriment of the occasion. An hour later the fatted gobbler was ready and a bounteous dinner was served to all. When the Reverend had done justice to himself as well as the dinner, in a neat little speech he thanked the intruders for their kindly thought and hoped they would always be rich in comforts and grace. It was not until night that Rev. Black and his good wife were left alone to wonder how it had been kept such a profound secret, and rejoice that on account of the good things only, but on account of the spirit which prompted the affair. The raiders alone know the secret of the cupboard where the little jam pots grow, and to them we would refer you for further information.
