Great Forest Fires.
 A great many of the waste and desolate lands in Asia and Africa were once fruitful, and supported dense populations. But as the forests were destroyed and no attention given to replanting and renewing the wooded growths the lands became sterile, the rainfall precarious and population sparse. Similar results must follow in America if we shall persist in making it a forestless continent. The destructive fires in New Jersey and the often recurring fires in the mountainous regions of Pennsylvania and other States on the Atlantic coast are constant reminders of the heedless and headlong speed with which we are destroying the forests which yet reminds us. What the lumbermen, the tanners, the farmers and the railroads have spared is given over to the haphazard of incendiary, accidental or careless ravages by fire. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost every year in direct damage. The indirect and prospective damage is incalculable.

But the fires in the wooded regions of the Atlantic and Lake States, bad as they are, are but insignificant as compared with the awful destruction in the heavily timbered regions of the Pacific States. The fires in the States of Washington and Oregon have been so extensive this year as to cover the whole coast region with a pall of smoke, excluding the light of the sun. Millions of dollars have been lost, and the most magnificent forests in the world decimated. Foreign observers who appreciate the value of this great timber region stand amazed at the reckless waste and the wanton indifference with which it is observed alike by the immediately interested populations and by the State and Federal authorities. Professor Runnells, of Berlin, sent by the German Government to make an examination of the famed timber lands of the Pacific coast, is reported by the New York Mail and Express as saying:

Over in Europe we are trying to make trees grow; we have schools to teach our people how to grow trees. We are doing everything we can to preserve the life of our forests—for we know it is the life of our people. Here you do not seem to care for the splendid patrimony which God has given you. You burn out your forests to make railroads and to "clear" land—as if you had not naked land enough on your broad prairies. You destroy the young trees—the rightful heritage of future generations—instead of taking your timber from these old conifers of the forest who have been growing and waiting for centuries for the service of man. In a few years you will destroy your forests. Then you will come to Europe for building materials.

I mean it quite seriously. America will literally destroy her forests within a comparatively short time if the recklessness and selfish greed of a few individuals be not checked. You should police your forests, no matter at what cost; you should have severe laws against these depredations; you should have adequate restrictions in the cutting of timber. The world would not be a hardship at all, for you have plenty of timber to supply the commercial needs of the entire world without wanton destruction of the young trees. With sense and prudence you have the world at your feet. But if nothing is done by your Government you may live to see coals carried to New Zealand and shipped to Germany from Puget Sound.

It does not need any warning from over the sea to warn us of the consequences of our fully in burning up our heritage of noble forests. We are bringing on the aridity of treeless countries as fast as we can.

Crowded Out.
 The traveler shaded his eyes with his hand and looked anxiously about him. "Is there a man in the village," I asked who can shoe a horse?" "Yes sir," said a boy in the crowd "but he's busy mending a horseless carriage, and there's six broken bicycles ahead of you besides. You'd better go to the next town, mister!"

—The panic has gone. The county is entering on a period of prosperity. The experience of the past two years has been a severe one to men who depend on their salaries. It has taught a valuable lesson to those who will learn. The American is not so thrifty as he should be. He will work hard all week to get some money and then spend that money for things that are largely valueless to him. The majority of the people of this country earn enough money to save considerable of it, and make it earn them something after a little is accumulated. But instead of saving what they might, the surplus goes for the silliest frivolities.

If you make known of things that he buys that afford him no satisfaction when bought. If the man who earns but two dollars a day could have the case presented to him so that he would see half a day's hard work represented in each dollar that he lets go he might hang more tightly to his money. Or, if he could realize that a dollar invested in a saving bank or a local building and loan association, would in time, help to earn more dollars for him he might try accumulating some money. The greatest value of money saved is that it earns more money.

Had workingmen learned to buy only such things as are of use to them, and to save a little money each week the pan would have brought them less suffering. Had each been provided with a little reserve fund to procure his supplies, trade would not have fallen off so, nor want stalked abroad as it did. Few men need to be poor. The man who works and is economical has it in his power to gather a competence by the time he reaches an age to old to work with comfort. But it is by with economy too. Poor Richard's maxim of spending less each day than is earned, is the only way to make the hide-bound pocketbook thrive. That will do it and with returning prosperity now is a good time to begin its practice, that such another period of crisis is just ended may never again recur.

Story of John Hunter.
 John Hunter was one of the rudest men of his age. He returned home late one evening from his round of professional calls and found his wife entertaining a lot of friends. Grimly he walked into the center of the room, stopped and looked around. "I knew nothing of this kick-up," he said, "and ought to have been informed. As I have returned home for the purpose of studying I hope the present company will retire at once." They retired.

Good for Rheumatism.
 Here is a story connected with Bishop Baring. An old man in a certain parish was in the habit of annually presenting himself for confirmation. The age of the man made him conspicuous and at length the Bishop ventured to suggest that he seemed to have met the man at confirmation before. "Yes," said the man, "but pray, my lord, take notice; he says it is the finest remedy for rheumatism that he has met with."

