A PATERNAL LULLABY.

Rock-a-baby on the tree top
Papa will warble you weeping to stop,
Mamma is anxious to vote like a man
And we've got to hushie the best we can.

Rock-a-baby on the tree top;
Mamma is busy electing a cop,
Sister is hunting the pattern she'd like
For bloomers, and grandma is riding a bike.

Rock-a-baby, when you're asleep,
Father his dates at the office will keep;
For his place he will lose if too long he stays,
And he'll tend babies the rest of his days.

Appalling Profligacy.

We reprint in another column from the Public Ledger a list of the increased appropriations made by the Legislature that has just adjourned, and the aggregate of increased expenditures must appal the people of the State. It is generally known that the late Legislature has been unapproached by any previous Legislatures in wasteful expenditure, but until the increase of salaries and the multiplication of offices, etc., are aggregated none can appreciate the reckless extent to which the public money has been wasted.

The general appropriation bill just passed by the late Legislature appropriated $1,369,816 48 to pay "the salaries of the State officers, the clerks in the several departments and the State government and for incidental expenses of the said departments." The appropriation made for the same expenditures by the last Legislature under Governor Pattison called for only $552,659.26 for the same State expenditures. It will thus be seen that the increase of expenditures for State officers and State departments is now nearly 160 per cent. greater than it was two years ago, and this has been done in the face of the general depression of business has been greatly reduced in revenue, thus necessitating the strictest economy in public expenses.

A few of the new appropriations made by the State were reasonably necessary. The new Superior Court that adds probably $75,000 a year to the expenditures of the State was an admitted necessity, and none complained of the reorganization of the Banking Department, and the increase of salary given, but we cannot now recall the creation of any other office, or any other increase of salaries that can be fairly justified or even excused. The salary of the Adjutant General was increased in the very teeth of the Constitution prohibiting it, and if the new Adjutant General respects his oath he will refuse to receive it, although the Legislature in disregard of its sworn obligation to support the Constitution made the appropriation. The creation of the new office of Assistant Auditor General was entirely unneeded, and an office created simply to accommodate a politician and pay a political debt, and the nearly doubled appropriation to the Board of Public Grounds for Superintendent Delaney to squander will not be misunderstood by any. If Governor Hastings shall be just to himself he will veto it.

The people of Pennsylvania will be startled as they study the uniform record of profligacy that was made by the late Legislature. In every place where it was possible new offices were created, or salaries increased, and wherever partisan ends were to be served, or partisan favorites could realize profit the public money was wasted with unexampled recklessness, while the most important public improvements, and the most worthy claims of charity and philanthropy were rejected because the treasury was exhausted by partisan plunderers.

Making every allowance for the necessary increase in the expenditures of the State departments a full half million dollars could have been saved by reasonable economy on the part of the Legislature. Instead of increasing the expenditures for State officers and departments over $17,000 all possible necessary increase could have been liberally covered by an increase of $300,000, leaving over half a million that could have been applied to worthy charities and needed improvements, but no question seems to have commanded respect from the Legislature that did not involve party plunder. Any measure that served monopolies who contributed freely to political campaigns and any combination of political jobbers who wanted to possess the franchises or cities and towns of the State could command the approval of the Legislature at any time by special orders, while nearly every measure of public interest was passed by apparently without even an attempt at consideration and left to slumber in committee or die a natural death among the untraced bills on the calendar. The Judges retiring bill that would not at anytime be likely to have charged the State with more than five Judges who are not needed and whose salaries will amount to as much as the cost of the retired Judges, or passed by next to a unanimous vote.

All Legislatures are considerably judged by the people, and when the people of Pennsylvania come to a fair understanding of the appalling profligacy of the late Legislature it will stand out single from all its predecessors in the popular condemnation it must provoke; but after all the people of Pennsylvania have received from this Legislature just about what they had reason to expect. Governor Pattison was treated with contempt by the Republican leaders because he adhered to old-fashioned honesty and economy and they with their nearly a quarter of a million majority, and nearly unanimous vote in both branches of the Legislature felt that they held high commission from the people to riot in profligacy and to divide all the public plunder in sight among the laborers in the party vineyard.—Phila. Times.

Snakes and Cyclers.

New Danger Threatening Wheelmen on Country Roads—Chased by a Big Black Racer Riding Into Town With a Rattler Hanging Onto the Wheel—Using a Hoopsnake to Repair a Tire.

