

Last Saturday afternoon the comfortable home of Frank Bowersox, our next county treasurer, was aglow with light and happiness, the occasion being the marriage reception of his son Edgar and bride. An elegant supper was served and an excellent time enjoyed.

Miss Clara C. Walker, of Fairbrook, has returned from an extended visit in Virginia, where she was the guest of her sister Mrs. Henry Myers. Miss Clara is a close observer and her description of some of the battle fields and historical points of the Old Dominion is most entertaining.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday at the home of Capt. D. S. Erb at Struble's, when the marriage of Miss Arville Bloom and James Benton Heberling was solemnized by the Rev. C. T. Aikens. Just at noon the bridal party consisting of the bride and groom, the maid of honor, Miss Ada Sauserman, and the best man, H. M. Krebs, came into the reception room, where the ceremony was said in the presence of the immediate friends of both families. After the excellent wedding breakfast, the young people left on the 2:15 train for a visit in McKean Co. The groom is our obliging and energetic furniture man and is well deserving of his fair bride, who is well fitted for a companion and helpmate. To them we extend our heartiest congratulations.

THE BOALSBURG LODGE.—Last Saturday was a red letter day for the Boalsburg Odd Fellows inasmuch as they installed their new officers and dedicated their new rooms, which are on the second floor of Weber's new building. The hall is 32x22 feet with a reception and ante rooms. They are carpeted throughout with the best Brussels. Lighted by two chandeliers of six lights each. Furnished with a full set of oak chair cushioned in leather. It is indeed a comfortable and commodious lodge room. C. H. Evey did the carpenter work and F. W. Weber found the furniture and fixtures. The furnishing committee displayed excellent taste and all the committees deserve credit for their excellent work and results.

At the appointed hour Brother Brislin of the Centre Hall Lodge presided at the installation of the following officers, N. G. Chas. Kuhn; V. G. George Stone; A. S. Sec. Harry Bailey; Pres. Sec. J. H. Harris; Treas. D. W. Myers; Conductor, R. B. Harrison; R. S. to N. G. F. W. Weber; L. S. to N. G. David Gingerich; R. S. to V. G. Jas. Regan; L. S. to V. G. Joe. Page; R. S. J. John Roop; L. S. S. John Bohn; chaplain, J. F. Myers; representative to P. W. Ishler. Representatives from State College, Penns Valley, and Centre Hall Lodges were present to take part in the first service in the new hall and it was not until the late hours of the night that they bade each other adieu well pleased with the good fellowship extended by the Boalsburg boys.

Stormstown Statements.
Mr. Hamer Whippo, a black smith who moved from Huntingdon county to this town, last spring, has concluded to quit this place and expects to locate at Roanoke, Va.

Lyon & Co. of Bellefonte has had a man for a couple of days through this end of the county posting up bills headed, "Winter is Coming." There is no doubt but Meyer's intentions were to do us all a favor by telling us that winter is coming, but the people all knew it.

Last Friday Bob Gray and C. W. Hunter took a drive through Taylor township. Some people said that they were out electioneering, others thought that they had gone into the cattle business, but in the writer's opinion they were hunting the Belle of Anderson county.

The Republicans of this township have put George W. Fisher in training for the office of Register. No one doubts Mr. Fisher's ability to fill the office, and should he succeed in being nominated when the time comes, that good old grey headed Sam Rumberger will give him such a set back that he will think thunder and lightning has struck him.

Some of the School Board of this township borrowed the WATCHMAN from their neighbors last week, read the communication from this township and looked wise. The opinion of the writer is that the school board is trying to make a corner in thistle seeds, as a wagon load of ripe thistles are piled up against the lower school house. Persons needing seed need not be afraid to buy as the stock was perfectly ripe when cut. If they are able to dispose of this seed to a good advantage they expect to be able to get the township out of debt, and if the market is not favorable, they will plant the seed and raise more Republican school directors.

Books, Magazines Etc.

The November number of Harper's is distinguished by the strength and variety of its fiction. It opens with a brilliant short story by Brander Mathews, called "Men and Women and Horses." This story deals with the annual New York horsemanship, and illustrations, true to the fashionable life represented, have been made for it by W. T. Smedley. In "A Pilgrim on the Gila" Owen Wister tells a tale of politics and highway robbery in Arizona, in which fiction thinly disguises fact. This almost true story, which is a longer and more ambitious work than the author has hitherto attempted, is illustrated by Frederic Remington. Harriet Prescott Spofford gives a vivid picture of Washington life in "A Thanksgiving Breakfast," a tale appropriate to the season. "Plumblossom Bee-bee's Adventure," the second of Julian Ralph's stories of China, relates the unhappy fortunes of the native wife of an English merchant, and C. D. Weldon furnishes characteristic illustrations. Thomas Hardy's serial, "Hearts Inauguration," is completed. "In the Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc," illustrated by F. V. DuMont, we have the story of the first battle in the capture of Orleans. The charm of fiction also pervades "Out of the World at Corinto," an account by Richard Harding Davis of his enforced stay last winter at an unfrequented Central American port. W. D. Howell's recollections of "Literary Boston Thirty Years Ago" include an appreciative view of that New England society which was conscious of possessing national literature. Poutney Bigelow's "The German Struggle for Liberty" tells the story of Napoleon's suicidal invasion of Russia. In "Recent Impressions of Anglo-Indian Life" Edwin Lord Weeks describes with the aid of his own drawings a curious political and social situation as he recently observed it, and gives some timely comment on the silver question in British India. Charles Dudley Warner in the "Editor's Study," discusses a variety of present-day interests, and the "Editor's Drawer" of current humor contains a farce by John Kendrick Buns called "The Bicyclers," with illustrations by Edward Penfield.

The leading article in the November number of The Forum will be a discussion of the third term question by Professor John Bach McMaster, the historian, entitled "The Third-Term Tradition." Mr. McMaster cites the well-known historical precedents against a Presidential third term, and thinks there is no reason to believe that the old-time antipathy to a third term is one whit less strong than it ever was. Mr. McMaster says that while our practice of choosing Presidents, not because of their availability, is in theory all wrong, in practice no harm comes from it; for under our form of government we do not need a President of extraordinary ability; the average man is good enough, and for him two terms is ample. What we want in Mr. McMaster's opinion, is a strong government of the people by the people, not a government of the people by a strong man, and we ought not to tolerate anything which has created the somnolence of heredity. Mr. McMaster counsels the advocates of a third term for Mr. Cleveland to remember the doctrine of the illustrious founder of their party, that "in no office relation be more expedient."
