Farm Notes.

The time to make corn is when the plants are young and growing, for it is important to get the crop pushed forward rapidly in order to escape the dry season of summer. If the plants make good headway, and are well rooted, with large leaf capacity, they will be better prepared to secure moisture from below and to avoid the usual drawbacks which befall the small and tender plants that are late in getting forward. It is also when the corn is young that the cultivator should be used, as much as possible, for any weeds or grass at the time the young stalks are appearing will interfere with their progress. When it is remembered that a difference of two weeks in a season may be the turning point of loss or profit with a crop of corn, too much attention cannot be given the details in the beginning. If the land has been plowed and harrowed until the soil is deep and fine it will prove of great advantage at this time, and if kept loose and mellow with the cultivator the ground will become warm much sooner than if no care was taken and more moisture will also be secured from rains.

FERTILIZERS AND MANURE.

Corn is a gross-feeding plant, and will not object to any kind of manure, which may be broadcasted at the time the land is prepared for the seed, but it is seldom that farmers have a sufficiency of manure for a large field, and they should not hesitate to use fertilizers. The best "starter" for corn is to mix two hundred pounds of nitrate of soda with about 100 pounds of land plaster (the plaster serving as a drier), and broadcast it over the soil, using a small quantity on the hills around the corn, if preferred. Of course it is better to apply all fertilizers before seeding the land, but if this has not been done the nitrate may be used as directed, and about a week later there should be applied between the rows about 250 pounds of sulphate of potash and 300 pounds of bone meal. The corn will show the beneficial effects of the nitrate of soda as soon as the first rain falls to dissolve it, and the leaves will take on a deep green tinge, which will indicate the appearance of the plants as thrifty.

WEEDS AND GRASS.

A corn crop enables the farmer to kill out weeds and grass in the field by cultivating the plants, but to thoroughly clean a field there must be no "laying by" of the crop, in the usual acceptance of the term, as applied to corn, as long as there are any weeds or grass, as much of the seeding of the ground with weeds is due to allowing some of them to escape by ceasing cultivation too soon. The cultivation should be shallow—just stirring the soil—the object being to kill weeds and loosen the surface soil, instead of disturbing the roots of the corn. A loose soil forms a mulch over the ground and prevents loss of moisture by evaporation, and also enables the soil to absorb water from rains more easily instead of allowing it to flow away, as may be the case if the ground is hard or baked.

Farmers do not have that knowledge of their affairs that they should, as many of them keep no books. When the census is taken they can give but little information in regard to the number of bushels of grain grown each year or the value of their live stock, hence much must be derived from estimates rather than from facts presented. Every farmer should keep books, and set down all the items of receipts and expenses.

A plow in Germany has been worked successfully with electricity and in this country an electric weed killer has been tested which kills the weeds, the current being generated on the car, passing out through a brush and from thence it is brought in contact with the weeds. The circuit is completed through the wheels of the car and the ground.

Do not overlook buckwheat as a summer crop. It grows on poor land, but yields more largely if the land is rich. It is considered a profitable crop for plowing under in the fall, being used for renovating poor land. Its blossoms afford excellent forage for bees at a time when they can find but few honey-producing plants on which to work.

A farmer who has tried several modes of destroying cut worms finds that an excellent method is to use a stick three feet long and 1 1/2 inches in diameter, sharpened at one end, with which two or three holes are punched in the ground near each plant. The cut worm is sluggish and falls into the hole, from which he cannot easily escape.

The best time to cut any grass for hay is just when the seed is about to form. Cutting should never be deferred until the seeds are dry, as the plant is in the best condition for stock when in the milky stage, the nutritious matter being then arrested in the stalks.

Bitter milk comes from bad feed. The rag weed which follows a crop of rye or oats, dog fennel, bitter weed and the like, although but little may be eaten, will often impart a bitter flavor to the milk of cows pastured in such a field. Even this trouble can be overcome.

Wood ashes make the best fertilizer for crimson clover. Although this clover thrives on land that has been used until but little fertility remains, yet it needs plant food and gives the best results when manure or ashes (or both) are applied.

Phis, pills, pills!
There's nothing like pills
When you are bilious
To cure your pills!
The poet is right; and he might have truthfully added, that of all pills Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the safest and best. They are sugar-coated, small and easy to take, and produce no griping or nausea, but do their appointed work quietly, pleasantly and thoroughly. The only sure cure for habitual constipation.

Butcher—"Will you have a round steak miss?"
Young Housekeeper—"Oh, I don't care what shape it is so it's tender."

"Sometime ago I was troubled with an attack of rheumatism. I used Chamberlain's Balm and was completely cured. I have since advised many of my friends and customers to try the remedy and all speak highly of it." Simon Goldbaum, San Luis Rey, Cal. For sale by F. P. Green.

Business Notice.

Children Cry or Pitcher's Castoria.
When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Tedious Suffering Finds Relief.

Haverhill, N. H.—Many physicians have pronounced as incurable, diseases of the skin and blood. Mrs. Hodson of this place abandoned the old method used Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and was cured.

In October, 1890, Mrs. Hodson suffered from a diseased ankle bone. She had always been troubled with Salt Rheum which aggravated the diseased limb. Prescriptions of all sorts were used, but with no benefit. Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy was tried and it drove the poison out of her blood, healed the ulcerous sores, and restored Mrs. Hodson to health and strength. Favorite Remedy cleanses the blood, and strengthens the nerves. In cases of scrofula and salt rheum, it never fails.

The craving for applause is as morbid as the craving for alcohol.

"We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla for years and regard it as a most valuable medicine." Miss Tillie Osterheld, 3213 Woodland Ave., West Philadelphia, Pa.