Up in the New Hartford country last August says the New York Sun, a bicycle rider saw what he supposed was a long black stick in the road, and thought he would run over it and see if it would break in two. Just as he got near it raised a head and a long tongue darted out. The wheelman turned quick as a flash and grazed the snake, evidently injuring it just a little. He saw the snake gather itself for a spring and then he put on full steam. It was down grade, fortunately, for nearly two miles. The snake put after that man and evidently was preparing to coil itself about the wheel and have a fight. It meant a bad spill, anyway, if the snake reached him. The rider soon saw the snake was taking to the side of the road, skimming along over the fences, and as long as it followed that plan he felt easier. Those who saw him come pumping into the village, two and a half miles away, exhausted and almost foaming, knew that something had happened. He was too breathless to speak at first, and pointed to the cloud of dust, which had not yet settled, as evidence of his speed.

CAUGHT A RATTLESNAKE.

The incident started some stories, and one old resident of New Hartford, a famous old place for men of leisure and varying prosperity, but with lots of yarns to spin, shifted his tobacco for a minute and said:

"Now, mind you, I didn't see this because I can't ride one of them infernal things, but my cousin Jim, up in Tolland county's got a boy Fred who rides one of them, and Jim told me about an experience Fred had one day last summer. He was riding along a country road and soon ran across a rattler. He knew there was going to be trouble and tried to get by the snake before it could spring at him. He was going like a streak but the snake saw the game and made a terrific jump. It landed full against the tire of the hind wheel. Out came its fangs as it struck, and Fred saw the flash of compressed air that told him that his tire had been punctured. To his surprise the snake took a fresh hold, and as the wheel revolved it seemed to bend the snake's fangs so that it could not get them out. The fangs stopped the puncture, and Fred, who was scared to death, put all his speed on so the snake should not get mixed up with the spokes.

ALARMED BY THE RATTLES.

"He went so fast that he kept the snake extended all the time, and as he whizzed along the snake would strike the ground at every revolution, and its life was soon knocked out of it. It kept on flying around just the same, and Fred didn't get over his scare. The farmer in their wagon saw a wild boy tearing down the road, and what looked like a big rope flying along beside him, but he wouldn't stop. As he passed them they heard the rattles of the snake, and then they knew what was the matter. He didn't need any bell to warn the folks to get out of the way.

"Several of the farmers turned around and reared into town with him, and it was a mighty interesting show. The people didn't know what to make of it as Fred and the teams came chasing into town. When they all reached the tavern—Fred was there first, you bet—they were surprised to find that Fred had fainted, as he dashed up, and he and the wheel and the snake were all mixed up in the road. Fred seemed as dead as the snake at first, but he soon came to and was able to count the rattles with the others. There were just ten of 'em, not counting the button. Fred now rides about town most of the time."

The effect of this story was marked long before it was finished upon another old resident. It was evident that he was going to add something of moment to the stock of anecdotes that he had been spinning at the tavern for nearly 40 years. He moved uneasily in his chair, tilted it back and let it down several times, shifted about as he did so, and several times cleared his throat. The minute that the story of Fred's adventure was finished he began:

ENCOUNTER WITH A HOOP SNAKE.

"That was mighty exciting, but it don't come up to an experience a young friend of mine had up Winsted way. He could ride like the wind, and one day he looked up from his wheel and saw the strangest sort of thing he had ever heard of coming toward him. At first he thought it was the front wheel of a bicycle coming along lickity-split in the road all by itself. He pinched himself to see if he was dreaming, and found he was awake all right. He never heard of a bicycle ghost, but here was something that looked as if a wheel had become bewitched and had run away.

"It was coming straight toward him, too. He couldn't dodge it, either. He turned this way and that, and it headed right straight at him. He was going too fast to jump off and collision followed. Just before they struck that haunted wheel uncoiled itself and then the boy saw it was a hoop snake. Its tail left its mouth and struck the boy's front wheel. The collision threw him all in a heap. The wind all came out of the tire and just as the boy was wondering whether the snake would finish him next, he also saw that the snake was fastened securely to the tire. He saw that the snake had coiled itself about the wheel and filled out the flattened tire and, do you know, he just rode into town using that snake as tire for his front wheel and it did pretty well, too."

Miss Agnes Kerr, of Tionesta, has been appointed superintendent of the public schools of Forest county by Superintendent Schaefer, to succeed her brother, who died May 10. There are two other women county superintendents in the State, Ella Herrick, of Cameron county, and Anna Bodler, of Potter.

Governor Hastings may not call the members of the legislature back for an extra session, but their constituents will, with hardly a doubt, call them down for their extraordinary doings.

