How to Become a Runner. One of the Most Healthful Exercises a Boy Can Take Up.

Running is one of the best exercises for the whole body. It rounds out a hollow chest, drives the oxygen into the farthest air-cells of the lungs, wonderfully increases their capacity, and develops the leg, thigh, stomach, and waist muscles. But it must be learned just as skating, swimming, and bicycling have to be learned, and there are two things that must be kept in mind by the learner. The first is whether in sprinting, distance, or cross-country running—to run entirely on the ball of the foot, or, as they say on the track, "Get up on your toes!" By striking on the ball of the foot, the runner takes a longer stride, and the spring that he gets enables him to lift his foot more rapidly and repeat the stride more quickly than the runner who goes flat-footed. As length and rapidity of stride are what give speed in running, it follows that a flat-footed runner can never be a fast one. Another reason against pounding away flat-footed is that the delicate mechanism of the ankle, knee, and hip is jarred and may in time be injured.

The second point for a runner to observe is his method of breathing. Breathe through both nose and mouth. Nearly every boy when he first begins to run has the insane idea that all the breathing must be done through the nose. There was never a greater mistake. When a boy runs his heart beats much faster than it does ordinarily, and pumps out just so much more blood. All this must be aerated or purified by air from the lungs. The impression that one feels when beginning to run is due to the lungs demanding more air for the extra quantity of blood which the heart is sending out. Nature has looked out for this and provided a way by which air can be furnished to the lungs very rapidly. It is a very simple way, and consists of merely opening the mouth. Breathe, then, through the nose in ordinary life—as much as possible, but when you are running or exercising violently open the mouth and take in air in deep, rapid breaths, not gulping it in through the mouth alone, but letting the mouth and nose have each their share.

Take as long a stride as possible, but without overbalancing the body. Bend the body slightly from the hips, for if it be held too erect the stride will be shortened. Let the bent arms swing easily and naturally a little above the level of the hips, swinging out and back with every stride. This keeps the muscles loose, prevents them from becoming tired so easily as they would if held rigid, and balances the body better. Take special pains to keep the body from being stiff; let it swing easily and lightly, as possible. In sprinting the stride is shorter and more rapid than in long distance running, and a sprinter usually runs with body thrown farther back, in quite different form from the long, easy lope of the distance runner. —July St. Nicholas.

Pennsylvania at Atlanta. The Governor's proclamation to the citizens of this Commonwealth, in which he calls upon them to make as brave a show as possible at the forthcoming Cotton State and International Exposition, should elicit a widespread and hearty response. In one sense, the people of this patriotic State should exert themselves in the high spirit of amity toward a sister State. In another respect, it is only befitting the leading Commonwealth of the Union in manufactures, mining and agriculture—the true Empire State—that it should be splendidly represented in all its magnificent natural and industrial riches and energy at the signally notable celebration of the Gulf region. Philadelphia has already assured the most inspiring exhibit of Pennsylvania's patriotic association by consenting to the pilgrimage to Atlanta of the old Liberty bell. As one of the thirteen original States, Georgia has a peculiar claim to the visit of this greatest relic of the days of '76. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will also be admirably represented in her special Commission, with its fund of $88,000. The Pennsylvania State Building will remain, too, upon its Exposition site as a permanent testimonial to the fellowship between the Keystone State and the Empire State of the South. But it behoves the great planters and miners and well-owners of this richly dowered region, and nationally famous merchants and captains of industry to reproduce in miniature at Atlanta a picture of her modern commercial and productive grandeur. Expositions are the most profitable of business educators; and Philadelphia and Pennsylvania owe it to themselves to make a showing at the Cotton States Exposition which shall be second to that of no other city or Commonwealth in the Union.—Phila. Record.

