In the Deep Sea. Robert Louis Stevenson Tells of the Perils of Life Found There.

A further installment of letters written from Samoa by Robert Louis Stevenson to his ward are printed in the February "St. Nicholas." Following is an extract from one. I read the other day something that I thought would interest so great a sea-bather as yourself. You know that the fishes that we see and catch go only a certain depth down into the sea. Below a certain depth there is no life at all. The water is as empty as the air is above a certain height. Even the shells of dead fishes that come down there are crushed into nothing by the huge weight of the water. Lower still, in the places where the sea is profoundly deep, it appears that life begins again. People fish up in dredging buckets loose rags and tatters of creatures that hang together all right down there with the great weight holding them in one, but come all to pieces as they are hauled up. Just what they look like, just what they do or feed upon, we shall never find out. Only that we have some flimsy fellow-creatures down in the very bottom of the deep sea and cannot get them up except in tatters. It must be pretty dark where they live, and there are no plants or weeds and no fish come down there, or drowned sailors, either, from the upper parts, because these are all mashed to pieces by the great weight long before they get so far, or else come to a place where perhaps they float. But I daresay a cannon sometimes comes careering solemnly down, and circling about like a dead leaf or thistle-down, and then the ragged fellows go and play about the cannon and tell themselves all kinds of stories about the fish higher up and their iron houses, and perhaps go inside and sleep, and perhaps dream of it all, like their betters.

Of course you know a cannon down there would be quite light. Even in shallow water, where men go down with a diving dress, they grow so light that they have to hang weights about their necks and have their boots loaded with twenty pounds of lead—as I know to my sorrow. And with all this and the helmet, which is heavy enough of itself to anyone up here in the thin air, they are carried about like gossamers, and have to take every kind of care not to be upset and stood upon their heads. I went down once in the dress, and speak from experience. But if we could get down for a moment near where the fishes are we should be in a tight place. Suppose the water not to crush us (which it would), we should pitch about in every kind of direction. Every step I took would carry us as far as if we had seven-league boots, and we should keep flying head over heels, and top over bottom, like the liveliest clowns in the world.

Cold Wave Warnings.

Chief Moore, of the weather bureau has made a special report to the secretary of agriculture with reference to the actual money value of cold wave warnings to the people of this country. With special reference to the cold wave of January 2 to 5 of the present year. This wave the report says, was of unusual severity, spreading over the entire country east of the Rocky mountains, with the exception of the southern portion of Florida. At every weather bureau station throughout the region the cold wave flag was displayed, and warnings were distributed at least twenty-four hours before the cold wave occurred.

Reports received from 102 stations indicated that these warnings were directly instrumental in saving from destruction property exceeding $3,500,000 in value. The largest saving reported was by owners and shippers of perishable produce. Water pipes were protected in factories, residences and public buildings; the size of trains regulated by train officials, while florists and agriculturists protected their hot houses.

Bethrothals in Holland.

In certain parts of Holland when a young man thinks he loves a girl, he asks her for a match to light his cigar at the door of the beloved one's home. This is done to let the parents know that something is intended, and if the visit is repeated and the same thing occurs no doubt is left in the minds of the girl's parents, and they immediately proceed to investigate the young man's character and antecedents. When he calls the third time they are prepared to give him an answer. If his suit is looked upon favorably, he is given a match. If refused, he produces his own match, lights his cigar and walks away. If a favorable answer is given, he steps forward and joins hands with the girl. While the engagement is by no means a settled fact even at this important stage, it is stated as a truth that if, on the occasion of the young man's third visit, his enamored offers him a second cigar and he smokes it in the house the engagement is never canceled.

A Fortune Shrouded in Mystery.

By the death of a peddler named Divan Butler, which is supposed to have occurred over ten years ago somewhere in the southern states, Divan Butler Etner, of Tyrone, is the heir to his estate, said to be worth $80,000. Butler, who claimed no kin or kin, proposed to Mr. Etner's father that if he would name a son for him he would make that son his heir. That son is D. E. Etner, now past 72 years of age. Nothing definitely of the peddler is known for the past 70 years. Knowledge of his death and the value of his estate are only the meagre sayings of a stranger, when intoxicated, and who would give no details or further information.

Forgiven.