Colima's Fiery Craters.

Unusual Volcanic Activity in Old Mexico.

A Colima, Mex., correspondent writes to the San Francisco Examiner as follows: The eruption of the volcano of Colima, now in progress, is one of the most interesting and awe-inspiring seismic disturbances which have occurred during the present century in Mexico. Since the great outbreak of 1885 and 1886 the mountain, which has dealt death and destruction through the centuries from its double maw, has been in a state of almost complete quiet, but now it has burst forth again in its fury, and the whole country around is in a state of terror. The explosions occur throughout the days and nights at intervals of but a few minutes; writhing serps of flames shoot out of the craters to great heights in the smoke-shrouded atmosphere; mountains of vapor are pushed up by the furnace heats within and drift off toward the sea like icebergs of the air, while showers of dust are falling for many miles around. Shifting winds bear the volcanic dust to powder the lands for hundreds of miles, and for long distances out to sea, as a tribute from the under earth to the great waters of the Pacific.

It is not known how many lives have thus far been lost, but, as is usual with the outbreaks of Colima, there have been sacrifices. Most of these have doubtless been silently buried by the ashes, but one body has been found, burned to carbon and hardly recognizable as human, from the fierceness of the heat which had overtaken the victim before he could flee the enveloping danger.

The vibrations of the earth are felt to Manzanillo, on the Pacific coast, and as far east as the city of Guadalajara, or over a territory of 125 miles square. Several sharp earthquake shocks have occurred, and done some damage, but, fortunately, the tremors have not as yet been sufficiently strong to cause the frightful slaughter which still make the people of the Pacific coast country shudder in their recital.

The present disturbance began over two weeks ago, when unusual columns of smoke were noticed from this city ascending from the main crater of the volcano. As this is no very unusual occurrence, it caused little remark, although the late series of earthquakes which have visited the central plateau of Mexico, and been attended with large loss of life and property, have long made the people of this district apprehensive of impending danger from the dreaded Colima and its near neighbor, the awful Jorullo.

Word has reached the city of the outbreak of a new volcano in the territory of Tepic, a league from the town of Jalisco. What has always been supposed to be merely a butte has suddenly burst forth into a mountain of fury, from the crater of which ascend smoke and vapor, and down the sides of which stream floods of fiery lava.

The new volcano of Jalisco merely adds another link to the volcanic chain which stretches clear across Mexico from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific, and includes the famous vents of Orizaba, Perote, Popocatepeti, Iztaccihuatl, Toluca, Colima, Jorullo, the island volcano of the Revillagigedo, off the coast of Lower California, and other less noted craters. Geologists suppose that a great rent stretches across Central Mexico, or that, more properly speaking, an earth-belting fissure along which are located many of the most famous of the world's volcanoes, passes through this country. Sure it is that all the Mexican burning mountains have a sympathetic connection, as signs of disturbance in one part of the volcanic chain are almost certain to make themselves shortly felt in another.

Miss Maggie Jackson, of Barre, Vt., writes: "I was lying sick for some time with female complaints, and all the medicine my friends gave me did me no good. Death was approaching; all my friends had given me up to die. I heard of your wonderful medicine, and I bought two bottles of it, and before I had taken the last, I got entirely well. I am still enjoying good health, and expect to praise your medicine every where I go."

Gratitude is a short cut to sincere and lasting friendship. Some people complain that they have no friends. Have they never had a favor done them? Why, every man has had a score of favors done him every day of his life! Those who bear it in mind, who say a word of hearty thanks, who watch a chance to do a favor in return, never lack friends.

"I have two little grand children who are teething this hot summer weather and are troubled with bowel complaint. I give them Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and it acts like a charm. I recommend it for children with bowel troubles. I was myself taken with a severe attack of bloody flux, with cramps and pains in my stomach, one-third of a bottle of this remedy cured me. Within twenty-four hours I was out of bed and doing my house work." Mrs. W. L. Dunagan, Bon-aqua, Hickman Co., Tenn. For sale by F. P. Green.

Tours in the North via Pennsylvania Railroad.

To provide the most attractive method of spending a summer holiday, the Pennsylvania Railroad company has arranged to run two delightful tours to the North. The points included in the itinerary and the country traversed abound in nature's beauties. Magnificent scenery begins with the journey and ends only with its completion.