Holmes Blamed for More Murders. CHICAGO, July 21.—To the long list of murders and other crimes directly traceable to the arch-detective H. H. Holmes, must now be added the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. I. L. Connor and her 12-year-old daughter, with a reasonable certainty that they may have been disposed of in the same manner in which the rest of his victims met their death. Mrs. Connor and her child were last seen in the company of Holmes in this city in 1893. Since then all trace of them has been lost. The woman was Holmes's mistress and knew many of his secrets. The rib-like fragments found in the ashes under the stove in the room of the Holmes house on Sixty-third street and supposed to be the remains of the two missing Williams girls were subjected to a chemical test and pronounced to be bits of fire clay.

For and About Women.

A woman has just been appointed Assistant City Treasurer of Bangor, Me.

How much luggage you must take when going on a visit depends on the length of the visit and the number of engagements it will include. As a rule, in our changeable climate you will need, in going away from home, something thick and something thin. A trunk is a great comfort, though one can manage with a large bag or a telescope, while a man's suit-case lends itself finely to the folding of a girl's gown. With two or three pretty shirt-waists and a warm stuff costume of serge or flannel for cool or rainy mornings, a girl will be supplied for every needful requirement. One's own dainty home wardrobe is sufficient for a visit, and if the sailor hat be trim, the shoes and gloves in order, and the girl carry herself gracefully, nobody will think a second time about her dress.

As soon as possible after a journey lay aside your traveling dress, and make a fresh toilette before joining the family. Try to ascertain the family habits, and conform to them. The wash shirt waist of the new near future shows but little variation upon the former type. It is noticeable, however, that thin goods have invaded the field long sacred to linen and chevot. Dimity, Swiss and French batiste are some of the newest materials pressed into service. No very artistic but apparently popular fashion appears to be the attachment of white linen cuffs and collar to any shirt, whatever its color, pattern or material. The collars of many of the new shirts show a relapse into the once prevalent Piccadilly. The most striking novelties in this sort of garment are the thin checks, that in both dark and light-colored gingham are a clever reproduction of the small checked silks so much worn during the winter.

Gowns of Irish linen have reached the high distinction this summer of being combined with satin and costly silks. The imported Irish linen gowns are much the vogue. Many of them are made with embroidered seams, and among the most stylish are those combined with black satin and jet.

A fetching gown, where Irish linen is introduced, is the entire skirt of the material. It is unlined in the front, but conspicuously stiffened at the back. With the skirt is worn a silk jacket of light brown taffeta, scattered with pink rosebuds. It has revers of generous dimensions, outlined with a spangled trimmings in gold and brown. The gauntlet cuffs are edged with the same glistening trimming. An adjustable front of white mousseline de soie completes the costume. The front may be varied according to the fancy of the wearer. With this gown a full front of dark brown chiffon, rippling with frills of yellow Valenciennes lace, is most charming.

A new evening gown is a simple frock, made of white India lawn, scattered with an indistinct design in green. The skirt is plain, old-fashioned style and unlined. The bodice is of white lawn and has somewhat the effect of a folded kerchief, though it is outlined with a tiny field of faint green mousseline. There is a yoke of white mousseline which is adjustable so that on occasions the bodice may appear low-necked. Bands of green ribbon are used to form the bustle-work corset. They match in color the design in the skirt. The sleeves of white lawn, with numberless rows of shirring, slope well of the shoulders. It fits the arm closely for a few inches and then becomes dilated with a huge puff which ends just below the elbow. This style of gown would be particularly becoming to a broad shouldered miss, whose age and fresh young beauty would venture this quaint, old-fashioned style of garment, but if your mirror reflected a thin wan face and a few hollows around the eyes and about the cheeks do not adopt the style.

The subject of sleeves is an inexhaustible one, and not to be described, but seen and admired. They are draped harmoniously, gracefully, and, one might almost say, poetically, in flowing folds or coquettish puffs. One of the prettiest sleeves is arranged at the neck and entirely hides the shoulder seam. A fashionable shape is cut with a plain cap at the top, or the stuff is pleated up close, and the fullness drawn down in that way toward the elbow where it is always caught together, and fits then tight to the arm. Blouse and bishop sleeves are reserved for morning dresses, traveling and indoor costumes and smart blouse of silk or fine woolen; they are made immensely wide and long on the latter, and end in a turned back cuff, or a band.

