Bellefonte, Pa., May I, 1896. For Pattison and Why.

The local Democratic convention in declaring in favor of the nomination of ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison by the Chi-cago convention undoubtedly represented the well-considered judgment of the peo-1. Students taught original study with the microscope. 3. CHEMISTRY with an unusually for thoroughly and giving judgment on the basis of facts and principle. Of course Governor Pattison is well liked personally, but he does not boast that personal magnetism, very often a very meretricious quality, but is rather of the Cleveland type and his strength rests on the general knowledge that he considers duty first, and lets popularity take care of itself. His eight years in the executive office at Harrisburg demonstrated this quality. The people always knew where to find him. The during his administration there was no setting up of nights in apprehension that some bit of legislative jobbery would be "snaked through." There was a faithful, intrepid and courageous sentinel on the watch. The reign of jobbery recommenced at Harrisburg with the advent of his weak successor, who has won unenviable fame making laws of jobbing schemes that Pattison stayed with his veto. Nor is confidence in Governor Pattison confined to one party. While Pennsyl-vania Democrats are practically unanimous, he has a strong hold on the best thought of the opposition. This has been abundantly shown in his two elections as governor of the state. He was elected both instances by the support his high qualities commanded from Republicans. On the national field his friends have confidence the result will be the same. He is no self-seeker. Nor is his nomination pressed by the Pennsylvania Democracy in any spirit of dictation to the Democracy of the Union. They believe he meets all the requirements of the great office-that he would be a worthy successor of Grover Cleveland, and that on the grounds of party harmony and on the score of availability and expediency no stronger name will go before the Chicago convention.

Quay's State Convention

Two things have been noticeable in the preliminaries and the proceedings of the Republican state convention. * * * The next is the lick-spittle subserviency of the Republican party of Pennsylvania, shown through its representatives at Harrisburg, to the behests and commands of Boss Quay. Never did a political party in the history of this state so sink its manhood bined. and self-respect, and we hear privately from Harrisburg that the press accounts are but a feeble reminder of the servility every-where manifest. The small beer country politicians fairly tumbled over each other to swear fealty and tackle themselves to Quay's nether garments. It was the apothesis of the machine and boss politics -the supreme climax of political bondage.

And yet it is the same Quay, whose ap-peals to be saved from the consequences of political jobbery and financial "indiscretion" still echo in the not far distant past.

The Weary Woman. She is Just as Tired as Ever, Though in a Different

These lines, of American origin, and written nearly 20 years ago, have started on a fresh round, through their publication recently in the London Times in answer to a correspondent's query : ' Here lies a poor woman who always was tired. She lived in a house where help was not hired, Her last words on earth were—"Dear friends I am going To where there's no cooking, nor washing, nor sewing :

nor sewing ; But everything there is exact to my wishes. For where they don't eat there's no washing up dishes. I'll be where loud anthems will always be

The wnere foud anthems will always be ringing.
But having no voice, I'll get quit of the singing.
Don't mourn for me now—don't mourn for me never.
T'm going to do nothing for ever and ever."
The cooking, washing and sewing are bbsolete now, or nearly so, says St.

Our Youngest State.

The territory of Utah was organized in 1850, just three years after the Mormons took up their residence there. Brigham Young, president of the Mor-mon church, was the first territorial governor of Utah. He served four years. No one knows the exact origin of the name "Utah," but it is believed to be derived from the Ute Indians. By an act of the Utah territorial legislature in 1870, the right of suffrage was extended to women. The coal fields of Utah are very extensive. As long ago as 1879 the yearly product was 225,000 tons.

In 1892 the total output of minerals and metals in Utah, including everything from gold to coal and limestone, was worth $11,500,000.

In 1880 Utah had a population of 143,-963. Between the census years of 1870 and 1880, Utah's population increased 57,121; between 1880 and 1890, 63,942.

Utah with her 84.970 square miles has twice the area of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jer-sey, Rhode Island and Vermont com-

Utah has single counties that would make nine states the size of Rhode Island, or five the size of Delaware.

Bees. Why They Work in the Dark.

Bees go out all day gathering honey and work at night in the hive, building their prefer to work in the dark ? is often asked. Everyone knows that honey is a liquid with no solid sugar in it. After standing it gradually assumes a crystalline appearance, or granulates, and ultimately be-comes a solid mass. Honey has been experimentally inclosed in well corked flasks, some of which were kept in perfect darkness, while the others were exposed to the light. The result was that the portion exposed to the light soon crystallized, while that kept in the dark remained unchanged. Hence, we see why the bees are so careful to obscure the glass windows which are placed in their hives. The existence of the young depends on the liquidity of the saccharine food presented to them, and if light were allowed access to this, it would, in all probability, prove fatal to the in-mates of the hive.—Information.