The names of the places to be visited are familiar to all and suggestive of wonderland. No matter how much may be expected, one cannot be disappointed in Watkins's Glen, Niagara Falls, Thousand Islands, Quebec, Montreal, Au Sable Chasm, Lakes Champlain and George, Saratoga, or the Highlands of the Hudson. The dates fixed for the departure of these two tours are July 16 and Aug. 20, and the round-trip rate of $100 from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, Baltimore and Washington will cover all necessary expense during the time absent. A beautiful descriptive itinerary can be procured from the tourist department of the Pennsylvania Railroad, 1196 Broadway, New York, or Room 411, Broad street station, Philadelphia.

Tomato Salad.

Prepare three large smooth tomatoes, put on ice to get cold; take the yolks of two (2) hard boiled eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, the same of mustard, a little red and black pepper, two teaspoonfuls of olive oil. Mix all together until smooth, then add slowly, enough vinegar to make like thick cream. When ready to serve slice tomatoes and pour the dressing over them, cut the whites of the eggs in rings and put on the tomatoes, it makes a very pretty as well as a palatable dish, for supper. Melted butter can be used instead of oil.

He—Congratulations, Miss Bella. In a few days Miss Goldwaite will be mine.

She—I'm glad to hear it; but I didn't know you were—

He—Of course you didn't, nor any one else. Didn't want any competition, see. But it's all fixed now. She'll be worth $10,000 a year to me.

She—Really. The name's unfamiliar. New York family.

He—No; Kentucky family, and one of the best. Sired by Bang Up, dam Queen Elizabeth—why, you must remember her. She made 213 last season and not half trained at that.

She—Oh! You are talking about a horrid horse!

A vein of fine white clay has been discovered near Phillipsburg that is likely to become a bonanza to the finders as well as the whole community. The clay has been tested and burned and is pronounced by experts to be the same clay that is used in making the fine white stoneware produced at the famous potteries at Akron, Ohio. A potter from Akron was at the "burg" last week and, after looking at the vein he said it is better than a gold mine.

The first Japanese Christian church in America was dedicated in San Francisco last week. It belongs to the Methodist denomination, and has about three hundred members, who contributed largely toward the building of the edifice. The assistant minister and the organist are Japanese, and the church organization will be managed by the Japanese members, with very little help or interference by Caucasians.

Miss Mary M. Haskell, of Minneapolis, has just been appointed census taker for Cass county, Minn. The population of her district is widely scattered, and the trip will have to be made on horseback. There are many Indians in the country, some of whom have to be enumerated. On the whole, the undertaking is a decidedly formidable one.

Tact is the life of the five senses. It is the open eye, the quick ear, the judging taste, the keen smell, and the lively touch. Talent is power, tact is skill; talent is weight, tact, momentum; talent knows what to do, tact how to do it; talent is wealth, tact is ready money.

The first car load of this season's Georgia peaches has just been shipped to New York, in which connection it is reported that the peach crop there this year will be worth $3,000,000. It would be a great time now to march through Georgia.

When the church is wide awake sinners cannot sleep.

Tourists.

Of Interest to Teachers and Their Friends.

On account of the National Educational Association meeting at Denver, Colo., July 5-12, exceptionally low rates have been made, not only to Denver, Colorado Springs, Manitou and Pueblo, but to all points of scenic attraction in Colorado, Utah, and to Pacific Coast points, including Salt Lake, Ogden, Yellowstone National Park, California and Alaska. The Chicago and Northwestern and Union Pacific Railways, forming the Chicago, Union Pacific and Northwestern Line, offer advantages which no other route, or combination of routes can duplicate. With a view to enhancing the interest of the trip, and reducing it to the lowest possible cost, various parties are being formed here and there throughout the Middle and Western States, under the management of officially appointed directors, whose object is to secure for the teachers and their friends, an attractive outing at the lowest cost.

For interesting details regarding the special train excursion that is being formed for the teachers of Pennsylvania, address Dr. E. Oram Lyte, Millersville, Lancaster Co., Pa.; T. P. Valle, 112 So. 4th St. Philadelphia, Pa.; H. A. Gross, 423 Broadway, New York City.

Tourists.

Are You Going?

The tickets to Denver, Col., and return for the meeting of the National Educational Association will be on sale July 3rd, 4th and 5th at rate of one standard fare, with two dollars added, for the round trip. Teachers and others that intend taking advantage of the low rates can have sleeping car reservation made in advance and get full information as to cost of side trips to the principal points of interest throughout Colorado and Utah.

Reduced rates by addressing John R. Pott, District Passenger Agent Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, Williamsport, Pa., 40-15-st.
