THE SONG OF THE TOUTH. (With Apologies to Tom Hood.) By A. S. T.

With nerves all tattered and torn, With weary and aching head, The patient sat in the dentist's chair, Sighing, "Ah, would I were dead." Scrape, scrape, scrape; Don't mind me a bit, forsooth ! I am paying a nice high price for this fun, So have a good time with my tooth.

Drill, drill, drill. The "dear" little wheel moves fast; Drill, drill, drill, Till it reaches the nerve at last, "Stop, can't you, a minute," I say; "Are you boring a 10 foot well?" Oh, Dante, had you lived in our day, There would be a new torment in Hell.

Hammer and poke and press. Till the brain begins to swim; Hammer and press and poke, Till at last the filling is in. "And when shall I call again? Wednesday at nine, you say? Oh, no! You did not hurt at all, Well, I'll be here on time, sir, Good day." —New York Commercial Advertiser.

Timber Nearly Cut Off.

The Pine and Hemlock Forests of Jefferson County Almost Exhausted-Approaching Close of a Great Industry.

In all of Western Pennsylvania there has not been a section so thoroughly de-nuded of timber as the Toby valley, in Jefferson county. In a year or two there will not be a mill in operation between Brockwayville and Brandy Camp in which region 10 years ago there were many big plants at work. Now nothing remains but crumbling mill sites, where skeleton dead timbers stand amid a growth of blackberry briars.

The first lumbermen here found virgin forests of pine, the quality of which was never excelled anywhere. Then countless thousands of acres of dense hemlock which surrounded the pine tracts were thought to have been waste of nature's forces, and no value was attached to this boundless resource. which was destined in after years to play so important a part in the industrial field. At first the lumberman was a fastidious operator, and would cut and manufacture the forest giants which would yield pine lumber. Only the first few logs were taken and the balance left to decay where it fell. Years afterward, when all the pine had been stripped from the forests, thousands of dollars were realized by gathering up these rejected pine tops and manufacturing them into shingles.

Gradually lumbering operations were enlarged as the demand grew for the product. The only available markets were Pittsburg and the lower river towns and cities. The lumbermen soon became less particular, and the logs were cut up into the tree tops. Several grades of lumber were sorted out of the 14 days. Religious services in conec-tion with the council were held Sunday product and sold according to quality. The logs were cut and hauled to the atternoon at Metzerott Music hall. mills in the winter, where they were sawed up in the summer time and piled along the creek bank to be rafted and run out on the into the cree spring and fall freshets. Winter was as busy as any other season of the year, as it was then the lum bermen depended upon getting their logs to the mills. The logs were generally hauled in on sleds or trailed in on slides. A slide was made by placing two logs continuously together with a center strip. The insides of the logs where then hewed out, making a trough. The logs were rolled into the slide. If the slide led down an incline the logs would run themselves, but if on the level a team was hitched to the rear log and a long trail shoved in. More often the logs were hauled on sleds, and this required a large number of teams. To get this motive power agents were sent out early in the fall, and the farming country scoured for miles around. Hundreds of teams came annually from the farming sections of Jefferson, Clarion, Armstrong and Indiana counties, while it was no uncom-mon thing for farmers to drive from points in New York State to the Toby valley to get employment for themselves and their teams during the win ter.

> Hitherto the largest petition ever framed, and the only one approaching this in the number of its signatures, has been that of the British Chartists in 1841, asking for the repeal of the corn laws; this had nearly 1,000,000 names, and it carried its point. Miss Willard and her co-workers started out to get 2,-000,000 names in actual signatures to their petition, and the work has now been practically accomplished. Indeed, from one point of view, it has been more than triply accomplished. For, while the actual signatures thus far mounted on canvas number 1,121,200, the official indorsements of various societies raise the total to over 6,000,000 persons who have set the stamp of their approval upon this remarkable document.

The enormity of the task which Mrs. Shuman has undertaken may be imagined from the fact that the aggregate of time she has already spent at it amounts to about two years of steady work. The labor of sending out the blank petitions for signatures WAS One large lumber firm in Elk county used to send agents up into Erie and Crawford counties to engage teams for the winter's haul. Every farmer could get employment at good wages for him. self and team at a time when farmers generally have nothing to do.

But this is all changed now in this section. It took 30 years to use up the pine timber in Toby valley, but the hemlock was stripped in about onethird that time. A few woodsmen employed a limited number of teams in this section this winter, but it is about the last hauling of this kind in this immediate vicinity. Toward the last this method was considered too slow, and train roads and locomotives were used. Many miles of railroad have been built in the lumber woods about here, the most of which are now abandoned. These roads displaced a big amount of team work, and consequently stopped an important factor for disbursing money throughout the country. Later on, too the lumber operators began adopting company stores, having learned this important lesson from the coal operators who have come in. Before that the woodsmen was paid his wages, generally in a lump when the employer settled up his contract, and for a time thereafter money was flush. This made easy times, which have now given way, in many cases, to the modern corporation methods whe ever a plant of any consequence is in operation.

Lumbering about Brockawayville is no longer the leading industry, and its decline is severely felt. There are other resources in the community which will be developed in time, but they will be under closer and modern operated methods. Nothing will ever afford such a wide range of employment or distribute money so generally as the lumber ing industry. The free and independent methods are a thing of the past, and the community will have to adopt itself to new conditions.

WATCHMAN OFFICE-

is the place to have it done.

"little Frenchman" has drawn a prize. -In answer to a correspondent in reference to the throwing of rice on a wedding occasion, it is a relic of an cient Rome, signifying a desire that plenty should always be the lot of the newly married pair. In this country the custom only remains as one of the superstitions that it is luck to do so. The custom of throwing old slippers is considered by many to be a relic of the marriage by capture, when a man used to carry off his bride by force and vio lence. The custom is attributed to the giving up of the authority of the parent over the bride and its transfer to the husband. In the Scripture according to an excellent authority, "the receiving of a shoe was an evidence and a symbol of asserting or accepting