To make the sailor hat of greater value to the summer wardrobe it is necessary to have several ribbon bands to match the various frocks. This is the clever idea of a young belle who is always well gowned, and who does this at a small expense. For instance, with a pure white toilet of duck white sailor hat, with a white band is correct, and with a pale or dark blue it is the same rule of fashion which applies. This changing of the band makes it appear as though it were a new hat, whereas the cost of the band is a small expense. Make the band with a piece of elastic inside of it, so that it will slip over the crown of the hat easily. The narrow corded ribbon is now most in vogue.

Miss Rebecca Ming, of Mendham, N. J., is in her 87th year, and has never been attended by a physician.

Simplicity seems to be the key notes of gowns this season. But what deceptive simplicity! A gown of organdy, or batiste, or fine lawn, is not such an inexpensive affair when one considers the silk lining over which it is made, and the lace, ribbon and other accessories which trim it. With what care also must the gown be made. The village maid, who originated this fad by capturing the hearts of men with her simple gowns, found her dresses easily put together. But the simple gown as it has been evolved, must have a skirt which hangs to perfection and a bodice which fits as one of broadcloth would.

Plain, flaring skirtings are finished with a broad hem, or a flounce, edged with narrow Valenciennes lace. The bodices are of lace or embroidery, enhanced with ribbon bows.

Filled Her Limbs with Needles.

CINCINNATI, July 21.—Nellie Thomas, aged 18, was taken to the city hospital last evening from the Convent of the Good Shepherd. She seemed to be suffering from swollen feet, which the examining physician at first attributed to a needle noticed protruding from the flesh. Close examination disclosed other needles and on being questioned the girl confessed that for a penance she had forced the needles into her flesh. Over forty needles were taken from her legs by the physicians. She said she had been doing penance of her free will for over two years.

The Cleveland Baby's Name. Nearly 6000 Persons Guessed at it and Failed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 20.—Shortly after the birth of the third daughter to President and Mrs. Cleveland, the News of this city offered a prize to the person guessing the name to be given the baby. The result was announced to-day. Five thousand nine hundred and thirty people guessed 44 different names, but not one named Marion. The nearest to it was Miriam. Naomi was the most popular, 890 naming that.

BYRON'S SHRINE. "Shrine of the mighty I can't be." "That this is all remains of thee" —Byron.

See a woman once rosy and bright, fair and beautiful, light of heart, quick of step, dulcet in tones, the very light and life of the house, and you see a picture that might be called a bit of Paradise. See that same woman worn by disease, pale and haggard, heavy of heart, speaking seldom, casting a shadow of gloom throughout the house by her presence, and you have a picture of Paradise Lost. Alas, she suffers from the ills that thousands of a woman know. Tell her that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a certain cure for feminine weakness and derangement, it will restore health and good spirits and make her once more, a blessing to her family and the world.

DR. R. V. PIERCE'S DEAR SIR.—For some six or seven years my wife had been an invalid. Becoming convinced that it was her only hope, we bought six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and "Golden Medical Discovery." To the surprise of the community and the joy of myself and family, in one week my wife commenced to improve, and long before she had taken the last bottle she was able to do her own work (she had not been able to do it before for seven years), and when she had taken the last of the medicine she was soundly cured. Yours truly, REV. T. H. SIMPSON.

A new kind of smokeless coal is being mined along the line of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad. It has been tried as fuel on locomotives, on a number of roads, and gave excellent results.

I used Ely's Cream Balm for catarrh and have received great benefit. I believe it a safe and certain cure. Very pleasant to take.—Wm. Frazer, Rochester, N. Y.

Price of Cream Balm is fifty cents. "Miss Nelson complained that she talked to her of nothing but the weather." "Well, that's all we had in common."

THAT TIRED FEELING—Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for such a condition, and also for that weakness which prevails at the change of season, climate or life.
