The orange has become such a neces-

The Orange Supply.

sary article of consumption that the certainty of a large diminution in the supply from one source has been the cause of much public disquietude. It is probable that the shipments from Florida will be at least 80 per cent. less than last year, most of which loss will be due o the "freeze" of last December. On t rough calculation about 2,000,000 ister at Washington, Mr. Kurino, in boxes of oranges were frozen on the trees. This is one-third of the crop and two-fifth of the shipments of last following the Perry treaty it year. But it is also certain that the is evident that internal causes had year. But it is also certain that the crop of this year would have been smaller if no freezing weather had occurred. In an estimate of the proable yield in Florida this year, made in August, 1894, the Jacksonville "Times-Union" showed that not more than one-half or two-thirds of a crop could be expected owing to the drouth of last Spring. It is probable then that not over 3,-000,000 boxes at the outside would have been grown in Florida this year, and if 2,000,000 boxes were frozen only 1,000,- Samural in the adjustment of their af-000 boxes can be expected from that source of supply. As this is only one-eighth of the quantity consumed in rether shape the slave holders in the South at the choir. cent years in this country, there will same period could have saved this coun-have to be a large increase from other try the bloody conflict that was at its sources or the supply will be lamentably short. How large an increase, if any, in the foreign supply can be look- men, the bankers and the controlling en for is not known, as the condition of the yield in Southern Spain, Sicily and Cuba has not been reported. The imports from those countries of this fruit have fallen off greatly in recent years, owing mainly to an increase in the home supply, but partly to the tariff. In 1886 about 1,750.000 boxes were imported, but in 1892 this had fallen to 682,000 boxes. A failure in the Florida crop of 1893, however, brought in a little over 1,000,000 boxes from abroad.

There will undoubtedly be an increased importation this year, but how large remains to be seen, but it will certainly not be large enough to make up the deficiency in Florida. Other sources will have to be depended upon. The greatest and most trustworthy of these is California, which has been rapidly increasing its production and shipment of oranges. Last year California's yield of oranges was estimated at 2,500,000 boxes, an increase of 25 per cent. over the previous year. This year the increase may be greater still and some sanguine growers calculate that the crop may reach 4,000,000 boxes. It is certain that the increase in the shipments will be much greater than the increase in the crop, because the fine large crop grown in Florida last year kept prices down. But even under these discouraging circumstances 7000 car loads or oranges came over the Rocky Mountains in 1894. A shipment of at least 10,000 cars in 1895 is predicted.

The next largest source of home supply is Louisiana, which has good orange lands, but they have not been developed to anything like their full capacity. The yield of that State averages about fore, little danger of its being produced fore, little danger of its being produced increased suddenly like many other crops a large supply could be grown. But unfortunately, in the present case, it takes time to grow orange trees be-fore they are ready to bear fruit. The only other source of supply is Arizona, but as the industry has not been developed there to any extent not much can be depended upon. The probable home supply then is 1,000,000 boxes from Florida, 500,000 boxes from Louisiana and 3,500,000 boxes from California, or a total of 5,000,000 from all sources. If the importations rise to 1,-000,000 boxes there will be a total of 6,-000,000 boxes to supply all demands for this fruit. It is probable in this situation that there will be some increase both in retail and wholesale prices. The price of the commodity has fluctuated greatly, and mainly according to the supply There has not been much money in the business in recent years. Picking and boxing averages about 35 cents in this country and abroad and the commission is 10 cents in all cases, but the freight varies according to distance and means of communication. To carry a box of oranges from the grove in Florida to New York costs about 50 cents. from California 871 cents, from Louisiana about 60 cents and from the Mediterranean 32 cents, to which latter the duty must be added. The average cost of putting a box of oranges down in New York is a little over $1, and taking into account the loss from spoiled fruit the margin to the growers under recent prices has been small. The freeze in Florida while it will result in much loss to that State will bring some compensation to growers elsewhere in better returns for their product.

Coldest February Weather.

The Area of 500 Miles West and Southwest of St. Louis Never Experienced Such a Storm-Trains Stalled by the Snow.

St. Louis, Feb. 8.-The coldest weather ever recorded here in February held the city in his icy grip last night. Eleven degrees below zero were on the figures. A high wind drove the dry snow in a blinding storm. Throughout Northern Texas, where the railways are not prepared to battle with snowdrifts, all trains are late. and some have been abandoned. Two Missouri Pacific passenger trains have been im-movable in snow drifts near center, Kas., since Wednesday. Snow plows failed to reliave them, and at noon to-day a special train carrying 100 men left Fort Scott, Kan., to dig out the imprisoned trains.

A Consumptive Colony.

Ben Butler's estate proposes to give 820,000 acres in New Mexico to be devoted to a home for consumptives. This is an immense benevolence. Now let half a dozen rich men supply the money for building houses, hospitals, hotels, etc., for laying out and sewering streets, for supplying water and other require-ments, and we shall have the starting point for one of the greatest experi-ments that is to be made in his age, the experiment for the extirpation of tuberprepare for winter and subscribe for culosis as a human disease.—New York Journal.

A Patriotic Lesson.