FOR SICKNESS GET THE BEST.—Old Choice White from Speer's vineyards, Passate. The rich Port Grape, the Claret, vin 1881, the Burgundy and Unfermented are unexcelled for entertainments, family use and invalids. One bottle of Speer's is worth three of California wine.

—Mrs. Fogg—Then there was a man who recited a poem or made up. I couldn't for the life of me make out what, but he was tremendously applauded. Mr. Fogg—Evidently one of our most talented elocutionists.

—Quay—Tired, dear?
 Hastings—Yes, Matthew?
 Quay—Come, rest your weary head on my shoulder.
 Voice—O-o-o-h, mamma!

—The Mexican owl when enjoying a siesta, puts itself under the guard of a kind of rat, which gives the alarm on the approach of danger.

HER OBJECTIONS.—
 O maiden, thou art passing fair;
 No charms with thine are worth comparing
 I love thee, yes, I love thee,
 Said she, "I much object to swearing."
 O, from my suit, love do not shrink,
 The last remains of thy fond friend—
 Intoxicating love-draughts drink—
 Said she, "I hate intoxication."
 If thou reject, my race shall end
 Beneath the turf the earth embracing,
 The last remains of thy fond friend—
 Said she, "I hate the turf and racing."
 But if he had taken with him as a present, a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, he would have been more successful in his suit. She doubtless owed many of the charms which captivated him to its virtues. For brightening woman's eyes, and giving her that healthy look so much admired by the opposite sex, it has no equal. Guaranteed to cure or benefit in all cases of "Female Weakness," irregularity, painful periods and kindred ailments, or money paid for it returned.

—The enormous sales of bicycles this year represent an expenditure by the people of between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000. They are not used exclusively for pleasure, however, as many business and professional men employ them instead of horses, and thousands of clerks and bookkeepers save car fares by riding on them to and from their offices. The only drawback to their use for this purpose is the lack of storage facilities for bicycles in business houses.

—The Mount Lebanon Shakers have recently perfected an ingenious cure for dyspepsia. Their Digestive Cordial consists of a food already digested and a digester of foods happily combined. The importance of this invention will be appreciated when we realize what a proportion of the community are victims of some form of stomach trouble. Thousands of pale, thin people have little inclination to eat, and what they do eat causes them pain and distress. This Digestive Cordial of the Shakers corrects any stomach derangement at once. It makes thin people plump. Every one will be greatly interested to read the little book which has been placed in the hands of druggists for free distribution.

What is Laxol? Nothing but Castor Oil made as palatable as honey. Children like it.

—Some time ago certain newspapers in the West were turned over to the women to be run by them entirely in aid of some public object. Now it appears that in Bay City, Michigan, the street cars were recently turned over to the women who acted as conductors. All the fares collected were to be handed over to the Masonic building fund. So fascinating were these fair "conductresses" that in many cases susceptible bachelor passengers paid the fare several times on a single trip.

A TIMELY REMINDER.—Each season forces upon our consideration its own peculiar perils to health. The advent of fall finds many people in strength and vigor, poorly prepared to continue the business of life. The stomach and bowels, the great highway of animal economy, is especially liable to disorder in the fall. The nervous system has also suffered in the struggle. Typhoid fever and malaria in particular find in the fall that combination of earth, air and water that mark this season as especially dangerous. The falling leaves, the decaying vegetables contribute their share of contamination. Hood's Sarsaparilla furnishes a most valuable safeguard at these important points, and should be used in the fall before serious sickness has laid you low.

—The law of self-defense as just defined by the supreme court of the United States is to this effect: That if a man assailed on his own ground by one who he has reason to believe intends to do him bodily harm, he is not under the obligation to retreat, but may defend himself where he stands, and is within his right if in that defense he kills his assailant.

"NOTHING VENTURE, NOTHING HAVE."—Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement, "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont.
 It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and is worth its weight in gold. I can see Ely's Cream Balm with safety and does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

—A lie is often told without saying a word, by putting the rotten apples in the bottom of the basket.

Medical.
WEAK AND LANGUID
 "Our little Katharine, when but 3 1/2 years old, had whooping cough. She was attended by leading physicians, but did not get well. She lingered along from day to day, poor, weak and languid. She could scarcely eat anything. Her flesh was soft and sallow. She was slow, dull and without ambition. I therefore decided to give her Hood's Sarsaparilla. She soon began to crawl, coming in from that time on. From that time on she steadily improved and today she is in the full enjoyment of good health. Her flesh is solid, her cheeks rosy, appetite good and her sleep sound and refreshing. She is full of life and as mischievous as she can be." Mrs. M. A. Cook, 31 Fulton St., Peabody, Mass.