"Aren't you the same beggar that I gave half a pie last week?" "I guess I am, mum; but I'm willing to let bygones be bygones. It ain't in my heart to bear no malice."—Indianapolis Journal.

As England Knows Us.

"But I don't see," I heard one man say, while he knowingly twisted his glass under his eyebrow, "what I can't get is this: I thought there had been a big war between North and South America, and here you see the North sticking up for one of the Southern States. The Yankees are very odd people, I must say." No one seemed to be able to enlighten him, and another chap, in a high collar, took up the running. "Poor devils, they've got no generals. Grant and Lee are too odd, I expect."

One peculiarly intelligent, middle-aged, retired army colonel quietly muttered: "Grant is dead, you idiot." "They've got Stonewall Jackson," suggested a new speaker who had just come into the smoking room. "Who's that?" quickly demanded the ex-colonel. "South America," replied the newcomer. "Why, Stonewall Jackson is a Northern general!" shouted the first young man with the eyeglass. "No fear," from the ex-colonel, with a covert wink. "I'll go a fever on it," said the young man with the eyeglass. "Done," quietly remarked the colonel. "But who'll decide it?" asked several voices. "I will myself," said the colonel. "I said Stonewall Jackson is a Northern general. I say he is not, because he's dead."

Interesting Cullings.

No country in the world can rival Japan in the matter of hot springs. Horseless carriages are described in an edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica issued in 1810. London trained nurses have a club of their own just off the Strand, and it has already 500 members.

No less than 178 of the 700 men in the Philadelphia fire department met with accidents, more or less severe, last year. The sailing tonnage of all countries fell off 360,000 tons last year as compared with 1894, but there was an increase of about 824,000 tons in the steam tonnage.

The "after the theatre" club of the marchioness of Salisbury in London, is a great success, and the most original social departure of the British matron in a long time.

A Hint to Smokers.

Many tobacco smokers consider that little light specks on the wrapper of a cigar indicate a good article. Very few know how those specks get there. If on a hot day, when the sun has been beating down on the tobacco plants, a sudden thunder shower should come and sprinkle the leaves with the elements of rain so common in the clear up, it should then suddenly again, the drops of water on the leaves will act as lenses and concentrate the sun's rays, which burn the little specks upon the tobacco.

The tobacco must be ripe in order that the sun may give this effect. On account of the great selling capacity of this sort of wrapper, these spots are made on the cheaper brands by chemical means.

The American Husband.

His Heroic Endurance In Loss of Home Comforts During the Summer.

A trait peculiar to the American husband that surely entitles him to a niche in the temple of idealism is his heroic endurance of the summer break in the comforts of his home. When June comes, when torrid heat beats upon city pavements and even night's arrival long delayed does, our well-to-do man of affairs spends the departure of his wife and family to some cool and covetable retreat, there to remain until autumn makes town again tolerable in their eyes. For three months or more it may be his lot to remain, when at home and brown hollis, perfumed with antimony paper, in a habitation presided over by a grim and furtive caretaker, who views even the master's approach to his domicile with suspicion. During this ordeal his meals at a club or hotel may become a weariness to the soul; his favorite chairs and lamps and books may be inaccessible; his wardrobe may know scant care.

Such a trial to flesh and temper is made light of by a bachelor fortified with youth and an unsettled habit, but it is serious to the man of middle life who has known better days. The occasion for it—the tax put upon the health of women and children by the prolonged heat of our summers—might be one less habitually considerate and unselfish than the American husband. But this yearly begira from town homes to the country is cheerfully submitted to by thousands pent in cities where affairs of toil confine them, who provide for their families delightful, luxurious or at least comfortable resorts in the mountains or the seashore, in which they themselves can help to share but rarely and for only short experiences.—North American Review.

New York's Tenement Dwellers.

Over 50,000 men, women and children live in the 2,500 or more rear tenements in New York. The average number of persons to each tenement is about 20, but often there are as many as 75 persons crowded into one of these houses. The death rate among children is sometimes as high as 232 in 1,000. The deaths from consumption and kindred diseases are very much greater in the rear tenements than in any other class of houses.

The rear tenements are also fire traps. They are so close to each other that it is very easy for fire to spread from one to another. They are also very difficult of approach by the firemen. They have no fire escapes worthy of the name, and would be death traps in case of a large fire.