Japan's success in war has attracted the attention of the civilized world, by its evidence that a nation has been so cially and civilly revolutionized within the last half of this century. But it must not be supposed this wonderful change came over Japan without preparation. For years before the light dawned and the seed quickened there must have been a process of preparation going on, the active causes for which will furnish interesting matter for investigation by sociologists and ethnologists. Considerable light is thrown upon this matter by the new Japanese Minan interview with Kate Field. From his statement of the events developed a patriotic sentiment of the highest order in Japan and prepared hte way for a leap in progress and civilization. "The dawn of daylight," as Mr. Kurino calls the Perry treaty, disclosed jan aristocratic or privileged class prepared to sacrifice its power and much of its property in the interest of the common people and their country. The patriotism and wisdom that moved the Emperor of Japan, the daimies and height ten years after the Perry treaty. And the same spirit now, if the silver politicians were imbued with it, could lead easily to a settlement of the financial problem that are straining this ## country and checking its prosperity. Oil of Lavender.

One of the Industries of the County of Surrey,

The production of lavender for distillation is an important branch of the industry. In the county, of Surrey, England, there are several large lavender distilleries. To these the growers carry their harvestings, to be subject to the necessary process. The oil is contained in glands situated chiefly on the calyx, corrolla and leaves, but also to a less extent on the branches and flower stalks. In the process of distillation two hours are allowed for the first "run." This run gives the clearest and best oil, and | you up to the skies. when of a very high quality it is almost colorless. For the second run four hours are allowed, the oil produced being of a pale amber tint and having a stronger. coarser odor, than that which results from the first run. When the highest quality of oil is desired, flowers only are used in the pro-cess. The quality of the oil secured depends also on the kind of season in which the flowers have been grown. Sunless summers result in a much reduced quantity and inferior quality. There are many acres of land through out the kingdom producing at present only a scant crop of grass, which might be used for the cultivation of the lavender plant. The demand for it is practically unlimited, and there is, therein such quantities that the price would fall below a remunerative level.

Why Men Should Marry.

It was clearly meant that all men, as well as all women, should marry; and those who, for whatever reason, miss this obvious destiny are, from nature's point of view, failures. It is not a question of personal felicity (which in 8 cases out of 10 may be more than problematic), but of race responsibility. The unmarried man is a skulker, who, in order to secure his own ease, dooms some woman, who has a rightful claim upon him, to celibacy. And in so do-ing he defrauds himself of the oppor-tunities for mental and moral development which only the normal experience can provide. He deliberately stunts the statute of his manhood, impoverishes his heart and brain, and chokes up all the sweetest potentialities of his soul. To himself he is apt to appear like the wise fox that detects the trap, though it be ever so cunningly baited; that refuses to surrender his liberty for the sake of an appetizing chicken or rabbit, which may after all be a decoy, stuffed with sawdust; while, as a matter of fact, his case is that of the cowardly servant in the parable, who, for fear of losing his talent, hid it in a napkin, and in the end was deemed unworthy of his stewardship. From the Matrimonial Puzzle, by H. H. Boyesen, in North American Review.

And He Got the Quarter.

"Mister," he said plaintively, "I'm hard up, I am. I hain't had no place ter sleep fur three days." "It's dead right," replied Meandering Mike; "dead right, mister, an' I kin prove it, if yo'll gimme a quarter."

"Very well," said the kind-hearted man, "Here's 25 cents, and you can step around with me to the charitable authorities while I investigate." "There ain't no need ter go so fur. De reason I ain't had no place ter sleep fur three days is because nine or ten hours at a time is enough fur me ter sleep. I didn't wanter sleep fur three And he vanished, leaving one more cynic behind him.

Not Yet.

Steward's mother was making sandwiches of deviled ham. The little fel-low came along, and seeing the can with the picture of the imp upon it, regarded it earnestly for a while and then said: "Mamma, what is that stuff?" "This? O, this is deviled ham." He looked seriously at the mixture and in an awed voice inquired: "Why, mother have they killed him?"—Boston Congregationalist.

The Ills of Renowned Composers.

Chopin was lame, and had consumption; Beethoven was deaf. Handel and his contemporary Sebastian Bach, were blind, Gluck was apoplectic, and had to stop work in the middle of an opera which was to be called "The Danides;" Weber and Mendelssohn were consumptive, and Schumann had softening of the brain.

-The Lancaster Examiner says 'From present indications the Susque hanna river in this particular locality never before presented such a dangerous outlook. There is an tradition that no January gorge ever yet created any damage. But all rules or maxims have their exceptions, and this year may prove an illustration. The first break of the ice never got away and is gorged at various points many feet high. In some places it looks as if the river was practically ice to the bottom—asserted by those who have seen occasions, used this remedy in like it to be from twenty to forty feet in beight and depth. Such being the manner, with the same good results, and condition, the Columbia bridge must is much elated over her discovery of so be in more thon ordinary danger and all the islands may be swept of soil and dwellings by a cyclone of ice, as it were."

The Pope's Choir. The finest choir in the world is that of St. Peter's in Rome, known as the pope's choir. There is not a female voice in it, and yet the most difficult oratorios and sacred music are rendered in such a manner as to make one think that Adelina Patti is leading. The choir is composed of 60 boys. They are trained for the work from the time they get control of their vocal cords, and some of the best singers are not over 9 years old. At the age of 17 they are dropped from the

-The "Trilby" craze has had no funnier outcome than the desire of girls in all parts of the world who think they resemble DuMaurier's heroine to communicate with the author Mr. Du-Maurier has received a large number of photographs from among women in this and other countries asking him if, in his opinion, they resemble the real "Trilby." These letters and pictures place him in an embarrassing position, but he is do-ing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.