All the rear tenements are very old. The law has prohibited their erection for over 10 years. The newly settled districts are almost free from them. One-half of these houses are owned by men and women who live in the front tenements. About one-third are inherited by women, many of whom have inherited the property from fathers and husbands.

FAST LIVING AMERICANS.

We now find people are fast livers, and in nothing is this more observable than in our reckless irregularity as to sleep and diet. We alternately starve and gorge ourselves, doing each in the most irregular and hasty manner, without regard to the nutritive value of the food consumed, or the deleterious effects upon the digestive organs or the terrible tasks imposed upon them at this unreasonable hours. It is little wonder we are a nation of dyspeptics, and prone to constipation, piles, etc. It is to their efficacy as a remedy for those ailments that Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets owe their unparalleled popularity. Good results always follow their use in all cases of derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels.

A few days ago a mad dog bit twelve persons in the village of Turbotville, Lycoming county. He then ran to Watsontown where he bit and mangled two children. The Williamsport Sun says the dog was finally attracted to the barn of Seth T. Michner, a butcher, where he found Mr. Michner, and whom he viciously attacked. The butcher defended himself with a pitch fork and he reached the house. He secured his gun and extended the muzzle through a crack in the door. It was no sooner done than the dog grabbed the muzzle between his teeth, only to have his head nearly blown off by the gun's discharge.

GRAPES WITH HORROROUS CURES.

Old Aunt Rachel, an old and successful nurse, 90 years old, 70 years experience as a nurse and much sought after by hundreds of families, has for years made a Cordial most effective for coughs and colds by the use of grapes and elecampan root and the herb horhound. Public speakers and singers use it. It is performing wonders. Sold by druggists.

The addition of Utah to the galaxy of States makes necessary the addition of another star to the national flag, and the subject is said to be giving the secretaries of war and the navy much perplexity, because it is not an easy matter to make a symmetrical arrangement of 45 stars on the field of the flag. Our wise ancestors did not foresee this difficulty when they ordained that a new star should be added to the flag for every new State, else they would, perhaps, have adopted some arrangement of them elastic enough to admit of successive additions. As it was, with the best intentions in the world, they left a legacy of trouble to their descendants.

GOOD Health is the earnest desire of all who are sick or ailing. Where the complaint has not progressed beyond the reach of medicine, and the condition of the blood is an important factor in the case, as it is in the majority of the ills that flesh is heir to, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes wonders. All sufferers from nervousness, heart palpitation, malarial troubles or catarrh of the stomach should read the straightforward statement of Mr. Stivers below:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Gentlemen:—I feel it a duty to tell of the benefit I have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was born in 1835, and was stout and hearty with the exception of three sick spells, up to 1874. I was then living in southern Illinois in a malarial district. My first trouble was nervousness, palpitation of the heart and that tired feeling. In the hot weather I was troubled with diarrhoea, so weak in that I was not able to work at all through the harvest season. These troubles continued to 1880, when I came to Des Moines county, this State, where I located upon another farm. During this time, I had consulted physicians and taken a different remedies, all of which only relieved me for a short time, when my old complaint would return again. In 1890 I had to take my bed, troubled with catarrh of stomach. The family doctor finally got me up on my feet, but I was far from being well. I was so nervous that I could not get to sleep. After reading my testimonial, I bought Hood's Sarsaparilla, and as they seemed to be given to me honestly, I told my wife I thought I would also try the medicine. At this time, besides not being able to get sleep, I did not have any appetite and my feet and limbs were more or less swollen. I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and had not used half a dozen bottles before my appetite began to improve. After taking three bottles I could eat a hearty meal three times a day. My health improved fast and I was soon able to enjoy sound sleep. The swelling gradually left my feet and limbs and my bowels became regulated. Gradually all my complaints left me, and I could soon do a fair day's work in the field. After taking all of the sixth bottle I felt as well and young as ever, and give all the praise to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Whenever I hear of any one complaining of not feeling well, or being nervous, unable to SLEEP.

I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla. Early in 1894 I contracted a very severe cold, so that I was hardly able to speak above a whisper. This was the means of bringing back symptoms of my old trouble, my sleep was considerably broken up, but I again took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and came out all right again. My old energy returned and I feel ready for work." JOHN H. STIVERS, Mediapolis, Iowa.
